FRENCH GAIN AT VERDUN

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 27.—The intensified artillery activity on the British front is believed here to herald the long-expected great British offensive.

If the British mean business at this time, they should find the Germans in a state of preparedness. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is in a position to know that the German line in the far west has not been weakened as the result of having to rush help to the Austrians, and that operations at Verdun are being continued systematically in the face of the possibility of a British offensive.

Military circles here are calmly confident that Great Britain's greatest effort will meet the fate of the previous offensives, but there is keen interest to see Kitchener's new armies in action.

The general opinion is that a supreme test of strength between the British and German Armies during the coming Summer will mark the climax of the war.

In the expectation of perhaps decisive military events on all fronts, peace talk has never been so dead as it is today.

BERLIN, June 27.—Marked activity continues in evidence along the Franco-Belgian front, held by the British and the northern wing of the French line. Numerous gas clouds are being employed by the Entente forces, the War Office announced today. The artillery fire on the German lines was especially intense in the vicinity of the Somme. The official statement says:

> On the British front and the northern wing of the French Army patrol fighting developed. Numerous gas and smoke clouds floated toward us. They did no damage to the Germans, and at some places floated back to the enemy trenches. The enemy fire was directed with especial intensity against us on both sides of the Somme.
> As a result of the bombardment of Nesle by the French, twenty-two of their own countrymen were killed or wounded.
>
> On the right bank of the Meuse French attacks northwest and west of the armored work of Thiaumont and southwest of Fort Vaux were ineffective. In Chapitre wood an enemy detachment of two officers and a few dozen men was surprised and its members made prisoners.
>
> A British biplane was shot down in an aerial engagement southeast of Arras. The occupants, who were wounded, were made prisoners.

British Patrols Harry German Lines.

LONDON, June 27.—The official communication, issued by the War Office this evening, says:

>
> All along the front our patrols were very active, entering enemy trenches at numerous points and inflicting many casualties and capturing a few prisoners. Early this morning we successfully exploded two mines near Loos. In connection with one of these explosions the Leinster Regiment inflicted many casualties on the enemy during a successful raid.
>
> Yesterday in the air numerous hostile aircraft were encountered on the enemy's side of the line. Five of our machines engaged four Fokkers, two of which were brought down and fell out of control. Two more of the enemy's machines were driven down in the course of the day. Our casualties: One machine missing.

French Report Verdun Gains.

PARIS, June 27.—The French have recaptured another section of the trenches at Thiaumont, in the Verdun sector, according to the afternoon statement issued by the War Office.

The struggle for the possession of Fleury is still progressing. The night bulletin announces that a German attack on the part of the village held by the French was repulsed this afternoon.

Nine German divisions which were concentrated for the recent attack on Thiaumont have been definitely identified, according to a statement supplied from semi-official sources. Between Avocourt, on the extreme left of the French front at Verdun, and St. Mihiel, on the extreme right, a total of twenty-three divisions, including six and one-half Bavarian divisions, has been identified, the statement adds.

The afternoon bulletin of the War Office reads:

> On the right bank local operations during the night enabled us to make further progress in the region of Thiaumont work. The fighting was rather spirited in the region of Fleury, where the situation is unchanged. On the heights of the Meuse a grenade attack against our positions near Mouilly broke down under our fire.
>
> In Belgium three of our aeroplanes which were engaged in a reconnoissance fired sixty-five bombs on German ships near the Belgian coast.

The night bulletin says:

> In the Argonne, in the region of Bolante, we occupied the southern edge of a crater caused by the explosion of a German mine.
> On both banks of the Meuse the bombardment was less intense during the course of the day. It was more violent in the Woevre in the sector of Eix.
>
> On the right bank the Germans, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, delivered an attack on the part of the village of Fleury which we occupy, but were completely repulsed.

The Belgian communication reads:

British Cities to Issue Securities in United States

LONDON, Wednesday, June 28.—Another measure designed to assist in steadying the American exchange rate is to be incorporated in the Finance bill, according to the morning newspapers. It will enable British municipalities, such as London, Liverpool, Manchester, and Birmingham, to raise money by the issue of securities in the United States.

The bill will provide that such securities may be issued free of all British taxation, which is a new departure.

HUGHES DINES TODAY ALONE WITH COLONEL

MAKES WILLCOX CHAIRMAN

Rumors of Reconciliation Between Roosevelt and Taft, and That Both Will Take the Stump.

There were many developments at the Hughes headquarters at the Hotel Astor yesterday to indicate that Mr. Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt would be the big figures in the Republican campaign.

First Colonel Roosevelt announced pleasure over the telegram sent by Mr. Hughes to the Progressive National Committee on Monday, and that he had accepted an invitation to dine with Mr. Hughes at the Astor tonight. There will be no one else present.

Next was the announcement that William R. Willcox, former Chairman of the Public Service Commission, had been named as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, to direct the campaign. Mr. Willcox was not the first choice of the Crane Steering Committee. He was the personal choice of Mr. Hughes; and there was a well-founded report that the stamp of approval had been put upon him by Colonel Roosevelt.

Mr. Hughes, it was learned, not only sent a special messenger to Colonel Roosevelt with the letter made public on Monday night, but a personal note, in which he told the Colonel of his appreciation and asked him to dine with him. Mr. Hughes had intended to go to his Summer home at Bridgehampton yesterday, but when he got word that Colonel Roosevelt had selected this evening for the dinner, he arranged to stay in town until Thursday afternoon.

There were rumors, based on pretty authentic information, that pictured a whirlwind campaign with Mr. Hughes, Colonel Roosevelt, and former President Taft, touring the country in the interest of the nominee. There was talk also of a reconciliation between Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Taft, and not a few expressed belief that it would soon be brought about.

It was said by close advisers of Mr. Hughes that the campaign, in view of the situation in Mexico, might be started earlier than had been intended. One report had it that Mr. Hughes might go to California in August or early in September and begin his campaign there, while Mr. Taft and others started to stir things in the East and Middle West.

Mr. Hughes refused to forecast what he and the Colonel would talk about at the dinner this evening. He has not seen Colonel Roosevelt since July, 1910, when he left Albany to became a Justice of the Supreme Court.

The selection of Mr. Willcox was made known after a meeting of the Crane Steering Committee with Mr. Hughes at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Before that time the members of the committee had talked things over at the Biltmore, where Crane is stopping, and it was reported that they favored State Chairman Tanner or come one other than Mr. Willcox.

No satisfactory report was obtained of what took place at the conference at the Astor. Shortly after the committee filed out at 3 o'clock, however, Mr. Hughes announced that Mr. Willcox had been selected as Chairman and that Mr. Willcox was his personal choice. The newspaper men were told that there had been no disagreement and that all at the conference had sought an able man who would not open any of the old sores of 1912 because of past close affiliation with either the Old Guard or the Progressive faction.

Mr. Hughes, it is understood, wanted Mr. Willcox because he had known him for years and had implicit faith in his judgment. Willcox was appointed by Hughes as Chairman of the Public Service Commission when Hughes was Governor, and they have long been close friends. Willcox has the added advantage of having served two and a half years by appointment of Colonel Roosevelt as Postmaster of New York. Of late he has practiced law and has not been closely affiliated with politics, and, like Mr. Hughes, did not participate actively in the campaign of 1912, which split the party.

After his selection Mr. Willcox received the newspaper men and talked about his plans. He said he had not sought the place, but was willing to take off his coat and work for Mr. Hughes. He had always been in sympathy with the policies of Mr. Hughes, he said, and admired him greatly.

There was a report that Frank H. Hitchcock, who is credited with the Hughes boom in the Republican National Convention, would be the principal adviser of Mr. Willcox on many matters. Mr. Willcox was asked if he expected that Hitchcock would help out.

"Of course I expect his aid," he said. "He is a loyal Republican and will work for the election of Mr. Hughes."

He added that he was on the most cordial terms with Colonel Roosevelt and had known him for years. He expected that Colonel Roosevelt would give all the help he could.

Mr. Willcox said that national headquarters would be opened in this city within a very short time, probably in a big office building. The personal headquarters of Mr. Hughes at the Astor will be made permanent and he will live at that hotel when in town.

Among the callers received by Mr. Hughes yesterday were George W. Wickersham, who went to the Astor direct from a conference with Governor Whitman; William H. Hotchkiss, a former Chairman of the Progressive State Committee; Oswald G. Villard, publisher of The Evening Post, and C. E. Grelle, Republican State Committeeman of Oregon. Mr. Hughes will re-

ON BOARD SEVENTH REGIMENT TROOP TRAIN, HARRISBURG, Penn., June 27.—Every one of the first 200 miles of the Seventh Regiment's 2,400-mile trip to its base at Brownsville, Texas, has been a farewell or a greeting. New Jersey and Pennsylvania turned out for the first New York regiment en route to the border as if its members were their own boys.

The Pennsylvania Railroad as far as Harrisburg was a lane of patriotism, with cheering crowds and flags on both sides. For more than a mile through the Jersey City yards the trains passed long lines of the Seventh's admirers, who could hardly be held back by the police. So great was the din of whistles and cheers that even the field musicians were forced to express their admiration. Siren salutes have continued all along the route.

It seemed as if the citizens had been warned that the men of the Seventh were leaving prospects of pleasant Summer vacations at golf or motoring for the possibility of a burning Summer in Texas or a campaign against Mexico.

Scenes En Route.

At Newark four clergymen were in the front rank of a throng, waving their hats and cheering. At Rahway a group of young women, apparently school teachers, waved flags and shouted madly as the Seventh's boys saluted. At Linden a squad of four small boys bearing a faded and tattered flag fired a salute with cap pistols. Further on a man who had lost both arms and could not wave his hat jumped up and down in salute. Boys crawled out of swimming holes to yell at the soldiers, plowmen and section men stopped work to wave farewells.

Every factory had its windows filled with flags and hands waving to the Seventh, even those bearing signs that might have indicated hyphens. Men who, apparently, were proprietors of those shops waved as heartily as did their girl employes. There were no hyphens along the route, that was certain. It was Uncle Sam's day and the Seventh's.

At Harrisburg squads of girls came to the headquarters train and distributed among the men 500 packages of cigarettes and smoking tobacco, and sent the following to Colonel Fisk:

> The Harrisburg Chapter of the Pennsylvania Railroad Organization for National Preparedness desires to send you herewith for distribution among the men of your command refreshments accompanying this note—cigars, packages of cigarettes, and some fresh fruit. A similar distribution has been made for each of the three sections of your regiment.
>
> The patriotic ladies of Harrisburg in general and of the Pennsylvania Railroad in particular wish the boys en route to the front to feel that the women of Pennsylvania are hinking of them all the time, are mindful of their comfort, and are praying their safe and speedy return to their homes. Will you kindly see that an equitable distribution is made among all the men. Mrs. M. AGNES BUCHANAN,
> Chief of the Column.

Cars Were Old Friends.

Every one could tell this was a troop train, even the veterans who had seen soldier cars in '61, but are now too blind to see the olive drab uniforms and the flags. They could recognize the cars. It is supposed that the twenty-four cars in the train have volunteered for every war since 1776, when they were stage coaches.

The front end is the locomotive but the last car has almost as much to do with running the train. It's the "corned beef car" where the rations are kept, and there will be none but cold rations on this trip. The guardsmen think it will be warm enough to make coffee without fires when they reach Texas.

All that has been said about the unwashed Mexican has found small sympathy among the men of the Seventh today. If any one has a wash before the regiment reaches Brownsville on Monday or Tuesday it will be because one of the trains balks near a river. Officers say it will take five or six days to reach the border, but Colonel Fiske repeats:

"We will be ready to detrain and fight."

There are 618 men in the first train, comprising companies A, B, C, and D of the First Battalion and E and F of the Second. The Third Battalion is on the second section with the rest of the Second, while the units bearing the wagons and horses are following. In the first section are Colonel Fiske and his officers, the field music, half of the hospital corps, the headquarters staff and a machine gun company. The twelve men in the hospital car, different from all the others in that it has fewer occupants, have had no work yet.

The policing of the train is strict and no one is allowed to stand on the platforms because there are no vestibules and very little platform.

New Spanish Envoy Will Work for Peace

MEXICO CITY, June 27, (via Galveston.)—It was learned tonight on good authority here that Alejandro Padilla Bell, the new Spanish Minister, who arrived tonight from Vera Cruz, accompanied by high Foreign Office officials who went to the port to receive him, is authorized to use his good offices to mediate the questions between Mexico and the United States. Ambassador Riano of Spain is exerting his efforts similarly in Washington. Some high officials attach great significance to Minister Padilla's arrival, believing it involves the response of King Alfonso to the petition of prominent Spaniards here and in Spanish colonies throughout Latin America to use his good offices to avert war.

It is said King Alfonso instructed Señors Padilla and Riano to co-operate to that effect. Students of all the higher and professional schools held a meeting tonight, offering General Carranza their services in case of war.

HURRY MILITIA, FUNSTON WIRES

5,000 MORE MEN GO TODAY

Officers in Charge of the Local Troops Respond Instantly to Rush Call for Their Forces.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood received late last night an urgent telegraphic request from Major Gen. Funston, commanding the border forces, to expedite the departure of the Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia units, now under orders to proceed to the border. General Wood immediately got in telephonic communication with commanders of the forces in Pennsylvania and Washington and instructed them to entrain the units, ordered south, at "the earliest possible moment."

The commanders replied that they would comply with the request, and that they expected to get away today. Nearly 5,000 men are involved in this movement.

The troops ordered out from Pennsylvania are three regiments of infantry, one ambulance corps, one field hospital, two companies of engineers, and one signal corps battalion. The District of Columbia has been ordered to send one regiment and one battalion of infantry.

General Wood said that the Pennsylvania commands were ordered to El Paso and the District of Columbia troops to Bisbee, Ariz.

The troops from New Hampshire and the units from Massachusetts and Connecticut which are not already on their way have also been ordered South today. Tomorrow Maine and Rhode Island will go. The orders for Friday include one regiment of infantry from Maryland. The other two regiments of the Maryland brigade will entrain on July 5.

Yesterday new orders were received from the War Department, General Wood said, directing him to hasten the departure of cavalry units, as that branch of the service was more urgently needed on the border than infantry. He was ordered to send the men South as soon as they were ready and provide them with mounts at the border or ship their horses to them later.

It was announced last night by General Wood that there were now more than 52,000 National Guardsmen in camp in the various States and the District of Columbia, which are included in the territory of the Eastern Department. These are in addition to the units which are now en route to the border. Of the number now in camps about 17,000 have taken the Federal oath, which places them on the same status as the regulars, and the others are being rapidly sworn in.

Referring to the movement of troops from this department to the Mexican frontier General Wood said it had been as rapid as could be reasonably expected under the circumstances.

"The reasons for the apparent delay in getting the guardsmen mobilized, taken over into the Federal service, and started for the border," said General Wood, "may be summed up as follows: First, the militia is not permitted by law to keep extra field equipment in its armories. Rifles, ammunitions, and other equipment needed to bring them to war strength are lacking when they are ordered to mobilize. This is different from the system followed by the regular army and the reserve systems of the European powers. A European reservist can leave San Francisco for the headquarters of his company in Europe and on his arrival he will find there every bit of equipment awaiting him in his locker, which he quickly finds by comparing numbers.

"Secondly, the militia must be supplied with animals, whereas the regular service has its own, and all of them trained for the purposes required. The horses for the militia must be trained and here again we need time. The demand for horses in the European armies has almost depleted this country of horses, and those supplied in the last few days to the New York Guard came from Montana and Oklahoma and were wild.

"The militia is like any other similarly organized body. If you wanted to get 5,000 or 7,000 doctors from throughout the United States you could not expect them to convene at Saratoga Springs in two or three days. Each would have to be given a chance to arrange his affairs and to secure what personal leave of absence he might require.

"The militia is up against a much harder proposition than the regular army in that it is not supplied, and, owing to the present system, supply bases are few and far between.

"The New York Guard must secure its equipment from the nearest arsenal, which is in Philadelphia, and this is owing to the lack of readiness not of the militia itself, but due entirely to

TO ASK MAJOR GENERALSHIP

OFFICERS FROM U. S. ARMY

FULL EQUIPMENT AT HAND

In the event of a declaration of war on Mexico, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will ask the War Department for permission to put into the field a special division of troops fully equipped for practically immediate service. This was learned by THE TIMES yesterday on high authority.

While details of the plans are being kept a carefully guarded secret as yet, it is understood that in requesting the Government to make him a Major General and accept his offer of 12,000 fighting men the Colonel will ask that a little latitude be allowed him in the enrollment of his division.

Instead of the usual division of three bridages of infantry, with its cavalry and artillery complements, this division, it is reported, will consist of four brigades, two of cavalry, one of infantry, and one of field artillery, besides the customary engineer battalion, hospital and signal corps, and, above all, a full quota of the most modern machine guns. High-powered armored aeroplanes will be attached for service with the artillery.

It was learned yesterday that recruiting for this body of troops had been going along quietly for the last ten days, and that many of the Colonel's old associates in the Spanish war had been apprised of the scheme and have been working hard toward its completion.

The big details of the plan have all been worked out, it was said yesterday, and ground has been prepared, so that almost on the instant that war is declared Colonel Roosevelt can give the country an astonishing demonstration of quickness in organization and equipment of a body of soldiers for field service.

Applications Pour In.

For the last few weeks his mail has been literally flooded, it is asserted, with applications from different men who want to go to war under his command. Many of them have been single applications only, but there have also been a number from persons representing organizations of ex-regulars and ex-guardsmen, Spanish war veterans, and rifle and riding clubs, who are ready to go at once.

It is declared that horses for the mounted men are even now listed, and can be obtained in the time it requires to send a telegram. Draft horses for artillery and the heavy work have been promised by large contractors. Motor vehicles, autos and trucks, it is said, have been generously offered.

The officers of this prospective division will come, in the main, from the regular army. The four Brigadier Generals and every one of the twelve or fifteen Colonels, it is stated positively, will be veterans now in the active service of the United States. In fact, the plan as it stands is said to have the nearty indorsement of the highest officers in our service.

The headquarters of the division, it is believed here, will be somewhere in Texas, where the Rough Riders got ready for service. There will probably be a recruiting depot in this city, as well as others, when the enrollment starts, although the nucleus of the force, it is understood, has been notified and is now all ready to proceed wherever the Colonel may direct.

The enlisted personnel of the division, is expected to be much the same as that of the Rough Riders. The soldiers will be recruited from the Southwest and West, and there will be a number of young men from the Eastern States. In fact, the call will be sent forth as it was when Roosevelt and Wood organized the Rough Riders in 1898, "We want men who can ride, shoot, take care of themselves and their horses in the field."

Mobile but Deadly.

But, it is declared, that here the resemblance to the old organization will stop. The Colonel learned his lesson in Cuba, it is reported, and the division now contemplated will be a model of efficiency in every department. It is believed that the regulars will not have the chance to scoff at the discipline of this new organization. Nor will there be any more trouble over antiquated equipment of any kind. The division will be armed with best weapons, and will be fully equipped down to the last extra suspender button.

As the plan stands now, only service in Mexico is contemplated, and, it is said, all efforts have been expended with that end in view. The overwhelming preponderance of cavalry, as compared with the ordinary division, will make for an extremely mobile

"Come and Take Them!" Trevino's Answer To Question About American Prisoners

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, June 27.—"If the United States wants its soldiers who are held here as prisoners of war the best way to get them would be to come and take them." This was General Jacinto Trevino's laconic reply to a question asked of him last night by an American friend of his father's at the military headquarters of the Northeastern Division of the Mexican Army in Chihuahua City. General Trevino was asked what reply he expected to make to the demand that the prisoners taken at Carrizal be released at once, and he gave his answer with a smile and twist of his blonde mustache.

Promises Mexicans the Capture of Washington.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 27.—Circulars spread broadcast from Hermosillo by recruiting officers and brought here by American refugees contain a call to arms. They say in part:

"No fighting will be necessary. Our brave troops will simply march northward, brushing the gringos aside until our glorious tricolor floats from the dome of the Capitol at Washington."

MEXICANS CROSS BORDER, KILL TWO

PURSUERS LOSE TRAIL

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 27.—American cavalrymen, assisted by posses of ranchmen and citizens of Hachita, N. M., and nearby towns, tonight are pursuing bandits who early today raided a ranch about thirty-five miles southwest of Hachita, killing William Parker, the owner, and Mrs. Alice Parker, his bride of five months.

Neither American cavalry nor the civilian posse crossed the Mexican frontier, the trail having been lost on the American side, according to reports to officers of the border patrol here late tonight.

According to stories reaching here the bandits are Mexicans who recently have committed numerous minor depredations in the district. Parker, from whom the Mexican bandits stole a number of head of stock last week, attempted to drive them off, but was forced to retreat to the ranch house. The marauders followed, broke through the door, and murdered Parker and his bride. They are said to have made their way south, driving a number of cattle and horses before them.

Immediately the news of the raid became known citizens of Hachita and other communities in the neighborhood formed posses and motored to the ranch to take up the trail of the bandits. Shortly afterward cavalry detachments were ordered from Las Cienegas, Alamo, Hueco, and other outposts.

Lieutenant Waterman, commanding the Hachita district, telegraphed the following report of the incident to military headquarters here tonight:

"Reported that Mr. and Mrs. William Parker were murdered near Double Adobe Ranch, twenty-five miles northeast of Las Cienegas. Civil authorities and detachments of cavalry from Cienegas, Alamo, Hueco, and Culbertson's Ranch have taken up the trail. Mexicans suspected."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 27.—Reports to General Funston about the raid near Hachita, in which the ranchman Parker and his wife were reported killed, did not indicate that the cavalry pursuing the raiders had crossed the border, nor did they show clearly whether the raiders came from south of the line.

KILLINGS AROUSE BORDER.

Excitement Rises Over Hachita Crime—More Food for Army.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, June 27.—All the border flamed up with excitement again today after the raid near Hachita, N. M., near Columbus, when the Parker ranch was invaded by Mexican bandits and Mr. and Mrs. William Parker murdered while they slept.

A neighboring rancher happened to be passing the Parker ranch when he discovered the bodies and gave the alarm.

The Hachita raid, coupled with the arrival of 400 former Villa guerrillas on the border at Juarez late Monday night, has caused renewed unrest along this part of the border, as it is feared the Villa troops, who are joining the Carranza Government forces, are deliberately being sent to the border to commit raids similar to the Hachita raid.

More Villa troops are reported to be on the way from Torreon and Chihuahua City to Juarez, and this phase of the situation is causing General Bell and the military authorities here much concern. General Bell is making a strenuous effort to prevent the deportation of General Felipe Angeles by the civil authorities. General Angeles is recognized as Mexico's greatest artillery officer, and General Bell fears if he is deported he will join the Carranza artillery forces.

Large shipments of flour, corn, and other foodstuffs for the Carranza army continue to be made across the bridge in spite of efforts of the customs authorities to prevent the food crossing for the Mexican army. Today 7,500 sacks of flour billed to the de facto Government and loaded on sixteen motor trucks crossed the international bridge to Juarez. It was held up over night in an effort to have Washington declare an embargo, but this was not done and

FACED DESERT DEATH ALONE

Wounded Captain Had to Order Men to Leave Him—Saved as by a Miracle.

By FRANK B. ELSER.
Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

GENERAL PERSHING'S HEADQUARTERS, NEAR CASAS GRANDES, Mexico, Noon, June 26, (via Radio to Columbus, N. M., June 27.)—Captain Lewis S. Morey, K Troop, Tenth Cavalry, sole officer to survive the fight with Carranzistas near Carrizal, sat on the edge of a bunk in a thatched hut at headquarters today and told an attentive group of fellow officers who had gathered to congratulate him as one risen from the grave intimate details as soldiers saw them of the first real tragedy of this campaign.

Captain Morey had spent the night in the hospital after his arrival here by motor late last evening, and today, his blood-stained shirt removed, his body cleansed, and refreshed, he was able to be about camp, with his left shoulder, through which a Mauser bullet passed, swathed in bandages. He first held a conference with General Pershing, and then visited his regiment in what was probably one of the most remarkable reunions of this campaign.

As the Captain walked through the company streets, flanked by tents and curiouly woven brush quarters the men and officers have built, there was no cheering, no music, but from each group he passed some officer with eager face walked out and grasped his free hand and said:

Officers' Fervent Greeting.

Those were simple words, but they were fervent, for no man of this command believed Morey ever would be with us again.

Captain Morey is a studious-looking man, with whiskered, lean face, and spectacled. Telling his story he spoke slowly and haltingly, without exaggeration, and with superb restraint and modesty. He blamed no one, drew no conclusions, offered no "hindsight" suggestions as to what should have been done. His voice was almost emotionless, rising in pitch and tone only when he referred to the time he went without drink from 6 o'clock on the morning of June 21, the day of the fight, until 4 o'clock the following day. Wounded and blistered by the rays of the sun, he found that day the longest day of the year. Morey suffered a thirst that will leave an impression for life. He asked that canteen water be handed to him while he spoke.

How those two troops of the Tenth left Santa Domingo early that Wednesday morning and rode toward Carrizal, how Captain Boyd conferred with General Gomez, and how, flanking the American right and left, the Carranzistas opened fire, already has been told, and these details, heretofore related, Captain Morey confirmed. He added little to the story of that fight, except to say that Captain Boyd and Lieutenant Henry Adair died like gentlemen and soldiers, that the Carranzistas started hostilities by opening up with a machine gun, and that in the firing which immediately followed the enemy seemed to be centring fire on the white officers, of whom there were only three.

Morey's troop, consisting of only thirty-six men, was on the right flank when "hell opened," as he put it, and he could follow the charge of C Troop under Captain Boyd and Lieutenant Adair only to the fringe of brush into which men and horses disappeared.

How Lieutenant Adair Died.

"C Troop men tell me," he went on, "that Adair died in an irrigation ditch, his head held by a non-commissioned officer. There was water in the ditch, and, dying, Adair would pitch forward into it without support. I understand the non-commissioned officer left Adair wounded at the ditch at Adair's order and went toward Carrizal. Then, looking back, he saw his officer, with eye glazed and head wobbling, against the side of the ditch, and he ran back and remained with him till Adair died.

"Captain Boyd was killed when his troop made a rush for a trench in which the Carranzistas had machine guns. Just how he died I don't know."

Caught in a right angle of fire, Morey's small detachment, as previous dispatches related, was forced to retire. Its mounts had been sent to the rear, and every man, including the leader, was afoot. Alternately lying flat on their stomachs and rising, fighting desperately, the little band withdrew till Captain Morey and a Corporal wearing Captain Boyd's hat found themselves with seven privates behind an adobe

WILSON WON'T WAIT LONG

NOT THE TIME TO MEDIATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Semi-official information reached Pan-American diplomats here tonight that the Carranza Government would decline to grant the demand of President Wilson for the release of the American soldiers captured at Carrizal and now imprisoned in Chihuahua City.

There was no official confirmation of this report, but the source from which the information came strengthened its credibility. Nothing was obtainable to offset the positive statement that the President's demand would be rejected.

Señor Arredondo, Ambassador Designate of the Carranza Government, said he had received no information from his Government regarding the answer to the American demand, and no advices to show that the answer was on its way.

Secretary Lansing was notified today by James Linn Rodgers, Special Agent in Mexico City, that he had succeeded in delivering President Wilson's virtual ultimatum, demanding the immediate release of the American troopers, to General Candido Aguilar, Carranza's Secretary of Foreign Relations, at 11 A. M. yesterday. His message did not indicate what the Carranza Government would do, according to statements made by Mr. Lansing.

Late tonight the State Department received another telegram from Mr. Rodgers, stating that the Carranza Government had not yet begun the preparation of the answer to the American note. He indicated that several days might elapse before the reply was ready to be delivered to him. Whether this supplementary message gave any intimation as to the Carranza Government's attitude could not be ascertained. The fact that it would require several days to prepare it was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that the reply would be argumentative and possibly defiant.

State Department officials said late tonight that they had received no intimation from any source of the probable tenor of General Carranza's reply or the probable time of its arrival. As soon as it reached the department, they said, its receipt would be announced.

President Wilson is disposed to wait only a reasonable length of time for the Carranza reply. It was intimated today that unless the reply came tomorrow the President would go before Congress on Thursday. Among Congressional leaders the statement was made that no plans had yet been made for the President's appearance before Congress and that no word had come from the White House as to when the President desired the two houses to be assembled in join session.

If assured tomorrow that the note will be here not later than Friday, it is likely that the President will not split hairs over postponement until Friday before going to Congress, especially since every day's delay before possible hostilities would put the militia closer to the border and enable the War Department to complete its plans.

Refusal Likely to Bring Break.

Flat refusal by the Carranza Government to release the American prisoners will, it is believed, be followed by orders from the President to the War Department to set the machinery in movement for the dispatch of regulars to Chihuahua City to rescue the imprisoned troopers. Resistance of this movement would be followed by war between this country and Mexico.

The expectation here, if the semi-official information reaching here is correct that Carranza will refuse to surrender the American prisoners, is that this refusal will be accompanied by a reiteration of the warning that American troops will be attacked wherever they advance in Mexico. Such a confirmation of this Government's belief that the attack at Carrizal was a deliberately hostile act against the American forces now in Mexico would be regarded as a course of action by the Mexican Government which could only be met by military measures by the United States.

Prompt compliance by Congress with any request the President might make as to Mexico was foreshadowed today by the calm that prevailed in both houses. Although measures designed to prepare for war were under consideration and the corridors of the Capitol hummed with rumors, there was no excitement and discussion of the subject on the floor was avoided. The legislative branch of the Government was plainly waiting to do its part in any needed preparations.

Efforts to sound Administration officials anew today as to their attitude toward some form of arbitration met with a chilling reception. Charles A. Douglas, recently re-employed as General Carranza's legal adviser here, called on Counselor Polk at the State Department. He and Dr. Victor A. Pendon, head of the Yucatan Sisal Commission, had received word from Luis Cabrera, the Mexican Finance Minister, that General Carranza was disposed to appeal to the arbitration provisions of the treaty of 1848, provided the United States was willing to submit the dispute to peaceful negotiation.

Mr. Douglas, it is understood, suggested that the arbitration, provided for under Section 21 of the treaty, could well be employed to formulate a definite question as between the two Governments, which in turn might be settled by mediation. He left the conference with the clear impression that the Washington Government would listen to no mediation suggestion.

It has been plainly indicated that unconditional surrender of the American prisoners held at Chihuahua would be the only immediate step General Carranza could take to avoid hostilities. Whether a mediation proposal would be considered after their release was a matter of speculation. Officials have no desire to talk of matters on a hypothetical basis, founded on what might be possible if the prisoners were given up.

There is reason to believe, however, that a plan which did not involve a military status quo in Mexico, and the consequent hampering of General Funston's dispositions to guard the international line from raiders, would be considered, at least, if the captured troopers were freed first.

Arredondo Presents Two Notes.

An incident of the day which did not leave a favorable impression was the presentation to the State Department by Señor Arredondo, the Carranza representative, of two notes, in one of which he asked for the release of certain Mexicans, held prisoners in California and Arizona, and in the other for the lifting of the embargo along the Mexican border against the shipment of supplies other than military stores into Mexico.

In the first note Señor Arredondo explained that J. N. Gonzales, a Mexican, was held prisoner at Tucson, Ariz. Gonzales was formerly an agent of the Mexican Treasury Department in Sonora. The same note called attention to two groups of Mexicans, one numbering fifteen, the other fourteen, persons, held prisoners at Redding, Cal. According to Señor Arredondo, these persons are held in prison without formal charges and without justification.

These notes, Mr. Arredondo explained, were not presented by instructions from his Government, but on his own initiative. He said, however, that he had notified his Government of the action taken. Whatever the motives of the Mexican Ambassador designate in asking for the release of these Mexicans, it was difficult for Washington tonight to regard the request, thus made by Señor Arredondo, other than as a counter-proposition to the American demand for the immediate release of the American prisoners taken at Carrizal. One diplomat expressed the opinion that the presentation of this request at this time came in bad taste, and that, if it was backed up by the Mexican Government, the action would savor of playing with fire in a very serious situation.

So far as is known, the State Department has not been advised of the detention of Mexicans. It is an open secret, however, that a practical embargo on commerce between the United States and Mexico is being enforced effectually by customs and army officers, without the authority of a formal proclamation.

While Mr. Arredondo continues to preserve a calm front, the possibilities he sees in the present crisis are indicated by the fact that his family already is on the way toward the Canadian border. In the event of a break it is believed possible he will turn over the records of the Embassy to the French Ambassador.

There were indications at the War Department during the day that military censorship wight be expected to tighten at any time. Officers showed increasing disinclination to talk of troop movements or of the progress being made with mobilization of the National Guard. Secretary Baker expects to have his Army Press Bureau in operation soon, and through it will be given out all that it is desired shall be known.

Delay Has Military Value.

Every day's delay in what seems the inevitable break in relations with the Mexican Government sees the army in better position for the swift action that may follow. This has influenced against pressing matters to an immediate issue. Had the border forces been sufficient to release the regulars for aggressive operations, it is thought likely that a time limit would have been included in Secretary Lonsing's note demanding release of the Carrizal prisoners.

Advices from General Funston's headquarters indicate that trains loaded with State troops were sweeping southward today from many points of the country. Additional regiments are entraining or receiving the last necessary equipment. No statement as to the number already on their way was obtainable at the War Department.

Another task aided by delay in the diplomatic exchanges is that of getting Americans out of Mexico. The number there has been reduced to less than a thousand.

Secretary Daniels stated today that the Navy Department had now supplied ample accommodations for all refugees who might reach the seacoast. The Atlantic Fleet will not be ordered to Mexican waters, he said, except "under exceptional circumstances."

the system. The troops could not move because of the system, or the lack of system. It requires a train of seventeen cars to supply one regiment with equipment. It is a most difficult matter to get horses ready for active service in a few days.

"The result of the Mexican trouble, I believe, will be a reconstruction of the system of equipping the National Guard. The militia will in future, I believe, be prepared. The organizations will have their own equipment on hand in their own armories."

Colonel John N. Bellinger, Chief Quartermaster of the Eastern Department, was busy last night working out the tentative routes of units shortly to be ordered to the border by General Wood.

ARTILLERY TO START TODAY.

Battery Encamped in Van Cortlandt Park Will Entrain at Yonkers.

Announcement was made at 11 o'clock last night that instead of coming from Van Cortlandt Park to the city to entrain at Sixtieth Street and Eleventh Avenue, the Second Battalion of the First Field Artillery, leaving for the border today, will entrain at Yonkers. The Cavalry Battalion, which is under orders to go, is not expected to get away before tomorrow or Friday.

Since the arrival at the park of the raw horses from the West, a prolonged battle has been on with the animals in licking them into shape. Those horses which do not bite their neighbors, tied to the long lines near headquarters, bite their keepers, or kick them, and blood is shed and language is free. Several casualties were talked about yesterday, but the names and companies of the wounded were deleted by the censor.

Squadron A, comfortably encamped in the field a mile and a half away from the main camp and up a steep hill, where the Twenty-second Engineers held their field exercises ten days ago, received an avalanche of packages from admirers during the afternoon.

A report that a leopard cub owned by Garnett Day, Company B, which has been doing duty as mascot, had gone berserker and bitten Corporal Kilpatrick of the same company, could not be verified. The censor again interposed in the matter of communicating information of military importance.

Events for Squadron A marched rapidly, as did the men. There was a constant coming and going of squads on foot, and evolutions to shouted orders in a neighboring field. Although the men had the manner of the vacationist on his first day off, the crowd went about pitying them in loud tones.

"This is nothing to what they will have to go through," said a motherly soul, after having inspected one of the company field kitchens. She had moved twice to avoid the column of smoke which had enveloped her, and had a blased opinion of the pleasures of campaign life. She was afterwards seen in earnest conversation with one of the cooks on the subject of cutting meat.

MEXICANS MASSING ON ARIZONA BORDER

MOBILIZATION AT CANANEA

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 27.—Further reports concerning the concentration of large numbers of Mexican troops along the Arizona border were received today by General Funston, and it is feared that serious trouble is likely to occur in that vicinity at any time. In addition to the 15,000 Carranzistas reported opposite Naco, Ariz., yesterday, it was learned today that Carranzistas are mobilizing at Cananea, less than a hundred miles from the border, and at other points within quick striking distance of American territory.

General Davis, in charge of the American garrison at Douglas, reported this evening that the country just across the border was "swarming with armed Mexicans." In the event there is war between the United States and Mexico it is considered probable that the principal points of entry by American armies will be at El Paso, over the Mexican Central, and several important railroad points to the east.

The reported activities of the Mexicans along the Arizona border are considered significant. It is feared that the Mexicans are planning to try to invade American territory along this western line while the main body of American forces is occupied on the east. General Funston has ordered strong reinforcements to the American garrisons along the Arizona border.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 27.—Preparations for the placing and maintenance of the National Guard units were being made all along the border today. While the Quartermaster's Department was working out details for caring for more than 35,000 additional men, General Funston and his staff were engaged in revising and fixing the long list of troop stations, with a view to starting a big, sweeping army across the border, if necessary, and at the same time leaving adequate protection for the border towns and ranches on the American side of the boundary line.

Reports from General Pershing's columns and from the forces along the border reached headquarters more frequently than on other days, but nearly all had to do with the routine of a big army and carried no news of clashes with Mexicans, either bandits, or troops of the de facto Government.

Unless it is made necessary by some unmistakable act of Carranza's troops, the American Army will take no hostile steps toward Mexico until directed by the War Department. Army officers were eager for news from Washington and Mexico City that would determine the character of the army's action. Their own reports told of continued concentration of Mexican forces within striking distance of the border, but there was no positive evidence that Carranza was planning anything but a defensive movement. The strongest garrison Carranza still has is that at Eagle Pass, although a few men are still held at other points.

The apparent intention of Sonora commanders to send a force through Naco, Ariz., to Bisbee, Ariz., presumably to raid the copper plants there, appeared today to have been abandoned. When the report was received last night the Twenty-second Regiment of infantry was sent from Douglas to Bisbee on a special train. Today there came reports of a strengthening of the Mexican garrison opposite Nogales, but staff officers here expressed the opinion that the American force there was able to care for itself.

A, B, and C Batteries of the Third Field Artillery that have been here for eight years left tonight for Eagle Pass. Orders were issued for two more batteries of the Fifth Field Artillery at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to go to El Paso and two to Brownsville.

General Pershing reported to General Funston that the two squadrons of the Eleventh Cavalry that had been sent toward Carrizal in search of the dispersed members of the two troops that were engaged there by Carranza's forces had fallen back on the main line.

Ambulance Company 6 and Field Hospital 6, both of the regular army, from Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, reached here today.

WHEN THE 7TH WENT IN '61.

Memorable Scenes Along the Route, as Described in The Times.

The departure of the Seventh Regiment yesterday for the Mexican border recalled the stirring days of the civil war, more than half a century ago, when the Seventh left the city and was mustered into the Federal service on three occasions. The last time previous to yesterday that the regiment marched through New York bound for the front as a part of the Government force was on June 16, 1963. It left for the front on May 25, 1862, and was mustered out on Sept. 9 of the same year.

The first and the most memorable departure of the Seventh was on April 19, 1861, just one week after the fall of Fort Sumter. It was the first regiment of the National Guard to volunteer in the service of its country, and was the first of the New York troops to reach Washington in that dark period which marked the start of the long conflict.

The armory was then over the old Tompkins Market, just below Cooper Institute, on the east side of Third Avenue, between Sixth and Seventh Streets. Colonel Marshall Lefferts was in command, and he led the regiment to the front on all three occasions during the war. On that famous departure Colonel Lefferts marched at the head of 991 men down Lafayette Place to Great Jones Street, to Broadway, and down that thoroughfare to Cortlandt Street, where the men took the ferry to Jersey City and entrained for Washington.

THE NEW YORK TIMES in describing the event on the morning of April 20, 1861, referred to it as a sad and yet triumphant day, and in picturing the ovation accorded to the regiment in its march to the ferry said:

"The intelligence that the Seventh Regiment, the crack regiment, the almost adored military body of this city, would leave for Washington yesterday afternoon created an excitement scarcely surpassed by anything that has transpired since the first news of the attack on Fort Sumter. Although it was announced that 3 P. M. was the time for the assembling of the regiment at their armory, over Tompkins Market, Broadway was the scene for the gathering of hundreds of people long before noon.

"The Stars and Stripes were everywhere. It would be invidious to say from what buildings the national flag was displayed, because it would be almost impossible to tell from what buildings it did not wave, and never, if flags can be supposed to be animated with any of the feelings of their owners, with a purer devotion to the Union.

"But the gayest and in this respect the most remarkable thoroughfare was Cortlandt Street. Lafayette Place, where the regiment was to form previous to marching, was very attractively dressed, a huge flag being displayed from the Astor Library, among numerous others from private buildings. But Cortlandt Street showed a gathering of flags, a perfect army of them. They were not, in that comparatively brief space from Broadway to the Jersey City ferry, to be numbered by dozens or by scores—every building seemed like 'Captains of Fifties.' Such was the display along the route of the Seventh."

A dispatch from New Brunswick in the evening, announcing that the Seventh Regiment had reached that city at 8:45 P. M., said:

"The route thus far has been one continued ovation, and at every station on their route they have been greeted with the booming of cannon and the shouts of thousands of patriotic citizens of New Jersey who have almost lined the road, and houses at a distance of half a mile from the road were seen to be illuminated."

MEXICANS KILL TWO RANCHMEN

Gen. Calles Reports a Gun Fight in Sonora—Blames the Americans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—General P. Elias Calles reported tonight having learned from the Mayor of Or Arizpe, Sonora, of the killing of J. T. Harkes and A. P. Dickson, Americans, in a gun fight with ranch hands on the Cienega Fria ranch, near there. The Mayor reported that the two slain Americans, with Morton Handen, also an American, were riding armed and were cutting barbed wire fences. It was charged also they had killed a steer of a ranch to which they did not belong.

The ranchers protesting, they fired upon the ranchers, starting a fight wherein two ranchers were killed as well as the Americans. The report adds that Handen fled, but was captured, and admitted the Americans fired first. Handen has been ordered brought to Nacozari for trial, General Calles reports.

MEXICO ENVOY DENIES VILLA WILL JOIN ARMY

Bandit's Whereabouts Is Not Known to Carranza, He Declares.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A report that Francisco Villa and a body of his followers are to be mustered into the Carranza army in the event of war with the United States was officially denied tonight by Eliseo Arredondo, General Carranza's Ambassador-Designate here.

Mr. Arredondo said he had been advised from Mexico City that under no circumstances would Villa or the bandits allied with him be permitted to serve with the de facto Government troops. For more than two months, the Ambassador's advices declared, Villa's whereabouts had been unknown to Carranza officials.

MAY REPLACE BORDER TROOPS

CHARLESTON, West Va., June 27.—Adjt. Gen. John C. Bond issued orders late today that all companies composing the First Infantry, West Virginia National Guard, be held in their home armories to await further orders.

The order was issued shortly after it became known that about 275 men, or about 30 per cent. of the members of the Second Infantry, now mobilized at Kanawha City, had refused to be mustered into the Federal service. The First Regiment was not included in the original mobilization order.

RAILROADS DENY BLAME FOR DELAY

ARMY SYSTEM AT FAULT

The railroads of this part of the country had their first opportunity yesterday to test their facilities for the mobilization of troops. To all appearances the test was satisfactory, regardless of the fact that they have been charged with responsibility for the delay in getting some of the National Guard organizations off to the border.

From the operating offices of the New York Central, Pennsylvania, and Lackawanna Railroads, which were asked to handle the bulk of the New York Guard, came assurances that the trains were ready for such organizations as had ordered them. The railroads said they would be able to start the troop trains as soon as the men and equipment were aboard.

The troop movement in this State was extensive, as is shown by a report of the New York Central, which alone handled thirty-nine trains on which guardsmen were being transported either to the border or encampment preliminary to their departure. When an account of the Central's passenger rolling stock was taken last night it was found that 10 per cent. of it had been engaged for the transportation of troops, but the regular movement of trains went on as usual with little delay.

Troop Trains Have Right of Way.

The troop trains have the right of way, and the public has been asked to be patient for the next few days. The Pennsylvania has issued a notice to its patrons, explaining that there may be a shortage of day coaches for a little while. The Lackawanna is ready to move at a moment's notice such troops as have been routed over its lines.

According to a statement made last night by L. F. Vosburgh, General Passenger Agent, and C. F. Smith, General Superintendent of Passenger Transportation, in charge of the movement of troops for the New York Central, that railroad had in troop use yesterday 422 cars, including 192 coaches, 21 Pullmans, 54 box cars, 74 stock cars, 53 flat cars, and 31 baggage cars.

Mr. Vosburgh said the Central had not been responsible for any delay in the movement of the guardsmen, but, on the other hand, had been ready for several days to start troop trains south as soon as the soldiers were entrained. The Seventy-first Regiment was cited as an instance. The cars, making up three trains for this regiment, had been at the yards, at Sixtieth Street and Eleventh Avenue, since last Saturday. Likewise cars have been waiting at Yonkers for the First Field Artillery, which is encamped at Van Cortlandt Park, with 15 officers, 450 men, 424 horses, with guns and caissons, and is prevented from entraining because of the difficulty in obtaining additional animals.

Ten trains of Massachusetts troops were received by the New York Central from the Boston & Albany Railroad. They started from South Framingham on Monday night en route to Chicago, St. Louis, and thence to Brownsville, Texas. Among these troops were the Ninth Massachusetts Infantry, with 55 officers and 978 men, field artillery with 14 officers and 218 men, cavalry with 10 officers and 280 men, hospital corps with 6 officers and 67 men, Signal Corps with 200 men, and ambulance corps with 100 men.

The Massachusetts Troop Trains.

In addition the Central received from the New Haven Railroad six trains of Massachusetts troops, which were turned over to the West Shore Railroad at Campbell Hall, near Poughkeepsie, and three trains of Connecticut troops, also routed over the West Shore, and turned over at Campbell Hall.

The Fourteenth Regiment, which went into camp at Beekman last week, was entrained with 50 officers, 1,100 men, 100 horses, and 20 vehicles at 9 A. M. at Beekman. They started immediately over the Central for the border in three trains, having in all 36 coaches and 2 sleepers. The Seventy-first Regiment, with 55 officers, 1,500 men, 52 animals, 19 vehicles, and 70 motor cycles, boarded four trains of the Central at Eleventh Avenue and Sixtieth Street at 2 P. M., and were off promptly. They were provided with 42 coaches and 3 sleeping cars.

Additional trains handled by the New York Central included one with the Third Ambulance Corps, 200 men, starting from Beekman; three with the First Regiment New Jersey National Guard, 1,500 strong, which was received at Buffalo at 7 A. M., and proceeded over the Lake Shore; one carrying the Sixty-fifth New York Infantry and equipment from Buffalo to Beekman; one with Northern New York companies picked up at Watertown and elsewhere, en route to Beekman; two received over the Delaware & Hudson with Companies H of Binghamton, F of Walton, and G of Oneonta, all of the First Infantry, on their way to Beekman; four trains carrying Troop I and ambulance corps of Syracuse, on their way to Beekman, and one train which started from the Grand Central with 230 recruits and members of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, encamped at Beekman.

The Lackawanna Explains.

A statement was issued last night by the Lackawanna Railroad's General Passenger Agent, in which he said:

> The charge made in certain papers that the railroads are delaying the movement of troops through failure promptly to furnish equipment is, to the best of my knowledge, untrue generally and is certainly not true of the Lackawanna Railroad. This company has, since early this morning, had at Hoboken, ready for movement at a moment's notice, the entire coach, gondola, and stock car equipment necessary to move the entire Forty-seventh Regiment and will so continue, both for this regiment and any others applying for transportation.

The Seventh Regiment was entrained in Jersey City because the guardsmen were provided with wooden cars, and these are not permitted in the Pennsylvania tunnel to Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street. Three trains with a total of fifty coaches and Pullman cars for the officers were provided for the regiment.

At the offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad it was denied that there had been any delay in getting the trains made up. On the other hand, it was said that since the railroad had substituted steel for many of its older cars of wood there were plenty of the wooden cars available for the transportation of troops. These were already in the Pennsylvania Station in Jersey City, and the making up of the necessary trains was a matter of only a few hours.

Statement by the Pennsylvania.

This statement was issued by the Pennsylvania:

> Owing to the very large number of passenger cars required for the transportation of troops to the Mexican border, the Pennsylvania Railroad will, within the next few days, be compelled to withdraw temporarily a number of cars from use in the regular train service. All of the spare coaches on the railroad have already been placed at the disposal of the Government, and many more will soon be needed.
>
> In order to meet the military necessity of the Government, the Pennsylvania Railroad will probably, during the next few days, be forced to reduce the number of cars in certain of its regular trains, and possibly to annul some trains for a time, until the cars can be returned from the border.
> The management of the railroad is confident that the public will understand the causes for whatever temporary inconvenience may be endured, whether through crowding of cars or the withdrawal of trains, and will cheerfully accept the situation.

Officials of the railroads who denied that any responsibility for delays could be attached to them, thought it was only natural that there should be some demoralization in the movement of troops occasioned by sudden changes of plans. Whereas various railroads had assigned experts in each State to confer with the National Guard officers about the transportation of troops which was to have been undertaken State by State, these railroad men's advise was finally overruled and the general movement of troops begun.

It was said at the National Guard headquarters in the Municipal Building that one of the reasons for the delay in getting the guard off is the lack of equipment, which is furnished by the War Department. The guardsmen are short of rifles, ordnance properties, machine guns, and uniforms. The War Department has rifles in reserve and is supposed to have all other supplies, but the fact remains that the guard officers are working night and day in an effort to get the men properly equipped, for orders have been given by Governor Whitman that not one organization of the New York Guard shall go out of the State without complete equipment. It was said that several carloads of uniforms were expected at Camp Whitman today. Yesterday there arrived 500 mules, 500 draft horses, and 500 saddle horses from the West.

CROWDS JEER SLACKERS.

New Jersey Militiamen Who Refused Oath Stripped of Their Uniforms.

RED BANKS, N. J., June 27.—Stripped of their uniforms and sneaking up the back streets, eighteen members of Field Ambulance No. 1, who refused yesterday at Sea Girt to take the Federal mustering in oath and were drummed out of camp, came back to their homes here late last night. When the men arrived, one of them, who wore only a coat over his underwear, went into a saloon near the station. A crowd of men in there tore his coat from him and then drove him out of the saloon in a shower of beer.

After the men had refused to take the oath their officers stripped their uniforms from them, took away their equipment, and let them get home as best they could. A few had overalls, several huddled in blankets, one was clad only in his underwear and a sweater, while all were barefooted, and were without hats.

Some of the men went to the centre of the town this morning. They were greeted with cat calls and jeers.

NEW YORK CENTRAL TO PAY GUARDSMEN

Binney & Smith Co. Offers Full Salaries to Any of Its Men Who Take Any Training Course.

A dozen more employers announced yesterday that they would pay their workers in the National Guard salaries while in service.

The most important announcement, as far as numbers affected goes, was the posting of this statement by the New York Central:

> Employes who were members of the National Guard on June 17 last and who are enrolled in the U. S. Government service, or who may be serving in the National Guard in response to such call pending such enrollment, will be granted indefinite leave of absence without impairing their pension or other records with the company as they then existed. Employes may return to the service in positions as remunerative as they held at the time of the call by making application within thirty days after their release by the Government. Unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors, the following payments will be made to such employes: First, full pay for the month of June, the time to apply on the annual vacation allowance for the year; second, after July 1, to married men, full pay; to unmarried men with dependent families, one-half to full pay, according to circumstances, to be determined by the President; unmarried, without dependent families, one-half pay; maximum payment, $100 per month. The foregoing will apply to all New York Central lines except the Rutland.

Kountze Brothers, bankers, announced yesterday that their employes who are serving in the National Guard will receive their salaries while absent.

B. S. Moss, motion picture producer, said yesterday that none of his employes would lose pay or job by being with the National Guard.

> Any employe of this company wishing to enlist in the militia or National Guard or take the training course at Plattsburg or any other similar camp will receive full pay during his absence, and his position will be held for him.

The Aeolian Company announced that it would continue full salaries for all employes in the National Guard. This concern has plants in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut and selling agencies in many cities.

The Pyrene Company, with 800 persons on its payroll, gave notice yesterday that none of its employes would lose salary or place by being members of the guard.

Packard Company officials announced that it would pay the hundred or more employes of the firm who are guardsmen for the two weeks immediately following the mobilization order.

In addition to paying the salaries of its employes in the guard, the Adams-Flanigan Company, Third and Westchester Avenues, the Bronx, will give employment to any wife or dependent of a soldier. Several wives of guardsmen, it was said, have gone to work in the store.

The Sackett & Wilhelms Company, printers, announced that until Jan. 1, 1917, it would pay its employes with the colors the difference between their salaries and the Government allowance.

Following is a list of those who announced yesterday that they would pay their employes in the National Guard:

Adams-Flanigan Co.
Aeolian Co.
Binney & Smith Co.
Goodhue, B. G.
Kountze Brothers.
Moss, B. S.
N. Y. Central R. R.
Packard Co.
Pyrene Mfg Co.
Rival Shoe Co.
Sackett & Wilhelms Co
Ward's Men's Shoes, Inc.

The number of firms which have announced they will pay their employes on military duty now runs close to 500, including many of the largest employers in the city.

Antique Cars and Water Shortage No Hardship to the Regiment.

ON BOARD SEVENTY-FIRST REGIMENT TROOP TRAIN, Albany, June 27.—Happy and as care free as schoolboys, 1,200 members of the Seventy-first tonight are racing through Northern New York on their way to the border. The exuberance of the men, after a week's grilling, in their armory, is remarkable.

In nearly every car—there are forty-five of them—impromptu concerts are in progress. Here and there some expert on that easily carried instrument—the harmonica—has gathered about him the singers of the outfit and the boys are rendering some "pretty classy music," as they put it. If any of the lads have the slightest misgivings as to the future, they certainly are not permitting them to interfere with the pleasure of the moment.

The train is running in three sections, ten minutes apart. They are commanded in their order by Colonel Bates, Major Hutchinson, and Lieut. Col. Beekman. Communication between the sections is maintained in this manner:

If Colonel Bates, in the first section, desires to issue an order to Lieut. Col. Beekman, in the third section, he dictates his instructions to an orderly, who undertakes the telegraphic transmission of the orders in a rather unusual way. It is the job of the orderly to wait until the locomotive signals the approach to a station, and then fling the message, weighted to carry, to the station telegrapher as the train roars past. There is a crowd at every station to cheer the soldiers, and some one so far has always picked up the message and put it on the wires.

The officers of the regiment have lost no time in taking up the task of guarding the well-being of the men. As soon as the cars of his section had begun to move out of New York this afternoon, Lieut. Col. Beekman personally visited each coach and warned the men against littering the floors with cigarette stubs and rubbish. He told them that everything except men and equipment must go out of the window. In addition to this he stationed men at both ends of the cars to prevent the guardsmen from standing on the platforms.

At every regular stop the entire regiment is permitted to detrain for a fifteen-minute exercise hike, but orders have been issued that no man shall take advantage of a temporary halt to go off on a little expedition of his own.

To insure sanitation and keep a close watch on the men's health, the officer of the day and the surgeon will make an inspection of the train every morning. The men have already been cautioned about the scarcity of pure water in Texas, and in order to accustom them to going on a short allowance, the officers this afternoon suggested that they all begin at once to cut down on the quantity they drink.

There is another reason for the embargo on water, and that is the fact that there is mighty little of it aboard. With the exception of Pullman sleepers for the officers, the train is made up of a miscellaneous assortment of decidedly elderly smoking and day coaches. These, of course, have only the usual small tanks, plenty for drinking purposes, but hardly sufficient to wash the hands and faces of a regiment.

The problem this afternoon was to get enough water to last over night. Senior Major Walter A. Delamarter solved it by wiring the Station Master at Poughkeepsie to have fifteen one-gallon cans of water ready for the arrival of the train. The shortage of water will be felt until St. Louis is reached. There the men will be transferred to tourist cars—a Western type of coach which is fitted up for long-distance travel.

There is great rivalry between the different companies of the Seventy-first, but all admit that Company K is the star. This is probably the only company—regular army or guard—in the United States up to full war strength. Incidentally, Norman Selby, (Kid McCoy,) the pugilist, and "Nick the Greek," the Millrose A. C. long-distance runner, belong to Company K. Nick's last name is difficult to spell and impossible to pronounce correctly. It suggests hyphenism, but Nick's presence on the train doesn't.

Although he never had had any experience in the Commissary Department, Lieutenant Clyde F. Marion this afternoon took up the work so efficiently that he was commended by Lieut. Col. Beekman. At 5:45 o'clock Lieutenant Marion was ordered to prepare a dinner for the men and at 6:30 the entire regiment had dined. Considering the handicap the Commissary must work under in the cars, Lieutenant Marion's feat was no mean one.

The train is due at Buffalo at 7 A. M. tomorrow, and a stop will be made to take aboard coffee which was ordered tonight by wire from Albany.

CITY GUARDSMEN OFF FOR BORDER

The 7th, 71st, and 14th Entrain and Leave 'Mid the Cheers of Thousands.

The Seventh, Fourteenth, and Seventy-first Regiments entrained yesterday and left for the border, as gallant a set of soldiers as ever faced an enemy. Thousands of New Yorkers turned out to bid the guardsmen Godspeed and cheer them on their way. The Fourteenth could not share in the acclaim for the reason that they boarded their troop trains at Peekskill and sped westward from that point.

Along the entire line of march of the Seventh and Seventy-first the streets were thronged with men, women, and children, all cheering the khaki-clad soldiers as they swung along to the entraining points. There were both cheers and tears. Women courageously waved their handkerchiefs one moment and the next were dabbing away the tears they could not stay. To them it was already grim war.

Seventh Marches at 8:25.

The Seventh left its armory at Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue at 8:25 A. M., and exactly two hours later the Seventy-first marched out of the Thirty-fourth Street entrance of its city home in Park Avenue. Despite the early hour at which the Seventh quit its armory, the relatives and friends of officers and men were out in full force. They lined the route of the regiment to the Ninth Avenue elevated station at Fifty-ninth Street and then trailed on to the Pennsylvania Station in Jersey City, and continued their cheers and farewell messages until the last of the three specials aboard which the Seventh is bound borderward had disappeared from view.

The Seventy-first got a continuous ovation as it marched from the armory across Thirty-fourth Street to Fifth Avenue, thence north to Fifty-seventh and west to Eleventh Avenue and the New York Central yards at Sixtieth Street and the North River. Governor Whitman reviewed the regiment as it passed Fiftieth Street. Earlier in the morning he had saluted the Seventh as it passed the same point on its way to the front. He said he hoped to review every one of the New York units ordered to the front as they leave their home stations.

Reveille at 5 A. M.

The Seventh was the first of the New York regiments to get off. Reveille sounded in the armory at 5 A. M., and from that time until the guardsmen entrained there was never a moment's let-up in the hurry and bustle to get everything in readiness for the departure on schedule time. Outside the armory were assembled several thousand persons, most of them relatives or friends of men in the Seventh, waiting to hear the buglers sound the "Fall in."

It was 8:15 when the buglers sounded the assembly, and a hush fell over the throng. Ten minutes later, with Colonel Willard C. Fisk leading the way, the regiment marched out of the armory. The fife and drum corps was playing "Tipperary," and amid martial music the cheering started. The regiment marched to Fifth Avenue through Sixty-seventh Street. From the windows of every home and apartment house men and women waved American flags, while on the sidewalks others stood three and four deep and joined in the demonstration. Behind the regiment trailed the great throng who numbered in the ranks husbands, fathers, brothers, sweethearts, and friends, as well as hundreds of others who did not know anybody in the Seventh, but honored the famous old organization just the same.

In Fifth Avenue the crowds trebled in size and the send-off was turned into an ovation. From private homes and clubs and hotels came farewells. Automobiles stopped and hugged close to the curb while their passengers waved handkerchiefs and cheered. At Fifty-eighth Street the regiment headed west.

En Route to Jersey City.

Special elevated trains waited at Fifty-ninth Street, and in single file the 1,400 men marched up the narrow stairways. The entraining required less than twenty minutes. At Grand Street the regiment left the elevated trains, marching through Canal Street and across to the Desbrosses Street Ferry of the Pennsylvania. At the railroad terminal in Jersey City the three long trains were made up and waiting to start for St. Louis.

The regular ferryboats which followed the special took the great throng to whom the men of the Seventh are dear. In the Jersey City terminal they gathered in the big waiting room and said their final farewells. Here and there was a woman or a girl or a child in tears, while alongside stood a strapping guardsman in khaki trying to argue them into believing that going to the Mexican border was a mere picnic.

The loading of wagons and other equipment delayed the departure of the regiment at the scheduled hour of 11 o'clock, and it was not until 1:15 that the first of the three specials pulled out. Colonel Appleton, for more than forty years an officer of the Seventh, and during more than half that time its Colonel, walked down along the long line of coaches saying good-byes.

Every coach had its quota of vocal artists, and they were busy singing to cheer themselves and the relatives and friends outside. "It's a Long Way to Catch Carranza," sung to the tune of "Tipperary," was one of the popular songs, while the Spanish war fighting sons, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town," ran it a close second, with "The Girl I Left Behind Me," a good third.

Just before the first special pulled out about 400 relatives and friends of the soldiers were permitted on the platforms between the tracks. But confusion soon followed, and the lines had to be re-established and platforms cleared. The conductor of the first special lifted his hand at 1:15 and a second later the long train began to move. Heads poked out of every window and every hand waved good-bye. The throng in the station waved and shouted and wept. The second section got under way at 1:31, and the third at 1:35. At 1:48 the special carrying the equipment and baggage was off.

Fully 10,000 persons were gathered in the streets about the Seventy-first Regiment Armory at 9 o'clock. As the hour for the regiment to depart drew near the throng continued to augment, and the reserves from three police stations had to be called to hold them in line to prevent a charge on the armory.

The Seventy-first mustered 1,400 strong for the journey to Texas. The long wagon train had left for the Sixtieth Street yards early in the morning. The regiment was timed to leave the armory at 10:30, and on the minute it marched out.

Reviewed by the Governor.

Governor Whitman, accompanied by Captain Lorillard Spencer, his military aid, arrived at the armory at 10:20. General O'Ryan had arrived a few minutes earlier. The Governor said a few personal farewells, and when the buglers sounded the assembly he hurried off in his automobile to Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue to review the command as it passed on its way to the railway yards.

With the band leading, the regiment appeared in Thirty-fourth Street on the minute set for its departure, forming into platoons as it reached the street and heading for Fifth Avenue. The crowds packed the sidewalks and the mounted police rode up and down the lines, helping the sorely taxed policemen on foot keep the way clear for the soldiers.

The pace was a fast one, and in ten minutes after the command left its armory the head of the regiment could be seen from Governor Whitman's stand at Fiftieth Street, nearing Forty-second Street. Every store and every hotel displayed American flags in honor of the regiment, and the cheering was unbroken through the entire line of march. A group of Union League men stood in the balcony of the clubhouse, at Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, and shouted lusty farewells to Colonel Bates.

Opposite the Public Library a leather-lunged man bellowed out, "Knock 'em out, Kid." He was addressing Private Norman Selby, (Kid McCoy,) Company K, the one-time pugilist.

Governor Whitman reviewed the regiment from an automobile. He stood up as the command passed, a soldier beside him holding aloft the State flag. As each unit of the regiment was abreast the Governor's automobile the commander gave the command, "Eyes right," and the Governor responded by raising his hat.

The throng followed the regiment to the entraining point. There again were repeated affecting farewells, and scores of women, girls, and children gave way to their emotions despite the efforts of the soldiers to keep them buoyed up.

FOURTEENTH OFF FROM PEEKSKILL

STATE CAMP, PEEKSKILL, June 27.—In the glow of dawn the "Fighting Fourteenth" broke camp this morning and entrained for the border. Réveillé at 5:30 A. M. sounded like a summons to action, which found every man on his feet and ready and proud to fight if the opportunity only comes. Without the slightest confusion the regiment moved out of Peekskill toward Roa Hook, where battalion after battalion piled aboard the train of thirty-seven cars which was to carry them southward.

Determination and enthusiasm were stamped on the face of every man. With minds turned to Mexico, every soldier was anxious to see action. Only in one respect was the joy of departure marred. Many of the soldiers thought their route would carry them through New York, where they could take a final farewell of friends and relatives. When they learned, however, that they were going to Albany, and thence to Chicago, they experienced a pang of disappointment from which they quickly relieved themselves by penning hasty letters to the folks at home.

The regiment took about a half hour to entrain. It was all done in a businesslike and orderly fashion, with Colonel John H. Foote himself in command. The Colonel had apparently recovered from his recent illness, and to all appearances seemed as fit as his men to endure a long and arduous campaign.

Once entrained the men arranged themselves in sets of twos, with a compartment for each pair. These compartments will be retained by them until they reach Brownsville. With all their little belongings, such as tobacco, pipes, and stationery close at hand, they settled themselves down comfortably for a five-day journey. The route will be to Albany, to Buffalo, to Chicago, to St. Louis, to Dallas, Texas; to San Antonio, to Sinton, and thence to Brownsville.

FIRST OF THE JERSEY UNIT IS ON ITS WAY

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP FIELDER, SEA GIRT, N. J., June 27.—Necessary equipment alone is holding up the remainder of the First Brigade of the New Jersey National Guard from entraining for the border, but the tentative order tonight was for the Fifth Infantry of Paterson to leave Friday, and the Fourth Regiment of Jersey City on Saturday. With the Fifth probably will also go two troops of cavalry and a Signal Corps company. Brig. Gen. Hine and his staff will depart with the Fifth.

The last of the units ordered off yesterday got away from Sea Girt at 11:30 o'clock this morning, not quite twelve hours after the departure of Battery B, the first organization to move. As predicted by line officers last night, it was after 8 o'clock this morning before the last companies of the First Regiment stepped aboard the Jersey Central troop train. Mud, which made loading of supplies difficult, a heavy fog, the exhaustion of the men, many of whom worked for hours without food, and the Federal examination of horses were responsible for the delay.

After a conference with brigade officers this morning, Adjt. Gen. Sadler notified Major Gen. Wood at Governors Island, N. Y., that the remaining units of the brigade could entrain within twenty-four hours after the receipt of necessary supplies. The units are fit and ready, but Troops B and D of cavalry are without sufficient mounts, saddles, or mess kits, and the infantry is also in need of kits and supplies. General Wood gave Adjt. Gen. Sadler assurances that the needed supplies would be started early tomorrow. That means they should arrive by Thursday and early Friday morning, if the unofficial arrangement is then made an order, the Fifth Infantry will begin to entrain.

NEW ENGLAND TROOPS MOVING

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 27.—All day long New England and New York State troops have been passing through here. As each train pulled into the railroad yard at Rensselaer it was greeted with salvos of locomotive whistles and day fireworks.

The carloads of Massachusetts militiamen, the flower of the Commonwealth, were merry. Every car was covered with mottoes written in chalk by the soldiers. The famous Ninth, which did service in the civil and Spanish-American wars, came along early in the day. Its principal motto was "America, I Love You." Another was "We are going to Mexico. Where are you going?" and another "Watch us go through Mexico." Still others were: "Where are you going? We are after Villa's scalp," "We are all Gringoes in Dorchester," and "We'll get Carranza." On one of the gas tanks under a car was printed "Carranza comes back in this tank," on the other, "and Villa in this one."

The Vermont regiment came from Fort Ethan Allen this morning and passed west by the way of Schenectady and Binghamton, en route to San Antonio, Texas.

While the New England soldiers were passing west companies of New York State guardsmen from Northern and Central New York were being hurried south to Camp Whitman. It was estimated that fully 5,000 troops passed through Albany and Rensselaer during the day.

The Twelfth Infantry of Manhattan, which was not included in the border movement order issued by General Wood on Sunday night, was substituted yesterday for the Forty-seventh Infantry of Brooklyn, which command was among the units ordered Sunday night to proceed South.

The Forty-seventh was to have started for Brownsville, Texas, yesterday, and the regiment had reported that it was ready to depart at the word of command, when the order was issued substituting the Twelfth Regiment. The substitution was made in order to land the First Brigade of Manhattan, of which the Twelfth is a unit, at Brownsville as near the same time as possible.

The news that it was among the "lucky" units slated for early service on the Rio Grande reached the armory of the Twelfth late yesterday afternoon, and immediately there occurred a demonstration on the part of the men that approached the enthusiasm of a Thanksgiving Day football crowd. Colonel C. S. Wadsworth immediately ordered all work hurried, and it was said last night that the Twelfth might get away sometime this afternoon or tonight.

Major General O'Ryan, commanding the division, who expects to leave in person for the border this week, announced last night that orders had been issued for the Third Ambulance Company and the First Field Hospital to leave Camp Whitman at Beekman today for Brownsville.

65th Now Artillery Regiment.

General O'Ryan's most important announcement yesterday, however, did not cover the movement but dealt with the organization of units. In the course of the day he announced that the Sixty-fifth Regiment of Infantry of Buffalo had been changed from an infantry to a heavy field artillery organization, and that Captain Daniel W. Hand of the field artillery arm of the regular army, with the consent of the War Department, had been appointed Colonel of the regiment. Captain Hand has been on duty in New York for the last year as Inspector of the National Guard artillery organizations in the State. He is one of the best known of the army's younger officers.

General O'Ryan also announced that Captain Sherman Miles, U. S. A., a son of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, would be the Lieutenant Colonel of the new artillery command, and that Captain Kenneth S. Perkins and Captain R. C. Burleson, also of the field artillery arm of the regular service, had been appointed Majors. The remaining officers of the command, General O'Ryan said, would be selected by examination. This is the first National Guard heavy field artillery unit to be organized in this country. As soon as the regiment is organized and equipped, General O'Ryan said, it would be ordered to Brownsville.

Lieut. Col. Nathaniel B. Thurston, ordnance officer on the staff of General O'Ryan, was promoted to Colonel yesterday and assigned to command the Seventy-fourth Infantry of Buffalo, to succeed Colonel Charles J. Wolf, who has been placed on the retired list. The Seventy-fourth is one of the New York units which, it is expected, will shortly be ordered to Brownsville.

The Sixty-fifth Regiment will proceed at the earliest possible moment to Camp Whitman. The Sixty-ninth Infantry, now at Beekman, is also expected to receive orders to start south within the next few hours.

O'Ryan to Start Within Week.

General O'Ryan added that all units of the New York Guard would be started south as fast as transportation was available, and that within two weeks he expected to have most of the division on the border.

He said he expected to join the division in Texas within a week. Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, commanding the First Brigade of Infantry, leaves for Brownsville tomorrow. Brig. Gen. James W. Lester of Albany and his staff, it was announced last night, will leave for Brownsville today.

The camp of the First Field Artillery in Van Cortlandt Park was a busy place all yesterday and last night, the artillerymen working overtime to get the command in shape to start for the border immediately. Three batteries are under orders to start today and have been routed over the same route which the Seventh is following. The first batteries of the regiment to go will be D, E, and F. They will entrain at Sixtieth Street and the North River and will march down Broadway from the park.

It is a pleasure to see middle age with serviceable teeth. Perhaps it was the coarse, hard food of early life, the plentiful fruit with its cleansing acids that built up the bony structures. Later, intelligent care; brushing them two or three times a day; regular visits to the dentist.

Your dentist is interested in the dentifrice you use. He would like to have you try at least one tube of Albodon to see for yourself how much better it cleans. It contains the highest percentage of actual cleansing and polishing properties of any dentifrice on the market. It is sufficiently but safely antiseptic. It is a cream, not a paste. It does not melt or harden. It has no grit. It is not colored.

Try it to-day.

Albodon can be had at 25 cents a liberal tube wherever toilet articles are sold, and a free sample can be had by sending your name and address to The Albodon Company, Dept. A, 154 West 18th Street, N. Y. A postal will do.

LATIN-AMERICAN NATIONS SEEK PEACE

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—Replies are being received from the Latin-American republics, to which Foreign Secretary Aguilar recently sent messages concerning the Carrizal and Mazatlan incidents. Some of the replies offer co-operation with a view to averting, through mediation, a war between the United States and Mexico.

Reports received from Zacatecas are to the effect that Colonel Miguel Hernandez, one of the rebel chieftains, is ready with his forces to join the Carranza Army. According to information from Nacazori, Sonora, the Southern Pacific Railway line and the telephone and telegraph systems are in the hands of the de facto Government forces.

General Roberto F. Cejudo, Commander in Chief of the Zapata forces in the State of Hidalgo, has offered all the men under his command to the military commander at Vera Cruz for the service of the de facto Government. General Carranza has accepted the proffer of General Cejudo.

General Gavira, commanding the Government forces at Juarez, has returned to his post after a conference with General Carranza and Secretary of War Obregon.

The wife and daughters of General Carranza have accepted an invitation to become members of the Mexican ambulance brigade, and will give their services to the ambulances in case of need.

The students of the schools of medicines, engineering, and business, at a mass meeting held today, offered their services to the First Chief in the event of war breaking out between the United States and Mexico. After the meeting was over the students paraded through the principal streets in the neighborhood of the national palace and the residence of General Carranza. A committee was appointed later to call on the First Chief and inform him of the resolution adopted at the mass meeting. General Carranza thanked the students for their patriotic attitude, but refrained from further comment.

EL PASO POLICE ORDER DR. JORDAN TO LEAVE

EL PASO, Texas, June 27.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, sole representative of the American Union Against Militarism, was officially ordered by the police to leave El Paso this afternoon, to prevent a demonstration against him tonight. Dr. Jordan and his secretary left on the first train for Albuquerque, N. M., where, he announced, the conference would be held upon the arrival of the Mexican Commissioners.

While there had been no demonstration against him since he came to the border, there have been a number of meetings held since Monday, and today several American refugees called at his hotel and were ordered to leave by a Captain of Police who has been stationed at Dr. Jordan's room. Threats against him were heard freely in the streets, and it was necessary for a number of prominent citizens to call a meeting last night to prevent any official action being taken to order Dr. Jordan out of town.

However, when the feeling was seen to be growing today, Mayor Lea sent the Chief of Police to inform Dr. Jordan that it would be wise for him to leave on the first train. Dr. Jordan consented, after delivering an address to the University Club. Governor W. C. McDonald of New Mexico, he said, had invited him to come to hold peace meetings. He declined to say what effect the failure of Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City to join the party would have on the success of the conferences.

In his talk before the University Club Dr. Jordan declared that he was opposed to intervention if there was any way to prevent it, but added that he saw no way to prevent it.

LEAVES JORDAN CLEAR FIELD.

Walsh, Like Bryan, Will Not Participate in Peace Conference.

KANSAS CITY, June 27.—Frank P. Walsh announced here today that he would not take part in the conference at El Paso called by the American Union Against Militarism. Mr. Walsh said he had received a telegram from the War Department that any attempt at unofficial mediation might bring diplomatic complications.

DEPUTY ATTACKS COURSE.

Brazilian Legislators Hear United States Condemned.

RIO JANEIRO, June 27.—The keen interest with which Brazil is following developments of the crisis between the United States and Mexico received a new impetus today following a spirited discussion in the Chamber of Deputies during which an Opposition deputy made a bitter attack on the United States.

The discussion was opened by this deputy, who, commenting on the last note sent to Mexico by Secretary Lansing, declared he was astonished that the United States should find difficulties in accepting the explanations of Mexico while promptly accepting those of Germany in regard to the submarine war. The speaker asserted Germany was continuing its undersea campaign in violation of its promise to Washington and that the United States did not dare protest. He concluded by expressing the hope that Brazil would continue to maintain its traditions by defending the principle of the sovereignty of all countries without regard to the economic or military strength of any nation.

Deputy Souza e Dantas, who has taken Dr. Muller's place during his absence from the country, questioned in regard to the attitude of Brazil in the present crisis, said that the Government had entered into no negotiation, but, in common with all Americans, was watching the situation with the anxious hope that a peaceful solution would be found.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 27.—During the last two days there have been considerable diplomatic exchanges between the Foreign Offices of Chile, Argentina, and Brazil concerning the situation between the United States and Mexico. In official quarters the idea is held that the difficulty between the two countries will be composed without the outbreak of hostilities.

WHITMAN AT CAMP IS NOT RECOGNIZED

4,000 MORE TROOPS ARRIVE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WHITMAN, Beekman, N. Y., June 27.—Governor Whitman, the Commander in Chief of New York's National Guard, visited the camp here named in his honor late this afternoon and was not recognized by a single soldier who saw him. His presence in camp was unknown until he entered headquarters and slapped General Townsend on the back.

The Governor seemed a trifle nonplussed at first, but presently he grinned as the humor of the situation occurred to him, especially as the motor car in which he made the trip from Beacon, where he alighted from the train from New York, passed along roads crowded with army motor trucks and lined by stone fences on which tired guardsmen sought snatches of rest amid the work of hauling up equipment.

Governor Whitman's visit had been unannounced except to General Stotesbury, and even the General had not been notified of the time of the Governor's arrival. General Townsend escorted the Governor to the quarters of Colonel Lucas and his staff. Mr. Whitman went over the camp site. The arrival of two companies of the Third Regiment at the railroad station carried the Governor there, where General Stotesbury and his staff finally found him after having galloped all over the camp site looking for him.

Governor Whitman dined with the engineers' mess, with General Stotesbury and Colonel Lucas and their staff, and left camp at 8:30 o'clock in the motor car of Assemblyman Hamilton Fish, which had brought him. He was driven to Poughkeepsie, where he took a train for Albany. He expressed satisfaction at the way the camp had been organized.

8,000 Troops in Camp.

Colonel Lucas announced tonight that orders had been received commanding the First Field Hospital and the Third Ambulance Company to entrain for the border tomorrow night. They will leave over the New York Central for Chicago.

The number of troops in camp was increased today by the arrival of more than 4,000 up-State militiamen of the First, Second, and Third Regiments. There are now nearly 8,000 enlisted men in camp.

The Second Regiment, 1,760 strong, was the first to march in, under command of Colonel James M. Andrews. A march of seven miles at a rapid pace which brought the regiment to camp at the scheduled hour of 9 A. M. was too much for many of the militiamen. Thirty-five collapsed from the heat and exertion under their heavy equipment and were brought into camp by the ambulance corps.

Early in the afternoon company after company of troops came in on trains, nearly every company followed by recruits without rifles and with second-hand uniforms or none at all. One of the recruits of the Third Regiment wore a derby hat and carried no weapon except an unsheathed bayonet. Another wore a Palm Beach suit and carried no equipment.

Company I of the First Regiment, which arrived from Middletown, was the first to come into camp with both full strength and full equipment. Captain H. L. Steedman of that company made a special trip to New York a few days ago and returned with a carload of equipment of all kinds.

New Equipment Finally At Hand.

The trains carrying the Seventy-first Regiment to the border, the first section of which did not arrive at Poughkeepsie until 5:20 P. M., passed several troop trains carrying companies of the First Regiment to Camp Whitman, near Poughkeepsie, and the men of the two regiments gave cheer after cheer for each other.

The Second Battalion of the Twenty-second Engineers, the First Field Hospital, and the Third Ambulance Company of New York, all of which have been in preparation for entrainment for three days, received a great deal of new equipment today. The majority of the members of the first battalion of the engineers and the other formations who will be first to entrain got their physical examination today at the Second Field Hospital under command of Major L. H. Goss. The number of rejections had not been tabulated tonight, but it was less than 5 per cent. Major Goss said that the standard of physique was exceptionally good and that the number found under the requirements was unexpectedly low.

Each company of the State troops, as it passed down the road into Camp Whitman, was cheered again and again by those already encamped there.

Shortage of Drinking Water.

One of the heaviest tasks which fell upon the new arrivals after making camp was that of transporting water. Buckets, milk cans, and barrels were carried by hundreds to the wells and creeks from which the camp is now supplied by hand. The acuteness of the water situation led to a shortage of drinking water, although there was plenty in the creeks for other purposes.

When it was found that water could not be pumped out of the wells fast enough to supply the camp, it was taken from Fishkill Creek and another small creek and boiled or made into tea for drinking purposes. The lack of water, however, has not yet attained the condition of a real hardship, and Colonel Lucas is confident that water will begin to flow into the camps through the piping system very shortly.

Twenty men were sent home today by Colonel Conley of the Sixty-ninth. A few were sent back because of ill-health. Others who were sent home had scant means and families who would suffer. In several cases the men and their families did not seek the dismissal, but Colonel Conley refused to take them when he learned of those whose employers would do nothing for them. One man who refused to take the oath and muster into the service of the regular army was Mel Sheppard, the sprinter, who pleaded ill-health. He will be sent back to the Sixty-ninth Armory and kept busy there.

Captain J. G. Fogarty of Company I of the Sixty-ninth, who is in charge of the provost guard, discovered today that liquor was being sold in the rear of one of the soft drink stands. He and several guards smashed the bottles. He said that they held a concoction which contained about 95 per cent. alcohol.

DEMONSTRATION FOR MEXICO.

San Salvador Crowd Cheers Speech Favoring Carranza.

SAN SALVADOR, June 27.—After a meeting tonight, which was addressed by the Mexican journalist José Colado in behalf of the Mexican attitude in the controversy with the United States, a public manifestation took place in the streets of the city. Thousands of persons acclaimed Mexico, and several prominent Salvadoreans spoke in favor of the Mexicans SANTIAGO, Chile, June 27.—The Government, it is understood, has acknowledged with satisfaction the optimism shown by the Brazilian Chancellery in the matter of the controversy between the United States and Mexico. The prevailing opinion is that Chile is ready to offer her good offices in order to avert the danger of war.

20,000,000 CARTRIDGES.

Extra Force Put to Work at Philadelphia Arsenal on Rush Order.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—A small army of workmen today began to fill a rush order for 20,000,000 rounds of small ammunition at one of the Government arsenals here. The cartridges will be consigned to the Government arsenal at San Antonio, Texas.

It will require two weeks to complete the order, the normal output of the arsenal being 250,000 rounds daily. In order to fill the contract in the least possible time an extra force of mechanics has been employed and will work in day and night shifts.

BERLIN SEES A GAIN IN MEXICO CLASH

Military Organ Declares That Is Plain and Points to Allies' Attitude.

BUT THINKS WE WILL YIELD

Believes Wilson Must Find It Uncomfortable Not to Win Again by 'Bluff,' as He Did Over Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 27.—The German press as a whole continues to show the utmost reticence regarding the Mexican crisis. The first extensive comment was made this afternoon by the Taegliche Rundschau which is widely read in officers' circles. It says:

"Mexico is very far from us today. Villa and Carranza are Hecuba to us. If events there are in any way to interest us the question must first be asked and answered in the affirmative, whether there will be any possible connection of effect and countereffect between the Mexican crisis and the European war. This question is to be answered affirmatively.

"In our political decisions regarding the conduct of the war [submarine warfare] the consideration of the possibility of a still greater mobilization of force against us on the part of the United States was decisive for us, so that naturally any development must interest us which may mean strong and stronger absorption of America's strength in another direction. Such significance undoubtedly attaches to a clash with Mexico, and Wilson's thirst for action will be given matter and a goal which will so much occupy his attention that his ardor for Europe will somewhat be dampened, perhaps.

"For us today the more or less inner American side of the matter is of no account. What matters is the result on the world and the political possibilities for the immediate future. A bright light is thrown on this side by the Washington report that the Entente Allies are exerting strong pressure on Carranza in the interest of peace. Mexican developments are going against the grain of both American and London Governments, together with all their followers. Washington was so accustomed to defray its requirements in foreign policy with bluff after bluff that we can appreciate how painful it must seem for once to have to pay up in blood and money. Washington had such colossal success against the strongest military power with its policy of bluff and outboxing us with impertinent news that it is doubly painful with the same means not to succeed in the case of so much weaker a partner.

"We consider it not worth the trouble to deny the charge in the allied press that Germany is egging Mexico into war in order to prevent ammunition export to the Allies. That the profitable export of shells to France and England will suffer through the war with Mexico is, to be sure, a fact which, however, does not make us weep. We are placing just as little hope on Mexico as on Rumania, Norway, or Greece, but for Wilson and London or makers of history the whole business is apparently most uncomfortable. It is so disconcerting for them that right up to the last moment we shall continue to consider it highly probable that the conflict will be avoided by giving in on the part of the strongest of all men, Professor Wilson."

MISS PHIPPS TO BE A NURSE.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 27.—Miss Louise Phipps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phipps of New York, who made her début in Asheville last Fall, left today for New York with the avowed intention of offering her services as a nurse to the American Red Cross and taking up training for service in Mexico at once.

Miss Phipps and a number of young women of Asheville have become enthusiastic over the recent departure of National Guardsmen here for the front, and have declared their intention of offering their services as Red Cross nurses.

RECALLED FROM BERLIN.

W. Donovan of Relief Commission Returning to Join Regiment.

BERLIN, June 27, (via London.)—The effects of the Mexican crisis are being felt even here. William Donovan of the Rockefeller Commission for the Relief of Poland, who is Captain of a troop of cavalry at Buffalo, N. Y., has received word to join his regiment, which is mobilizing. Captain Donovan will leave on the first steamer.

One of the embassy staff and several other Americans in Berlin also are members of the National Guard, but Donovan is the only one recalled.

VERMONT REGIMENT ENTRAINS

Destined for Eagle Pass and Recruited to Required Strength.

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt., June 27.—The First Regiment, Vermont militia, entrained here today for the border, with Eagle Pass, Texas, probably its destination. The departure from the State concentration camp near Fort Ethan Allen was made in a pouring rain.

Officers said the command was up to the required strength.

ROOSEVELT TO OFFER TO RAISE A DIVISION

force, while the infantry and artillery will render it a dangerous factor in any fight which could possibly take place on this continent.

The aeroplanes with Roosevelt's command, it is reported, will all be high-powered machines capable of attaining the maximum speed. They will be especially attached to the three regiments of artillery in the division, but will be effective scouts and messengers on any sort of mission.

A big asset in the force, it is declared, will be the machine-gun troops, which will be equipped with these deadly weapons without number. In fact, the whole organization, it is declared, will be one which can move with extraordinary swiftness, and of a general efficiency which will make that swiftness deadly.

It is asserted here that in the engineer battalions and hospitals corps will be found some of the leading names in their profession in this country. Sanitation plans for the mobilization camp are even now worked out.

This plan, which looks to the offering of a body of 12,000 soldiers to the Government for field service, is absolutely unique in the history of the United States. Men have raised regiments and brigades, but never before has any one raised a division and more.

The equipment, in the main, is expected to come from the Government arsenals, where there are 500,000 stand of arms ready for volunteers, and such necessary things as underclothing, socks, shoes, &c. The rest—horses, aeroplanes, big guns, and machine guns—will probably, it is thought, be procured from private concerns.

The open organization of the division now waits, it is reported, only the call for volunteers. But until such a call be issued, it is pointed out, Colonel Roosevelt may not make a move. His division must of necessity be outside any State organization, and will probably form the nucleus of the first volunteer army corps to be designated.

It is not believed by Mr. Roosevelt's friends, who are informed of the scheme, that he will have any trouble with the Administration. When President Wilson issues his first summons for war, the Colonel will make his request, and it is expected it will be granted at once. Within a month after this, it is hoped, the division will be on the firing line in Mexico.

Colonel Roosevelt last night declined positively to comment in any way on the story of his contemplated volunteer division.

NO SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON.

Officials, However, Decline to Comment on Roosevelt's Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The report tonight that Colonel Roosevelt is planning to raise a division of approximately 12,000 men for service in case of war with Mexico occasioned no surprise here in view of the fact that Colonel Roosevelt and Leonard Wood, now a Major General but then a Colonel, formed a volunteer unit for service in the Spanish war, known as the Rough Riders. Inquiry at the War Department, however, developed the statement that there had been no correspondence regarding the matter there. At the White House Secretary Tumulty said he had not heard of any such offer actually having been made. When Secretary Baker was asked what foundation there was for the report he displayed more than ordinary interest, but neither confirmed nor denied it.

The statement was made in a Congressional quarter tonight that Colonel Roosevelt, as long ago as April, had written to an old friend in Philadelphia inquiring whether he would join a volunteer organization to be formed by the Colonel in the event of war with Mexico, and had written to other friends regarding the matter.

It was impossible tonight to develop the possible attitude of the Administration toward such an offer. In military circles it was pointed out that it would not be possible to accept a division or other volunteer unit unless the President should call for volunteers, and that such a call would not be made before the actual outbreak of war. To accept so large a unit of volunteers as a division, it was suggested, might have to be authorized by special legislation.

wall and near a dry hole, offering protection from bullets but not from the sun. The Captain was wounded in the shoulder. Three hundred yards to the south were Carranzistas, some mounted, some afoot, advancing, firing, yelling, emboldened by the Americans' retirement.

"When I got behind that wall," resumed Morey, "as a matter of fact I told the men I proposed to stay there. Those who wished to go I told to go."

Four men, including one wounded, elected to make a try for escape, and Morey tells how he saw them ascend a hill which stretched away to the north.

"I never saw men act so strangely," said Morey. "They didn't run or seem to exert themselves. They simply moved away, as if dazed, uphill, and by so doing probably saved us. We who remained behind the wall noticed the Carranza horsemen riding out to flank them. It was apparent that the Carranzistas had seen some of us take refuge behind the wall, and, noting four trying to escape uphill, went in pursuit, leaving us unmolested."

All Day Without Water.

With the enemy beating the country on all sides, Captain Morey and three black troopers lay in the hole or behind the wall all of that longest day without water. Night came, and with it a drop in temperature, and stars, so the wounded officer and his men started trailing west in the first relay of a seventy-mile journey to our line. Morey was so weak that he could walk only a hundred yards or so at a stretch, and as night wore on he concluded it was humanly impossible for him to go further. So he first requested, and, when they refused, ordered the three negroes to leave him.

"I reasoned," he said today, "that they could go on and I couldn't, so I made them go."

The three went, and Morey, with his wound bandaged as best he could do it, lay down in the desert and slept. The stars were still out, but dawn was touching the sky, when he awoke, strengthened by sleep. Alone, he forced himself to his feet and staggered on in the direction in which he thought lay Santo Domingo ranch, eight miles from Carrizal, and a point where the command had bivouacked the night before the fight. He traveled without compass, having given to the men who left him his compass, a telegram to his wife, and a dispatch to General Pershing.

About 4:30 o'clock in the morning the Captain reached the ranch house, which he found deserted and desolate. Manager J. T. McCabe had fled, as had the Chinese cook. Morey sprawled face downward at a mudhole near the ranch house and rinsed his parched mouth, drank sparingly, and, rejuvenated, staggered into the adobe building, where, as if by a miracle, he found beefsteak, coffee in a pot, and cornbread. He ate and gained strength and spirit. Near the ranch he found five troopers of the Tenth Cavalry, stragglers from the confused fight, and, gathering them, he prepared to march on. They found jerked beef, and stowed it in their pockets. Those who had canteens filled them, while Morey carried water in an old baking powder tin.

Learned His Lesson.

"I had learned my lesson," he said, "and determined never to be without water again."

After washing his wound and stuffing jerked beef into his first-aid kit, Morey with his men set out, headed for Rancho San Luis, thirty-five miles to the east. Ten miles were accomplished in feverish relays by moonlight. Then they encountered McCabe with a mule team near a windmill. These were a godsend. All piled into the wagon and rode to San Luis ranch, where they arrived on Saturday at midnight, and were joined by Major Robert L. Houze's squadron of the Eleventh Cavalry, which had been sent out by General Pershing to their succor.

With the squadron was a motor truck train, and in the truck Morey and his men headed for headquarters. Thirty-five miles from this camp General Pershing's aid, Lieutenant James Collins, with four autos, met the trucks, and Captain Morey was transferred to a smoother and smaller car, in which he reached here at dusk.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN PUNITIVE EXPEDITION, Mexico, June 27, (via Wireless to Columbus, N. M.)—Majors Jenkins and Howze, returning today from their relief expedition toward Carrizal, gave it as their opinion that the negro troopers of the Tenth Cavalry would have beaten the Mexicans had they not lost their officers. The death of Captain Boyd and Lieutenant Adair and the wounding of Captain Morey discouraged the soldiers, they said.

Lieutenant Adair charged through the town. He had only five men with him when he returned, but he got these safely back to the irrigation ditch before he fell.

Major Howze's command today completed upward of 1,000 miles of horseback riding since entering Mexico, and in addition has marched 350 miles in order to save the horses.

GIVES NEW DETAILS OF FIGHT.

Roberto V. Pesqueira of 1,328 Broadway sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday the following message, with the explanation that it was a translation of a dispatch he had received from the provisional Governor of the State of Chihuahua, Mexico:

"Chihuahua, Mexico, June 26, 1916.
"Roberto V. Pesqueira, 1,328 Broadway, New York:

"Your telegram regarding Carrizal battle. Official dispatches assert it was as follows: Lieut. Col. Genovevo Rivas went out to hold a conference by order of General Felix Gomez. As the American column was approaching it was warned to explain its movement, and answered that it was in pursuit of bandits who were looting nearby. In reply it was said there were no marauders, because those places were under the custody of Constitutionalist forces. Then they said they were bound to go to Villa Ahumada to catch a deserter. As this was not admitted because of the forbiddance to allow American troops to enter any city, it was answered this order was of no justification for their going to Villa Ahumada.

"Lieut. Col. Rivas reported result to General Gomez, who went out in person. Having obtained the same reply, he made a proposal to American commander in order to avert conflict between the two forces: They should stay on the ground four hours, meanwhile wiring to Juarez to ask permission to enter the city, but the American commander refused, and both chiefs retired. Americans advanced in line of tireurs and suddenly opened fire. A battle followed which lasted two hours. General Gomez was killed in the first volley. Lieut. Col. Rivas took his place, forcing the Americans to retreat. They left on the field arms, ammunition, horses, and their killed. The casualties inflicted were eleven killed and twenty-four prisoners taken."

RUMOR OF NEW FIGHT DENIED BY OFFICIALS

El Paso Hears of Encounter East of Colonia Dublan and Forty Mexican Prisoners.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, June 27.—It was rumored here today that Carranzistas and American troops had had another clash on the headwaters on the winding little Rio Santa Maria, fifty-five miles east of Colonia Dublan, on the wagon road to Carrizal, but both American and Mexican military authorities denied the story.

An American Mormon resident of Colonia Dublan arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Colonia Dublan by way of Columbus, N. M., and reported that as he was leaving Colonia Dublan at noon Monday he saw three big motor trucks rolled into the American camp with heavy guards of American soldiers on them and with forty Mexican prisoners divided among the three trucks.

The Mormon had an opportunity to talk to only one of the civilian truck drivers, he said on his arrival here. The driver had not seen the skirmish, but said he had learned from the soldiers guarding the Mexicans that it had occurred at the headwaters of the Santa Maria on Sunday, and that there had been more than 500 American troops engaged and a large force of Mexicans, the exact number of whom was not known. Only the most meagre information was given by the man, who was obliged to leave in order to take the motor truck train back to the border.

The American command, it was believed here, might have been the two squadrons of the Eleventh Cavalry which were sent out to relieve the Tenth Cavalry, which fought at Carrizal. A part of this command was said to have returned to Colonia Dublan, and the remainder was thought to have engaged the Carranza troops on the headwaters of the little desert stream.

Not only did military authorities deny the story, but reports from the expeditionary base at Columbus said no prisoners were being held at Colonia Dublan.

REPORTS 24 CAPTIVES IN CHIHUAHUA PRISON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The State Department today received direct information from the British Consul at Chihuahua City regarding the men of the Tenth Cavalry, who were captured in the Carrizal fight and sent to prison at Chihuahua City. The message follows:

"There are twenty-one privates and two sergeants of the Tenth Cavalry, and one interpreter, interned in penitentiary. Two are slightly wounded, one through the shoulder and the other by flesh wound in knee. Both recovering, and receiving medical attention. They are sufficiently fed, and well treated. They have ample room for exercise. Am assured that there is no danger for their lives."

The British Consul who made the report has been looking after American interests at Chihuahua City since the departure of Marion Letcher, the former American Consul at that place.

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—Two negro troopers, ragged and half dead from hardships, were lodged in jail at Juarez today, having been brought from Guzman, where according to report they were captured by the de facto Government troops. They were believed to be survivors of the Carrizal engagement. Neither their names nor their companies were given out by the Juarez authorities who announced the prisoners would be taken to Chihuahua City and kept with others captured at Carrizal.

General Bell said he had been informed of the presence of the negro soldiers in Juarez, but had been told they were deserters. He said he would make no inquiries but would report the matter to General Funston and await instructions.

According to Andres Garcia, Mexican Consul in El Paso, now at Juarez, there are no American negroes in jail in Juarez. He said the report that two survivors of the Carrizal clash had been jailed there might have grown from the detaining in Juarez of an apparently demented Jamaican negro whom the United States immigration authorities had turned back when he tried to cross the international bridge to El Paso.

GUARD DRAFT MIXUP WILL HALT OFFICERS

LEGAL OPINIONS ARE CITED

Only a Few Brigadier Generals, However, Will Lose Status Under Reorganization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A difficult and in some respects anomalous situation with respect to the Federalization of the National Guard has developed in connection with the prospective enactment by Congress of the Hay emergency resolution to authorize President Wilson to draft all members of the National Guard and organized militia into the military service of the United States in the present Mexican emergency.

This law not only authorizes the President to draft any or all members of the National Guard or organized militia into the Federal service, but contemplates that the President shall appoint all the officers of the guardsmen when they have once been drafted into the Federal service. The National Guardsmen are now being sent to the border from some States officered by National Guard officers, but it was made plain tonight that none of these men can be sent across the line into Mexico without violation of the Federal Constitution as construed by the Attorney General until they have been drafted into the Federal service under the terms of the Hay resolution. Nor can officers go across the frontier into Mexico in command of those troops, even the officers of the State militia who accompany the various units to the border, until they have been commissioned by the President.

The law provides that when the organizations the members of which are drafted into the Federal service are combined into tactical units the President may appoint the officers for these units. As construed in military circles and by law officers of the Government, the Hay resolution means that the President must appoint the officers who will command the various units of the State militia. Under the law he may appoint these officers for the drafted guardsmen from the regular army, or from the "members" of such organizations. This means that the President may take any members of any of the National Guard units and appoint them as officers for such organizations, when they have once become drafted into the Federal service.

It is the plan of the Administration to issue commissions to practically all the officers of the various guard organizations whose members are drafted into the Federal Service. In some instances it will be impossible to utilize the services of some of the Brigadier Generals of the National Guard units of certain States, because the regiments from these States, States which furnish less than a brigade, will be brigaded with regiments from other small States, and the excess of Brigadier Generals will have to be eliminated. The vacancies in commissioned personnel will be filled by appointment by the President of regular army officers and by promotion of National Guard officers in some instances.

Officers not above the rank of Colonel will be appointed by the President without the advice and consent of the Senate. Officers from Colonel upward in rank will be appointed by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate.

When the President's call for State troops was issued, the members of State organizations were members of the militia. In the mobilization camps they are now being transformed from militia into National Guardsmen as contemplated by the National Defense act of June 3. But in their present capacity they are, it was emphasized tonight, still National Guardsmen and not Federal soldiers, although they have been called out by the Federal Government.

Must Enter Federal Service.

Under the National Defense act they cannot become Federal soldiers until they have been drafted into the Federal service. The purpose of the Hay resolution is to authorize the drafting of the National Guardsmen into the Federal service so that they may, as Federal soldiers, be ordered across the line into Mexico in the event of war. Under the terms of the Hay Emergency resolution every man responding to the call will have to be drafted. How and when they will be drafted has not been determined by the War Department. Until they are so drafted they will not be Federal soldiers.

Never before in the history of the Government has there been any such plan of drafting adopted. In the civil war men were drafted, but mainly by lot. There was no attempt in the civil war, it was asserted tonight, to draft men by units. They were drafted as individuals. In the present situation the emergency resolution contemplates that every member of the National Guard, as well as of the militia, may be drafted into the Federal service by the President. It provides that these men and no others be drafted.

The proposed resolution was purposely worded so as to enable the President to draft both the militia as it existed before the enactment of the National Defense act and the National Guardsmen as they exist after they take the oath and sign the enlistment contract provided for by the National Defense act.

When militiamen and National Guardsmen are drafted under the terms of the pending Hay resolution they will cease to be National Guardsmen, just as they ceased to be militiamen when, by taking the oath and singing the contract in the present mobilization, they became or become National Guardsmen. As National Guardsmen they are not soldiers of the United States in the full sense of the term. The process of drafting is necessary to make them such.

In this situation, as soon as the Hay resolution passes, it will be incumbent on the War Department, acting under orders from the President, to make plans for drafting the National Guardsmen into Federal soldiers, and for the President to issue commissions to all the officers to be assigned to command the various units of soldiers so drafted.

DEADLOCK ON FAMILIES' AID.

House and Senate Conferees Split Over $50-a-Month Provision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A deadlock has developed between the Senate and House over the proposal of the lower body carried in the Hay Militia Draft bill for a Government contribution to the support of the dependent families of enlisted men of the National Guard who have been called into service because of the Mexican imbroglio.

Conferees of the two bodies disagreed over this item today, following action by the House insisting upon the contributory plan. By a vote of 119 to 5, taken without a roll call, the House instructed its conferees not to accept the Senate substitute for this provision. The Senate substitute absolves from military service married men who have families dependent upon them.

When the amended militia draft resolution came back from the Senate today Chairman Hay of the Military Affairs Committee asked for another expression from the House on its proposal to give not more than $50 a month to dependent families of the National Guardsmen. Mr. Hay had previously indicated his intention not to yield on this provision unless the House specifically instructed him to do so. When the Militia bill passed the House last week that body adopted unanimously the fifty-dollar a month provision, which was stricken out subsequently by the Senate.

The conferees will report a disagreement to their respective houses tomorrow and will ask for further instructions. The present temper of the House appears to be overwhelmingly against the Senate substitute, which would permit married men to escape duty by a declaration that their families would suffer in their absence.

URGES CUBANS TO PROTEST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, June 27.—El Heraldo de Cuba, edited by Orestes Ferrara, Speaker of the House, which has been decidedly anti-American throughout the present controversy with Mexico, reached a climax this afternoon with a long editorial, a paragraph of which reads:

"Before a happening of such magnitude all the peoples of the American world should arise as one man to protest most solemnly. And of all these nations Cuba, because of her special position geographically and internationally with respect to the United States, should have been the first to pronounce her protest against the Yankees' aggression."

The Liberal Party newspapers generally reflect similar anti-American sentiments, while the conservative newspapers, supporting President Menocal and the Government, express sympathy with the United States.

the flour was passed. It was exported by George Sauer, a leader in the German colony of the border.

More Supplies for Carranza.

Ammunition continues to be smuggled across the river. Motor trucks, automobiles, and Mexican hay carts are being used to get ammunition across to the de facto troops. This is taken as an indication that the ammunition supply in the north is short.

Eight American refugees who arrived today from Parral by way of Santa Rosalia reported the entire civilian population of Northern Mexico arming to fight the "gringos." The Americans said that well-to-do business men, professional men, as well as workingmen and peons, were receiving arms and were drilling to repel invaders. They said there were 500,000 men with arms in Mexico at present.

One of the refugees was taken to see the prisoners and he says they were being well treated but feared they would be shot. The negroes continued to wear only their underwear, their uniforms having been taken from them following the battle. They were being kept in a separate compartment of the State prison, and were receivin the same food as the Mexican prisoners. The mob which met the train upon which the prisoners were taken to Chihuahua City was composed largely of boys and women, the Americans reported, and the prisoners were not victims of any violence. This refugee reported that the military spirit had broken out all over the State of Chihuahua, and warned United States army officers not to consider too lightly the task of marching from Juarez south to the State capital, as he said there would be 30,000 troops to oppose the invading army, a majority of whom are veterans of several campaigns.

A Spanish merchant, Lorenzo Sanches, arrived today from Parral by way of Chihuahua, and reported to the American Consul here that Howard Gray, an American, had come to Parral with him and then disappeared while en route to the border, and that fears for his life were being felt by the few Americans remaining in Chihuahua.

Few trains are moving in and out of the State capital except for troops, the Americans reported, and a majority of these were going north. The Americans were not permitted to leave until it was sure that their train would pass through Villa Ahumada at night, and they were not permitted to look out of the windows and could not tell whether or not there were large bodies of troops at Villa Ahumada. The Americans who came out were T. G. Hawkins, Jr., A. W. Morris, H. W. Collins, H. A. Buick, B. O. Higley, and A. W. Hawkins.

Foreigners Not Protected.

Anti-American demonstrations continue to occur in Torreon, Gomez Palacio, and other Central Mexico cities, letters brought to the border by these Americans declare. The Mexican officials are offering no protection to the foreigners and the demonstrations were being encouraged by the officials in order to stimulate recruiting for the volunteer army which is being raised through Mexico.

Two negroes were seen being taken from the Juarez Jail to the Mexican Central Railroad Station this morning, and it is believed they were the two soldiers who were picked up by the troops of Marcelo Caraveo at Guzman and brought to Juarez last night. General Bell said this afternoon that he doubted if they were prisoners, but thought they may have been deserters picked up near Guzman.

Camp sites have been selected for the Federal Guardsmen who are now coming to the border. The largest mobilization camp will be near Fort Bliss, where 100 acres have been leased. Other troops will be camped downtown. Water connections are being made for 25,000 men. Two more batteries of 4.7 guns are coming from Fort Sill to Fort Bliss tomorrow.

ASK FUNDS TO MEET MEXICAN SITUATION

Urgent Deficiency Bill, Carrying $25,000,000, Reported to House by Committee.

GUARD EXPENSES INCLUDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—An Urgent Deficiency Appropriation bill carrying more than $25,000,000 to cover the cost of mobilizing the National Guard and to meet extraordinary expenses of the army in Mexico was reported to the House today by the Appropriations Committee. Chairman Fitzgerald expects to put the bill through the House tomorrow.

Deficiency appropriations of $8,025,965 for horses, $9,983,213 for transportation, $3,791,000 for clothing, camp and garrison equipage and $1,648,000 for pay of the National Guard, all under the Quartermaster Corps, constitute the bulk of the emergency demands.

The sum of $250,000 for the Signal Service of the army and $60,000 for radio installations on the border are included in the bill. Brigadier General George P. Scriven told the House Committee that "we are in terrible need of money for radio tractors, trucks, field wire, telegraph poles, and miscellaneous expenses."

When Chairman Fitzgerald suggested that the Army Appropriation bill carried nearly $4,000,000 for the Signal Service, General Scriven replied: "That is merely for aviation. I should like to show you the situation on the border and the small amount of money we are trying to get along with."

General Scriven then indicated on a map the lines of communication to General Pershing's position, and intimated that the communication with General Pershing was not as complete as it should be. He added:

"We have to have tractor service. They gave us $300,000 for the Signal Service and then $100,000 in March, in addition. We have left a balance of only $893. There is pressing need for additional money at once. We have spent $180,000 since March 11, and now we are asking for this additional money to carry on absolutely necessary communications on the border."

General Scriven said it would take several months to install the radio sets at Fort McIntosh, Fort Bliss, and Fort Huachuaca, (Arizona,) which are intended for permanent stations.

"The idea is to get wireless across the continent and along the border," he explained. "With the 300-mile radios they can pick up the smaller wagon sets, and it will give a pretty complete chain across the Gulf and to the station at San Diego. I think we can get the Fort Bliss set installed in two or three months. We have the material down there. I am afraid it will take six months to install the others."

The $1,648,000 appropriation for pay of the National Guard is to provide for compensation to the guardsmen from the time they were called out up to July 1, when the new fiscal year begins. More than half of the present emergency appropriation is necessary because of the mobilization, transportation, and equipment of the National Guard.

Brigadier General H. G. Sharpe, Acting Quartermaster General, told the committee that bids had just been opened for 28,000 horses and 43,000 mules.

Among the items carried in the Deficiency bill are:

Quartermaster Corps — Subsistence, $623,000; mileage of officers, $50,000; regular supplies, $105,410; incidental expenses, $57,000; barracks and quarters, $85,000; water and sewers, $70,000; construction and repair of hospitals, $100,000.

Engineering Department — Engineer equipment of troops, depots, civilian assistants, and field operations, $820,000.

Adjutant General's Office, $6,000.

In addition to these emergency items for the army, the Deficiency bill carries $326,000 for the naval establishment. Most of this is required because of the unexpected naval operations in Haitian and Mexican waters, the appropriations being given as follows: Medical department, $55,000; transportation of remains, $6,000; provisions, military stores, and contingent for the marine corps, $265,000.

Included in the Urgent Deficiency bill were estimates aggregating $18,777,259, which President Wilson approved this morning and which reached the House Military Committee shortly before the measure was reported. Among the items included were:

For expenses of recruiting in connection with mobilization of National Guard, $45,000.

For procurement of 112 additional motor trucks, (four companies,) repair parts for trucks, motor cycles, automobiles for use with truck companies, and tractors for road work, $319,279.41.

Supplies to complete equipment of National Guard, such as halters, halter parts, stable forks, stable brooms, harness for division trains, &c., $48,000.

Purchase of 20,167 draught and pack mules to complete equipment of National Guard and for forming division ammunition and supply trains, $4,002,000.

Transportation of troops (National Guard) from mobilization camps to border, $2,380,000.

To complete equipment of the National Guard, 126.372 men, at $30 each, to be available for disbursement in 1916 and 1917, $3,791,160.

For purchase of 42,595 cavalry and artillery and riding horses, $7,864,650.

For rental of storehouses and camp sites, $35,000.

For camp and evacuation hospitals now under construction, $100,000.

The Mexican crisis is expediting the military preparation program of the Government all along the line. Every measure relating in any way to military preparation is being hastened. The Army Appropriation bill, which passed the House yesterday, with an increase of $23,000,000 in appropriations for the regular military establishment and its affiliations, will be taken up promptly for consideration by the Senate Military Committee. The Naval Appropriation bill, which is to carry a total of $304,000,000, is almost ready to be reported to the Senate.

The Senate today hastened its consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill in order to hurry along the adoption of its provision for the appropriation of $500,000 for the establishment of a Government powder plant. The Senate debated this project at length. Support came mainly from the group of progressive Senators who have denounced the so-called exactions of the "private monopoly engaged in supplying powder to the Government."

Senator Norris of Nebraska said that the small powder plant established some years ago for the army, and the somewhat larger one conducted by the Navy Department, had served to reduce very materially the price to the Government of the powder that had been purchased during the last ten years. The proposed powder plant, he argued, was in line with the nitrate plant which had been authorized to be started by the Government as a "conservation" enterprise, and should be located near it, in order that the output of nitrates might be available for the powder plant.

Senator La Follette called attention to statements of General Crozier, Chief of Ordnance of the army, in the hearings before the House Military Committee, in which he said the price of powder in Government contracts hovered around 80 cents, whereas the Government had been able to manufacture it at from 30 to 40 cents. He said the Government had paid out enormous profits to the "powder monopoly" in the last twenty years, and the time had come to "protect the country" by establishing a Government plant.

Senator Poindexter said he supported the measure heartily as one of great importance in the preparedness policy of the Government, but urged that consideration be given to the needs of the Pacific Coast, which, in the present outlook on international questions, had "a peculiarly acute interest" in national defense. He hoped that the proposed nitrate plant might be located there, utilizing some one of the excellent water powers available, and a powder plant be placed near it to use its output.

The appropriation of $500,000 for the powder plant went through without opposition.

CARRY A PLEA TO WILSON.

A resolution asking President Wilson to submit the trouble with Mexico to a board of arbitration was taken last evening to be presented to him personally by a committee composed of Mrs. Amos Pinchot, ex-President of the Women's Peace Society; Alfred J. Boulton, Secretary of the Central Federated Union; Irving Fisher, Professor of Economics, Yale University, and Professor Harry Allen Overstreet. The committee left New York for Washington on a midnight train.

The resolution had been passed earlier in the evening at a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Civic Club at the Hotel le Marquis, 12 East Thirty-first Street.

Arbitration of the Mexican difficulties was asked in the resolution "in the spirit of the treaty between the United States and Mexico of 1848, that the treaties of the United States should not become scraps of paper."

There was enthusiastic applause when these words were read. Professor Overstreet presided. Lincoln Steffens told of the conditions in Mexico.

"We are the cause of all the trouble in Mexico," he said; "we and our kind from other countries. It was the Americans, acting through Villa, who got the bandits to go over the American border to kill a few Americans if necessary to start trouble that would eventually lead to war and American protection of their interests in Mexico."

Luis Bossero, who was connected with the Carranza Administration, talked from the Mexican point of view; Mr. Boulton, Allan Benson, Socialist candidate for the Presidency, and Dr. Sidney L. Gulick of the Federated Council of Churches in America, were other speakers. It was Amos Pinchot, who, referring to the treaty of 1848 with Mexico, asked: "Is this a scrap of paper?"

"There is one thing about this Mexican trouble," said Professor Fisher. "I think it has been a desire of President Wilson to assist in the arbitration with the countries at war in Europe. If we do that we must have clean hands. If we go to war with Mexico we will never be able to enter into peace arbitrations with any other countries."

"America has not one one-hundredth the right to go to war with Mexico that Austria had to go to war with Serbia," said the Rev. John Haines Holmes. Howard Kyle also spoke to the resolution.

Among those present were Mrs. May Wright Sewall, President of the National Council of Women; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Miss Sadie American, Frederic C. Howe, and Winthrop Lane.

UP-STATE CITIES GIVE 3 BASE HOSPITALS

10,000 NURSES READY TO GO

Edward A. Moree, director of the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, who had just returned from a tour of up-State cities, including Buffalo, Rochester, and Syracuse, asserted at the Red Cross campaign headquarters here yesterday that each of these cities had donated a 500-bed base hospital to the Red Cross to be delivered in case of hostilities in Mexico. He said that he found most of the up-State cities he visited armed camps, and that of Buffalo had troops camped in the main street from one end of the city to the other, awaiting the order to move.

"The support which has been given the Red Cross has been very remarkable," Mr. Moree stated, "but that does not mean that there is not room for a far greater interest on the part of the nation at large. Although we are receiving donation after donation there is still a great deal to be done, and I know that the people realize this. Many thus far have shown their patriotism by their generosity in giving their time and their money to the cause of American war relief.

"But there is one thing that must be said. There are 10,000 nurses trained and efficient who would leave for the border at a moment's notice if war were declared. These are real Red Cross nurses. If the women so generously giving their time to training here show the required proficiency they may be called on, but if a war is declared only those with superlative skill in treating wounded will be asked to serve. I have the authority of Dr. George David Stewart, director of the Bellevue base hospital, for this statement. Women who have taken a three-year course in nursing, who have been graduated from a nurses' training school, alone are qualified to become nurses' aids. An army hospital requires the highest possible technique and training of its personnel."

Many New Members Added.

It was announced yesterday that the lawyers' membership campaign, headed by Joseph H. Choate, had succeeded in enlisting 300 lawyers as members of the Red Cross. Dr. George D. Stewart, head of the Bellevue Doctors' Committee for Membership, reported that at his solicitation 150 physicians had become members of the Red Cross in the last few days. An average donation of $4 was received from the professional men. The reports of the City Employes' Campaign for membership showed that 52 members had been recruited at the Blackwell's Island Home for the Aged. Some of the inmates of the home, too, donated their dollar to the cause of American military relief.

Though no contributions to the base hospital fund were received on Monday, Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, who, with Mrs. Leonard Wood, wife of the Commandant of the Department of the East, is in charge of the Red Cross station at 411 Fifth Avenue, announced yesterday that three donations aggregating $1,200 had been received from Mrs. Charles D. Dickey, who donated a check for $1,000; her daughter, Mrs. Florence Freeman, who gave $100, and her sister, Mrs. Blodgett, who gave $100.

Women Work Overtime.

The women workers at the Fifth Avenue station worked overtime last night in the preparation of an order for samples of surgical dressings requisitioned from Washington to be sent as patterns to the various new Red Cross stations throughout the country. This order was considered a distinct compliment to the women's efficiency in rolling, cutting, and sewing the dressings.

An effort is to be made, Mrs. Tiffany said, to secure donations of funds for camp kitchens for the National Guard, as well as a quantity of mosquito netting. Mrs. Tiffany also said that yesterday's recruiting of members at the station was the largest since the European war commenced, being a total of 117 members. Only ten women worked on the dressings to be sent to Europe at the Fifth Avenue station yesterday, while more than 100 were busy with supplies for the border.

"The nation should be impressed with the fact that the Red Cross is not what it was at the time of the war with Spain," said Mrs. Tiffany. "We don't know what we are going to be asked to do tomorrow, but we are ready, I am sure. I know, furthermore, that there are many people who are going to spend their Summer in New York if the Mexican situation develops into war."

An important meeting will be held today at the Manhattan Hotel, where the various committees of the local chapter will meet and the plans for the mobilization of the units will be decided upon. The committees will take up the questions of the organization of field columns and ambulance corps.

HALF A MILLION DEMANDED.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKPORT, Texas, June 27.—Eighty-eight American refugees who were brought to Port Aransas from Tampico yesterday on the yacht Casiano were released from quarantine here today. About seventy-five of the party are employes of the Mexican Petroleum Company and its subsidiary, the Huasteca Petroleum Company.

According to the refugees, the Carranza authorities at Tampico have made formal demand on W. H. Green, Acting Superintendent of the Huasteca Petroleum Company, for a sum equivalent to $500,000. This money was ostensibly to be used for the protection of the company's oil wells and pipe lines. Mr. Green, according to the refugees, refused to accede to the demand, and was threatened with imprisonment unless the money was paid over.

CAN'T SPECULATE IN ARMY SUPPLIES

Government Will Prosecute Dealers Who Boost Food Prices on Its Purchases.

FEDERAL AGENTS WATCHING

The strictest guard is being kept to prevent food speculation and combination of dealers to force high prices at the time when the Commissary Department of the army gets into the market. The same guard is being used against speculation in all supplies the army needs. Agents of the Department of Justice in New York, as well as those in all parts of the country, were notified yesterday from Washington to make immediate reports on all evidences of supplies speculation, and the Department of Justice intends to prosecute these cases.

It was announced from Washington that several reports of attempted speculation had been received and turned over to the Attorney General of the States. It was said at the city office of the New York Attorney General that no such complaints had been received there.

Just what opportunity there is for extra profit was shown yesterday, when Colonel A. L. Smith, Depot Quartermaster at New York, closed an order for 2,000 motor transports for service on the border. Last week he closed an order for 2,000; and today the Department will advertise for bids on 400 passenger automobiles to go to the border. The price of the motor trucks varies from $2,400 to $3,300, so that since the mobilization order the War Department has invested more than $10,000,000 in motor trucks.

Although the War Department hasn't yet gone into the market for food supplies, it expects to be imposed upon. It has not yet purchased food supplies specifically for the guardsmen on the way to the border for the reason that for several months the department has been quietly storing up supplies along the Rio Grande until it now has enough in the depots to last 100,000 men for a month.

One staple of camp fare is higher than ever before—beans. The kind of beans the soldier eats were quoted on the Produce Exchange at from $8.50 a hundred pounds up. A year ago they were $7 a hundred pounds, and since the mobilization order there has been a rise estimated at about 50 cents a hundred. Dealers denied yesterday that the price had gone up because of the expected demand of the army. It was said that the scarcity of the supply kept the price going up. Referring to the question of prices, Colonel Smith said:

"Of course other reasons are given, but the price goes up when it looks as if the Government is ready to buy much of a commodity. It was so at the begining of the Spanish-American war, and there seems no way to stop it.

"I believe the plan put forward by some New Yorkers for the establishments of an exchange of all the large dealers in supplies is the best in sight. I would much like to see Congress designate such an organization as the source of our supplies, and I have faith enough in the patriotism of the American business man to believe that the Government would not lose.

"Under the present system the Government agent goes around to dealers in a commodity he wants and asks each for a price. It is whispered about and up goes the price. But with an exchange of large dealers, under a heavy bond to keep the rules, filling the Government's orders from reserves of all of the members would protect both the army and the public."

Officials of the National Guard, who have been purchasing supplies for Camp Whitman and the guardsmen at Van Cortlandt Park, say that the prices for food are higher than ever before, but that there had not been any effort to impose on them.

AID FOR THOSE LEFT BEHIND

Women Work to Bring Together the Needy and Those Willing to Help.

Cases to relieve and offers of help are coming in constantly to the Women's Supply Committee of the American Defense Society, 303 Fifth Avenue.

One of the families which will need help is that of a band leader who leaves behind him a wife and nine children. The oldest child is 16 and blind, and the next is only 12. The father receives $40 a month as band leader, but that will not support his family.

Another man leaves behind an old mother who is entirely dependent, and the family of a man who leaves a wife and child, the latter recovering from typhoid fever, can get along, it is thought, with a little aid for the child until it recovers. A Captain of the Twelfth Infantry has recommended this case.

A woman from Rye will take into her home some woman who can do light work, washing dishes and answering the bell, and will pay her what she would pay a maid.

ALL the world recognizes the Pianola as the greatest of Player-Pianos.

THE popularity of the Pianola is more than local—more than national. It is international and world-wide. Even in these war times, the Pianola is being sold in Madrid, London, Paris, Berlin, Petrograd, in Melbourne and Sydney, Australia—in every great center of the Eastern hemisphere. In Canada, in our own great cities and throughout the Americas, it is, as a matter of course, the supreme instrument of its type.

The wonderful inventive genius that brought the Pianola first to perfection and has maintained it ever in the lead, has manifested itself in many such remarkable and basic devices as the Metrostyle and the Themodist. Yet these two revolutionary expression devices are alone sufficient to banish to the realms of the unfinished—the incomplete—every other player instrument the world markets know.

Do not let your judgment of the Pianola be influenced by other players you have seen.

You must hear and play the Pianola to realize what a wonderful and artistic instrument it has become—what broad, almost unlimited, powers of musical expression it provides. We invite you to come in for a demonstration at any convenient time.

DENOUNCE CONGRESS FOR DEFENSE DELAY

Universal Training and Use of Every Force, Public and Private, to Upbuild Navy, Urged.

SEE 'PORK' IN MOBILIZATION

Representatives of twenty organizations concerned with national preparedness met at luncheon at the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway, yesterday, and adopted resolutions demanding universal military service and the use of every facility of the United States, public and private, for the immediate upbuilding of the navy till it shall stand first in the Pacific and second in the Atlantic. The resolutions follow:

We, the representatives of various national defense organizations, deem it our duty to give public expression to certain vitally important facts and principles which in our judgment should control the conduct of every American citizen in the present crisis.

1. For the men of the National Guard who are offering to their country the fullest measure of devotion we entertain sentiments of grateful admiration. Nevertheless, the solemn fact remains that the system of national defense embodied in the Army Reorganization bill recently signed by the President is in certain essentials unsound in principle and is wholly inadequate for national security.

2. The increase of the Regular Army contemplated by the Army Reorganization bill is chiefly an increase on paper, and is one which cannot become fully effective for five years. The bill creates the impression that the Regular Army is now a force of 178,000 men. As a matter of fact the total mobile regular force is not likely to exceed 50,000 during the coming year. Since this measure became a law the increase has amounted to a few thousand only.

3. Such is the unpreparedness of the citizen-soldiers who are now being mobilized for service on the Mexican border that the Government which sends them and the nation which permits them to be sent into the field without sufficient training and equipment cannot escape the charge of blood-guiltiness.

Oath Criticised.

4. The oath of allegiance simultaneously to the nation and to the individual State which is now being exacted of the young men of the National Guard under the stress of moral compulsion is a divided obligation which no citizen of the United States should be asked to assume. What is needed in the present emergency is an oath of undivided allegiance to the Union, and an adequate force of Federal volunteers who owe no allegiance other than to our common country.

5. No permanent military policy will suffice for the United States except a system of universal military training, under which every able-bodied man serves a prescribed period with the colors. We therefore urge that no plan for universal military service be adopted unless sanctioned by the General Staff of the United States Army.

6. We demand that the navy, as the first line of defense, shall be restored at the earliest possible moment to the first rank in the Pacific and the second in the Atlantic; and that dreadnoughts and battle cruisers, with the necessary auxiliaries, including air craft, scouts, destroyers, and sea-going submarines, be laid down at once to the full capacity of the building facilities of the United States, both public and private.

7. We demand that working plans for the mobilization of our national industries and transportation be formulated at once, and that congressional action be taken to carry them into effect.

The representatives of the different patriotic bodies here present urge concerted action by their respective organizations in order to secure the necessary legislation, irrespective of party or politics, to carry the above recommendations into effect, to the end that national defense may be established upon a solid basis worthy of our position as a world Power.

The Military Pork Barrel.

The luncheon was held at the invitation of the National Security League to discuss the failure of Congress to provide proper defense measures.

Some of those who spoke were Mayor Mitchel, ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham, Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young, retired; General George W. Wingate, George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, Alan R. Hawley of the Aero Club, Professor William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan, Henry A. Wise Wood, Edward Rush Duer, and S. Stanwood Menken. Robert Bacon presided.

There was sharp criticism of Congress and equally sharp criticism of the National Guard. A special point, however, was made of praising the unselfishness and patriotism of the rank and file of the guard, who were spoken of several times as having been misrepresented by an inner circle of higher officers.

Frederic L. Huidekoper of Washington, author of a book on preparedness, said a "lobby of Adjutant Generals" had been at work in Washington to put through legislation favorable to the militia. "The disgraces of the Spanish war," he said, "threaten to be repeated. At this moment—and you can make the statement and attach my name to it—there is going on in Washington the same confusion that came at the beginning of that war.

"The general officers have approved certain spots for mobilization; certain supplies and horses, &c., have been arranged for. There are also in Washington certain Congressmen and Senators who have influence enough to be able to say: 'I don't like the location of that camp; it's got to be changed.' And the general officers are beside themselves at the present moment on account of the necessity of rerouting soldiers, supplies, or horses to suit the political pork barrel."

For Universal Service.

Mayor Mitchel came out unqualifiedly for universal training. After giving some scathing criticism of the Hay bill, which, he said, would have left us better off if it had failed of passage, the Mayor continued:

I don't suppose anything could more clearly demonstrate the present prostrate condition of this country than what is going on in this city and in this State, and in other States today, where we see the men of the National Guard called to the concentration camps. These fellows, the finest in the country, are responding, only to find when they go out that they are without equipment, without horses, and without the facilities for a successful campaign.

I want to say that the Government that sends these young men, unequipped as they are, down to Mexico, with any expectation that they will accomplish results, is exposing them to the same risk and jeopardy that the first force that went from England was exposed to, and if something of the same kind happens, we have only the American people and them to thank for it.

The most important thing, to my mind, is to call for organization throughout the country to secure from Congress adequate legislation, and, if need be, to secure a Congress that will enact adequate legislation. Just as the pacifism and indifference of the sitting Congress is non-partisan, so the movement to obtain a Congress that will enact adequate legislation ought to be non-partisan. We don't care—I don't, at all events—whether the men who go there pledged to real defensive legislation are Democrats, Republicans, Progressives, or what you will. [Great applause.] I firmly believe the situation that this country faces and the greater situation that eventually it will face in the future transcends all parties and party considerations; that it is the future of the American Republic that is at stake, and men can decide that question, irrespective of party.

Prominent Persons There.

Among those who attended were Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; James Speyer, George Gordon Battle, Oscar S. Straus, Charles G. Curtis, C. R. Corning, Dr. S. W. Stratton, Director United States Bureau of Standards; Peter Cooper Hewitt, Franklin Q. Brown, William C. Church, Ralph D. Mershon, Chase Mellen, Karl H. Behr, G. Creighton Webb, Mrs. A. J. George, Mrs. Linden W. Bates, Miss Maude Wetmore, Herbert L. Satterlee, Dr. H. S. Drinker, President of Lehigh University; Captain Arthur F. Cosby, and Elmer R. Sperry.

THREE STEAMERS SUNK IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

French, British and Japanese Vessels Destroyed—Ship With Passengers Cannonaded by U-Boat.

MARSEILLES, June 27.—The French steamer Fournel and the English steamer Cardiff have been sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean. The French steamer Ville de Madrid, with fifty-two passengers on board, was pursued and cannonaded by a submarine, but escaped.

MADRID, June 27.—The Japanese steamer Daiyetsu Maru has been sunk by a submarine off Barcelona. Forty-one of her crew were picked up.

The Fournel was a vessel of 2,047 tons, built in Glasgow in 1880. There are two British steamers named the Cardiff, one of 2,808 tons and the other a trawler. The larger boat has been engaged in the transatlantic trade, and was last reported on her way to Sydney, C. B.

U-35 SINKS ENEMY'S SHIPS.

Rear Admiral Degouy Blames Spain for Aiding German Craft.

PARIS, June 27.—Rear Admiral Degouy, retired, writes to the newspapers that the German submarine U-35, which recently took a letter from Emperor William to King Alfonso, has since sunk a number of French, British, and Japanese steamships.

He asserts an investigation should be made as to the right of the Spanish authorities to welcome the submarine at Cartagena and deliver supplies to it when it was on the eve of making raids on shipping.

STRAFFES NORTHCLIFFE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, June 27, (Dispatch to The London Daily Mail.)—In the course of an abusive article on Lord Northcliffe, who is described as the real ruler of England, the official Cologne Gazette publishes the following example of hate literature:

"Among those who are guilty of involving Europe in its bath of blood Lord Northcliffe is perhaps the guiltiest of all. He is the head and the incorporation of that great Anglo-Saxon scheme of world deception that includes England and America, and against which German strength and the German mind are fighting unceasingly—the deception that everything in the world is business and that everything can be done in the name of business.

"If the Judge of the World on the last day calls the guilty to judgment a pardoning Christ will say to both Asquith and Lloyd George: 'Father forgive them for they know not what they did.' But he will be obliged to turn his eyes away from Lord Northcliffe alone."

UNABLE TO GIVE SHIP TO HELP SHACKLETON

BUENOS AIRES, June 27.—Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton, whose efforts to rescue the main body of his Antarctic expedition left on Elephant Island proved futile when the steamer furnished by the Uruguayan Government met adverse ice conditions, has requested the dispatch to Elephant Island of the Argentine Antarctic steamer Uruguay. It was the Uruguay which rescued the Swedish expedition in 1903.

The Minister of Marine states, however, that it is impossible to send the Uruguay to rescue the Shackleton party because she is not in serviceable condition.

No other suitable vessel in Argentina is available for the work and it is feared here that the chances of rescuing the stranded party this season are slim.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 27.—In a dispatch to the British Minister here reporting his return to Port Stanley, after having failed, because of heavy ice conditions, to effect the rescue of the main body of his Antarctic expedition, left on Elephant Island, Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton extended thanks to the Uruguayan Government, which placed a vessel at his disposal for the purpose. The explorer's message says:

"Please convey to the Uruguayan Government my earnest thanks for their services in the atempted rescue, and of my high appreciation of the valiant efforts made by Commander Elichirbehety and his officers, who reluctantly turned back in deference to my ice experience."

CALLS CASEMENT INDICTMENT FAULTY

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

LONDON, June 27.—After several witnesses had testified today and been cross-examined by Alexander Sullivan, chief counsel for the defense, the prosecution in the trial of Sir Roger Casement for high treason suddenly rested its case shortly after the luncheon recess, and the Attorney General announced that he had no statement to make.

Mr. Sullivan immediately began an address in an attempt to have the indictment quashed. His argument was highly technical, being an effort to show that the alleged treasonable acts were committed outside British realms and could not be tried in Great Britain.

As Mr. Sullivan proceeded it became increasingly evident that the defense attached the greatest importance to the attempt to show the indictment was faulty, inasmuch as it charged Sir Roger committed treason "by adhering to the King's enemies elsewhere than in the King's realms." For more than two hours Mr. Sullivan argued the matter from every angle, citing numerous cases, some of which were very ancient, which he declared tended to show no man could be tried for treason committed outside the King's realm.

At many points the three justices entered into dissertations on the questions raised. When the court adjourned Mr. Sullivan had not completed his argument, which will be continued tomorrow.

The second day of the trial opened with no change in the apathetic attitude with which the general public regards the case. The spectators of the trial, besides members of the bar, consist mostly of retired theatrical stars and men about town who have no useful task to do elsewhere.

The prosecution resumed the introduction of testimony immediately the court opened. The witnesses were the same as those called at the preliminary hearings at the Bow Street Police Court, and few new points were brought out. Witnesses gave accounts of the movements of Sir Roger and his companions, Captain Robert Monteith and Daniel J. Bailey, from the time of their landing on the evening of Good Friday in a boat from the German submarine near Tralee until the arrest of Sir Roger.

John McCarthy, an Irish farmer, described finding the boat in which the three men were said to have landed, and told of discovering buried on the beach two handbags containing revolvers and ammunition.

Mary Gorman, a servant girl, identified Sir Roger as one of three men she met hurrying away from the beach early Friday morning.

She was followed by Thomas Hearn, a Sergeant in the Irish Constaublary, who told of tracing Sir Roger to the ruined fort in the vicinity of which he arrested him. Sergeant Hearn identified revolvers, maps of Ireland, and a flag of the revolutionists which were found in a handbag. There was a stir in the courtroom as the big green emblem of the rebels was spread out in the centre of the room, and all eyes turned toward the prisoner. He shifted uneasily in his seat and then leaned back with folded arms, smiling nervously as he gazed at the flag.

Mr. Sullivan cross-examined the police witnesses at length in regard to the general unrest in Ireland, and brought out the fact that the people of the south were arming themselves against those of the north and against conscription, and that after the Curragh incident, when the military refused to serve against Ulster, the southerners felt they could not trust the soldiers to protect them against the Ulster volunteers.

One police witness said that although the carrying of arms and drilling went on unhampered by the authorities, the landing of arms would have had a very grave effect.

COMPLAINS OF GARBLING.

British Official Says News Dis-Dispatches Were Changed Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, June 28.—The Daily Mail says this morning:

"In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Ainsworth asked the Home Secretary if the censor had passed a telegram which appeared in The New York American from the London correspondent of the International News Service, stating that the Admiralty had admitted an overwhelming defeat by a portion of the German high seas fleet.

"Mr. Samuel replied that the passage in question was not included in any telegram sent from this country, but was composed in the New York office of the International News Service with the exception of the word 'overwhelming,' which was inserted in the office of The New York American.

"There were several similar cases at the time of the disturbances in Ireland at the end of April, but the London representative of the agency had now given assurance that no such manipulation of his messages should occur again."

The Times publishes the text of Mr. Samuel's written answer to Mr. Ainsworth. Referring to the Irish messages, he says:

"There were several cases at the time of the disturbances in Ireland at the end of April in which messages, appearing in The New York American and The New York Journal, which purported to be from the London correspondent of the International News Services, bore no likeness to the cablegrams actually dispatched, and in some instances gave information which was the opposite of that which had been sent to the press.

EARL OF DEVONSHIRE CANADA'S NEW VICEROY

Official Announcement in London that He Will Succeed the Duke of Connaught.

LONDON, June 27.—Official announcement was made today that the Duke of Connaught will be succeeded as Governor General of Canada by the Duke of Devonshire.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 27.—The appointment of the Duke of Devonshire as Governor General of Canada in succession to the Duke of Connaught has given a good deal of gratification in official circles. Before the appointment was made the Government here was consulted and asked to offer suggestions. The name of the Duke of Devonshire was suggested first, and today notification was received by the Government from Bonar Law that the suggestion had been adopted and that the Duke had expressed himself as delighted to come to Canada.

Commenting upon the appointment, the following announcement was made here today.

"The Government views with much satisfaction the announcement by the Secretary for the Colonies that the Duke of Devonshire will succeed his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught as Governor General of this Dominion."

The Duchess of Devonshire, who is a daughter of the Earl of Lansdowne, is well known to many Canadians and is very poular.

Known as one of the richest peers in England, the Duke of Devonshire is an intimate friend of King George, while the Duchess, who was Lady Evelyn Emily Fitzmaurice, daughter of the fifth Marquis of Landsdowne, is also said to be Queen Mary's closest friend. She received the appointment of Mistress of the Robes in 1910, while the Duke, during 1900-3, was Treasurer of his Majesty's household.

The Duke, who is the ninth Duke of Devonshire, is in his forty-ninth year and succeeded his uncle, the eighth Duke, in 1908. He was educated at Eton and Cambridge University and during 1891-08, was Member of Parliament from West Derbyshire. At the termination of his connection with his Majesty's household, the Duke was appointed Financial Secretary to the Treasury and served for two years. He is Lord Lieutenant of Derbyshire and Chancellor of Leeds University.

The Duke, who is said to be very democratic, owns an estate of about 186 acres, on which are valuable mineral deposits. In addition to owning the famous Devonshire House in London, he has five estates, at which there are three picture galleries, a statue gallery, and an immense library.

WANT AMERICAN MACHINERY

Swiss Decide to Buy Here Instead of in Germany.

BERNE, Switzerland, June 27, (via Paris.)—Swiss industries using machinery have taken united action for the purchase of supplies from machinery and tool firms in the United States instead of from Germany, as formerly.

The action of the Swiss manufacturers was the result of a continued rise in German prices and the presentation of new claims for payment in French francs instead of in the German mark at a low exchange rate.

Negotiations in this connection have been opened with American Consuls in Switzerland.

CLOUDBURST HITS ROOKIES IN CAMP

Tents Carried Away and Men Have to Sleep on Wet Ground Under Soaked Blankets.

FIRST BATTLE IS FOUGHT

Enemy Patrols Captured at Corbeau Creek and the Remaining Force Dislodged from Position.

Special to The New York Times.

SCIOTA, N. Y., June 27, (by Courier to Plattsburg.)—A miniature cloudburst tonight struck the camp of the Third Plattsburg Training Regiment, which is on a six-day hike. It carried away some of the tents, soaked the belongings of most of the men, and flooded the roads so that auto truck communication with Plattsburg was cut off. Most of the men are sleeping tonight on the wet ground and under wet blankets.

The cloudburst was the culmination of a series of showers which began soon after the rookies reached the camp here. They were hardly through with the morning's problem before a thunder shower was noticed approaching. They hurried into camp, put up their "pup" tents in record time, and crawled into them before the shower came. The cook's call, however, got them out in the rain with their mess pans and coffee cups.

The men took advantage of the spare time in the afternoon to construct an elaborate system of ditches, which, it seemed, would drain the camp of the hardest rain, but the downpour, which started shortly after 6 o'clock, put the whole system out of business in a few minutes. The water rushed down the slope in a flood, loosening the tentpegs, and tents began to float away. Company M was particularly hard hit.

The rain stopped before 8 o'clock, and the men began to wring out clothes and blankets and to try to start fires with watersoaked wood. Some of them hurried over to an abandoned house near the camp, and then carried over their blankets to make themselves comfortable for the night. There are seven barber's chairs in the regimental shop, and they were all rented out for bunks early in the evening. Most of the men, however, accepted the rain as part of the game, and remained cheerfully in their tents.

The rising streams covered some of the bridges and made the passage of the auto trucks dangerous. Two trucks were on their way with the artillery band when the rain came. They were forced to turn back to Plattsburg when they were within four miles of the camp.

News reached here tonight that the cloudburst was only the tail end of a much harder storm which did much damage in Essex and Clinton Counties and disrupted the train service on the Delaware & Hudson Railroad north of Port Henry. All of the D. & H. trains were running by way of Rouses Point and north and south on the Rutland Railroad. The railroad is blocked by tons of rock which fell as a result of washouts between Port Henry and Westport.

The first fighting in the movement to hold the line of the Rutland Railroad against an enemy force from across the Canadian border took place this morning near West Chazy. It will be known as the battle of Corbear Creek. The enemy were discovered by Captain Baer's cavalrymen on a ridge near the highway. The cavalrymen captured several of the patrols and sent back to the main body the information of the enemy's position.

The battle opened with artillery fire from Captain Masteller's field battery, and the Second and Third Battalions of infantry took up the fighting with rifle fire. The Second Battalion took the right flank position and joined with the Third Battalion's frontal attack in a cross fire which dislodged the enemy.

No decision was given. The battle was fought in fields covered with small stones which made the footing difficult. Several horses went down during the engagement, and there were many cases of turned ankles.

The regimental infirmary, under the command of Major Davidson, treated several men for sore feet today. There has been no serious illness or injury so far.

Saks Washable Linen
Suits for Men
Regulation models....$8.00
Norfolk models........$9.00

¶ These washable linen suits come close to being the coolest proposition ever evolved for hot weather wear. They are as light as palm fronds, and would keep a Fiji Islander comfortable. Made of a natural color linen that can be laundered without shrinking, because it has been shrunk already till water has no terrors for it. A very low-priced suit, we admit, but it couldn't be tailored any better if it were expensive. Therein it differs from the average, for it combines style with economy, and is at once a cool proposition and a red hot value.

Or You Can Cool Off

The New York Times:—

Please cancel my advertisement you are now running for the Overland car, which was sold yesterday through your newspaper. Continue the advertisement for the Delaunay Belleville, as I am getting favorable replies. I have had twenty replies so far on the two advertisements through your newspaper, and have only been able to trace one through another newspaper which had the same advertisement.

I also had a similar experience with your Real Estate column, in which I advertised my country place a few days ago, as I received a great number of replies through your newspaper, having rented the place very promptly at the price quoted, whereas from another newspaper which carried the same advertisement I received no answers.

As I have wasted so much money in advertising at different times I feel it only due to the public to advise it of my experience with your newspaper.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—Before we pick up the further adventures of his Majesty's submarine E-14 and her partner the E-11, here is what you might call a cutting-out affair in the Sea of Marmora which the E-12, Lieut. Commander K. M. Bruce, put through quite on the old lines. Her main motors gave trouble from the first and she seems to have been crippled for most of that trip.

She sighted two small steamers, one towing two and the other three sailing vessels, making seven keels in all. She stopped the first steamer. She noticed that she carried a lot of stores and, moreover, that her crew—she had no boats—were all on deck in lifebelts. Not seeing any gun, the E-12 ran up alongside and told the First Lieutenant to board.

The steamer then threw a bomb at the E-12, which struck, but luckily did not explode, and opened fire on the boarding party with rifles and a concealed one-inch gun. The E-12 answered with her six-pounder and also with rifles. The two sailing ships in tow very properly tried to foul the E-12's propellers and "also opened fire with rifles." It was as Orientally mixed a fight as a man could wish—the First Lieutenant and his boarding party engaged on the steamer, the E-12 foul of the steamer and being fouled by the sailing ships, the six-pounder methodically perforating the steamer from bow to stern, the steamer's one-inch gun and rifles from the sailing ships raking everything and everybody else, the E-12's coxswain in the conning tower passing up ammunition, and the E-12's one workable motor developing "slight defects" at of-course moments when power to manoeuvre was vital.

Finally Blew Up the Steamer.

The account is almost as difficult to disentangle as the actual mess must have been. At any rate the six-pounder caused an explosion in the steamer's ammunition whereby the steamer sank in a quarter of an hour, giving time—and a hot time it must have been—for the E-12 to get clear of her and to sink two sailing ships.

She then chased the second steamer, who slipped her three tows and ran for shore. The E-12 knocked her about a good deal with gunfire as she fled, saw her drive on the beach well alight, and then, since the beach opened fire with a gun of 1,500 yards range, went away to retinker her motors and write up her log.

She approved of her First Lieutenant's behavior "under very trying circumstances," (this probably refers to the explosion of the ammunition by the six-pounder, which doubtless jarred the boarding party,) and of the coxswain, who acted as ammunition hoist, and of the gun crew, who "all did very well" under rifle and small gun fire "at a range of about ten yards." But she never says what she really said about her motors.

Now we will take up the E-14 on various work, either alone or as the flagship of a squadron composed of herself and Lieut. Commander N. A. Smith's boat, the E-11. Hers was a busy midsummer, and she came to be intimate with all sorts of craft, such as a two-funneled gunboat off Sar Kioi, who "fired at us and missed as usual"; hospital ships going back and forth unmolested to Constantinople, "the gunboat which fired at me on Sunday," and other old friends afloat and ashore.

"Stood Up and Cursed Us."

When the crew of a Turkish brigantine full of stores got into their boats by request and then "all stood up and cursed us," the E-14 did not lose her temper, even though it was too rough to lie alongside the abandoned ship. She told Acting Liuetenant R. W. Lawrence of the Royal Naval Reserve to swim off to her, which he did, and, after "a cursory search"—who can be expected to Sherlock Holmes for hours with nothing on?—set fire to her, "with the aid of her own matches and parrafin oil."

Then the E-14 had a brawl with a steamer with a yellow funnel with a blue top and a black band, lying at her pier among the dhows. The shore took a hand in the game with small guns and rifles, and, as the E-14 manoeuvred about the roadstead, "as requisite," there was a sudden, unaccountable explosion which strained her very badly.

"I think," she muses, "I must have caught the moorings of a mine with my tail as I was turning and exploded it. It is possible it might have been a big shell bursting over us, but I think this unlikely, as we were submerged thirty feet at the time."

She is always a philosophical boat, anxious to arrive at the reason of facts, and when the game is against her she admits it freely.

There was a nondescript craft of a few hundred tons, who "at a distance did not look very warlike," but when chased suddenly played a couple of six-pounders and "got off two dozen pounds at us before we were under. Some of them were only about twenty yards off." And when a wily steamer, after sidling along shore, lay up in front of a town, she became "indistinguishable from the houses" and so was safe, because we do not Lowestrafe open towns.

Sailing dhows full of grain had to be destroyed. At one rendezvous, while awaiting the E-11, the E-14 dealt with three such cases and then "towed the crews inshore and gave them biscuits, beef, and rum and water, as they were rather wet." Passenger steamers were allowed to proceed because they "were full of people of both sexes," which is an unkultured way of doing business.

Two Heads in the Water.

An empty dhow is passed, which the E-14 was going to leave alone, but it occurs to her that the boat looks "rather deserted," and she fancies she sees two heads in the water. So she goes back half a mile, picks up a couple of badly exhausted men, frightened out of their wits, gives them food and drink, and puts them aboard their property.

Crews that jump overboard have to be picked up even if, as happened in one case, there are twenty of them and one of them is a German bank manager taking a quantity of money to a Chanak bank. Hospital ships are carefully looked over as they come and go, and are left to their own devices, but they are rather a nuisance, because they force the E-4 and others to dive for them when engaged in stalking warrantable game. There were a good many hospital ships, and so far as we can make out, they all played fair.

The E-1 boarded one and reported everything satisfactory." A layman cannot tell from the reports which of the duties demanded the most work, whether the continuous clearing out of transports, dhows, and sailing ships, generally found close to a well-gunned and attentive beach, or the equally continuous attacks on armed vessels of every kind. Whatever else might be going on, there was always the problem how to arrange for the crews of sunken ships. If a dhow has no small boats and you cannot find one handy, you have to take the crew aboard, where they are horribly in the way and add to the oppressiveness of the atmosphere, like "nine people, including two very old men," whom the E-14 made honorary members of her mess for several hours till she could put them ashore after dark.

Oddly enough she "could not get anything out of them." Imagine nine bewildered Moslems suddenly decanted into the reeking, clamorous, bowels of a fabric obviously built by Shaitan himself and surrounded by—but our people are people of the Book and not dog-eating Kaffirs, and I will wager a great deal that that little company went ashore in better health and stomach than when they were passed down the conning tower hatch.

Amphibious Battles with Troops.

Then there were queer amphibious battles with troops, who had to be shelled as they marched toward Gallipoli along the coast roads. The E-14 went out with the E-11 on this job early one morning, each boat taking her chosen section of landscape. Thrice the E-14 rose to fire, thinking she saw the dust of feet, but "each time it turned out to be bullocks." When the shelling was ended "I think the troops marching along that road must have been delayed and a good many killed." The Turks got up field guns in the course of the afternoon—your true believer never hurries—which outranged both boats, and they left accordingly. But one cannot rejoice over dead Mohammedans unless they are Arabs, and I have never met any one in the trade who did.

Next day she changed billets with the E-11, who had the luck to pick up and put down a battleship close to Gallipoli. It turned out to be the Barbarossa. Meantime the E-14 got a 5,000-ton supply ship and later had to burn a sailing ship loaded with 200 bales of leaf and cut tobacco—Turkish tobacco. Small wonder that the E-11 "came alongside that afternoon and remained for an hour," probably making cigarettes.

Then the E-14 went back to her base. She had a hellish time among the Dardanelles nets, was of course fired at by the forts, just missed a torpedo from the beach, scraped a mine, and, when she had time to investigate, found electric mine wires twisted around her propellors, and all her hull scraped and scored with wire marks.

A Treasure of an Artificer.

But that again was only in the day's work. The point she insisted upon was that she had been for seventy days in the Sea of Marmora, with no securer base for refitting than the centre of the same, and during all that while she had not had any "engine room defect which had not been put right by the engine room staff of the boat." The Commander and Third Officer went sick for a while, the First Lieutenant got gastric enteritis and was in bed (if you could see that bed!) "for the remainder of our stay in the Sea of Marmora," but "this boat has never been out of running order." Credit is ascribed to "the excellence of my chief engine room artificer, James Hollier Hague, C. N. 227,715," whose name is duly submitted to the authorities "for your consideration for advancement to the rank of warrant officer."

Seventy days of every conceivable sort of risk, within and without, in a boat which is all engine-room, except where she is sick-bay; 12,000 miles covered since the last overhaul, and "never out of running order," thanks to Mr. Hague! Such artists as he are the kind of engine-room artificers that commanders intrigue to get hold of—each for his own boat—and when the tales are told in the trade their names, like Abou ben Adhem's, lead all the rest.

I do not know the exact line of demarcation between engine room and gunnery repairs, but I imagine it is faint and fluid. The E-11, for example, while she was helping the E-14 to shell a beached steamer, smashed half her gun-mounting, "a gun-layer being thrown overboard and the gun nearly following him." However, the mischief was repaired in the next twenty-four hours—hours which, considering the very limited deck space of a submarine, means that all hands must have been moderately busy. One hopes they had not to dive often during the job.

Shore Through Net Stays.

But worse is to come. The E-2, Commander D. Stocks, carried an externally mounted gun which, while she was driving up the Dardanelles on business, got hung up in the wires and stays of a net. She saw them through her conning tower scuttle at a depth eighty feet—one wire hawser around the gun, another around the conning tower, and so on. There was a continuous crack of small explosions overhead, which she thought were charges aimed by guard-boats who watch the nets. She considered her position for awhile, backed, got up speed, forged ahead and shore through the whole affair in one wild surge. Imagine the roof of a navigable cottage after it has snapped telegraph lines with its chimney, and you will get a small idea of what happens to the hull of a submarine when she uses her gun to break wire hausers with.

The E-2 was a wet, strained, and uncomfortable boat for the rest of her cruise. She sank steamers, burned dhows, was worried by torpedo boats and hunted by Hun planes, hit bottom freely, and frequently silenced forts that fired at her from lonely beaches, warned villages who might have joined in the game that they had better keep to farming, shelled railway lines and stations, would have shelled a pier but found there was a hospital built at one end of it, "so could not bombard"; came upon dhows crowded with "female refugees," which she "allowed to proceed," and was presented with fouls in return. But through it all her chief preoccupation was that racked and strained gun and mounting.

When there was nothing else doing she reports shortly that she "worked on the gun." As a philosopher of the lower deck put it, "It isn't what you —— know that matters, it's what you —— have to do." In other words, worry, not work, kills. The E-2 gun did its best to knock the heart out of them all. She had to shift the wretched thing twice; once because the bolts that held it down were smashed, (the wire hawser must have pretty well pulled it off its seat,) and again because the hull beneath it leaked on pressure. She went down to make sure of it, but she drilled and tapped and adjusted till in a short time the gun worked again and killed steamers as it should.

The Whole Boat Leaked.

Meanwhile the whole boat leaked. All the plates under the old gun position forward leaked. She leaked aft through damaged hydroplane guards and on her way home they had to keep the water down by hand pumps while she was diving through nets. Where she did not leak outside she leaked internally, tank leaking into tank, so that the petrol got into the main fresh water supply and the men had to be put on an allowance. The last pint was served out when she was in the narrowest part of the Narrows, a place where one's mouth may well go dry.

Of a sudden here, for the moment, the records end. I have been at some pains not to pick and choose among them. So far from doctoring or heightening any of the incidents, I have rather understated them, but I hope I have made it clear that through all the haste and fury of these multiplied actions, when life and death and destruction turned on the twitch of a finger, not one life of any noncombatant was wittingly taken. They were carefully picked up or picked out, taken below, transferred to boats and dispatched, or personally conducted in intervals of business, to a safe, unexploding beach. Sometimes they part from their chaperones "with many expressions of good-will." At others they seem greatly relieved and rather surprised at not being knocked on the head, after the custom of their allies. But the boats, with a hundred things on their minds, no more take credit for their humanity than their commanders explain feats for which they won their respective decorations.

TEUTON PLOT INQUIRY.

LONDON, June 27.—Foreign Secretary Grey, in reply to a question in the House of Commons today from C. W. Bellairs, said representations had been made to the American Government in regard to attempts by German sympathizers to blow up ships of the allied nations in American ports by means of bombs.

The Foreign Secretary could not say no further attempts would be made, but, he added, all proper precautions had been taken to prevent them.

BERNE, June 27, (via London.)—Reports have reached here that serious rioting occurred in Liepsic at the end of last week and that about 1,800 shops, chiefly those of bakers, butchers, and provision dealers, were pillaged by mobs.

It is said Czech soldiers brought from Austria fired upon the crowd, and that martial law has been proclaimed in Liepsic and in the Duchy of Brunswick.

TO ARBITRATE MAIL SEIZUR

LONDON, June 27.—The British and Swedish Governments have agreed to submit to international arbitration after the war the question of the legality of British seizures of postal parcels, according to a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm today.

Great Britain also is willing, adds the dispatch, to submit to arbitration other questions arising out of British prize court decisions which proved unsatisfactory to neutral Governments.

A Home Is No Better Than Its Kitchen

THE same principle applies as in that of a chain which is "no stronger than its weakest link." The kitchen must be in keeping with all other parts of the home.

Garbage must not accumulate. A GAS INCINERATOR burns every bit of garbage, leaving only a fine ash. Uses very little gas.

Hot water is an essential. It cannot be dispensed with. Cleanliness and health demand an unfailing supply of hot water. A GAS WATER HEATER supplies as much hot-water as you need at any hour of the day or night.

HINDENBURG ATTACKS FAIL

BERLIN, June 27, (via London.)—Russian positions southwest of Sokul, in Volhynia, have been stormed by General von Linsingen's troops and held against counterattack, according to an announcement of the War Office today. Several hundred Russians were taken prisoners. The announcement follows:

Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: German detachments which penetrated Russian positions south of Kekkau brought back 26 prisoners, 1 machine gun, and 1 mine thrower. Another detachment which entered Russian positions north of Miadziol brought back 1 officer, 188 men, 6 machine guns, and 4 mine throwers. Enemy patrols were driven off. Numerous bombs were dropped on the railway freight station at Dvinsk.

Army group of General von Linsingen: Southwest of Sokul we stormed Russian lines and took several hundred prisoners. Enemy counterattacks were nowhere successful.

On the Riga front and near the Ikskul bridgehead there have been artillery duels. Attempts by the enemy infantry to take the offensive in some sectors were easily repulsed.

The enemy opened a violent fire on some of our Dvinsk positions and attempted to take the offensive north of Lake Sventen, but without success. In one of these sectors commanding officers distinguished themselves, particularly Lieutenant Norkine and non-commissioned officer Kononenko, the former receiving fifteen wounds.

Enemy aeroplanes have dropped bombs on various places, including the town of Dvinsk.

Yesterday evening north of Lake Niadziol the enemy bombarded our trenches between Lakes Dolja and Voltchino with heavy and light artillery, and then took the offensive, which was repulsed with our artillery fire. A second German offensive also failed, the enemy being thrown back to his trenches.

In the region of the Slutsk road on Monday night the Germans, after short artillery preparation, attempted an offensive, but were repulsed by our fire. The enemy, having renewed his offensive in the region of Metairil, southwest of Lipsk and northeast of Lake Vygonovskoye, succeeded in getting a foothold on our side of the Shara, but was later dislodged and fell back. We again occupy our old positions.

On the Kolki front, at Bogouschievka on the Stokhod, the enemy continues the bombardment of our lines with heavy guns. Further south there has been artillery and infantry firing.

In the region of Nesvitche, southwest of Lutsk, an Austrian aeroplane, hit by our guns, fell. The aviator and observer, who were wounded, were taken prisoners.

On the middle Stripa the enemy began heavy artillery fire at many points. On Sunday our aviator, Sub-Lieutenant Orloss, ascended that day for the tenth time to a height of 2,400 meters and pursued an enemy aviator, forcing him by machine gunfire to volplane suddenly near Podgaitzy.

In the direction of Czernowitz we drove the enemy as far as the Doudovetz River, an affluent of the Pruth, which it joins near Zablotoff, ten miles from Kolomea.

According to the latest reports from General Brussiloff's army, the total prisoners and booty captured between June 4 and 23 amount to 4,031 officers, 194,941 soldiers, 219 guns, 644 machine guns, 196 bomb throwers, 146 artillery caissons, and 38 searchlights.

As an example of the bravery of our Don Cossacks it is reported that during the crossing of the Dniester near Snowidow parties of the Cossacks swam the river naked and carrying only their guns. When they reached the other side they rushed to a bayonet attack on the enemy, killing many, capturing others, and holding the conquered position until the arrival of reinforcements."

More than 100,000 men, of whom a large proportion are prisoners of war, are at work strengthening the defenses of Kovel, according to the Bourse Gazette. The new defenses extend more than ten miles from the town.

The crossing of the Dniester southwest of Buczacz by the Don Cossacks is regarded here as another nail in the coffin of Kolomea. The Cossacks are now expected to sweep around the Cherniava River from the West.

RUSSIANS CHARGE IN MASS.

By EUGEN LENNHOFF.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AUSTRIAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT, June 26.—The present technique of the Russians in their attacks varies in many respects from that of previous offensives. Never before have such masses of men stormed. Never before has artillery fire reached such a degree of effectiveness as now.

The Russians have made use of countless new batteries in the present offensive. Particularly, heavy calibre guns have greatly multiplied. Among these are also Japanese thirty-two centimeter guns. Cavalry is playing an important rôle. Everywhere where the terrain permits great bodies of cavalry are kept in readiness behind the infantry lines, especially Cossacks, Tartars, and "White Russian" Hussars.

On those parts of the Austrian front which were taken back sharp actions with the cavalry developed. In the infantry attacks the "Carpathian tactics" were heightened. Sixteen and seventeen rows were the rule for infantry charges, though occasionally there were more. The Russian attacks were supported by Belgian armored motor cars armed with machine guns and cannon. They were naturally used only where good roads ran straight into the front, and in view of their speed and small dimensions made hard targets to hit, but they were not able to achieve any very great results.

There was a reciprocal bombardment in the region of Dixmude.

ITALIANS TAKE ARSIERO AND CONTINUE ADVANCE

ROME, June 27.—Following up their recent successes on the Trentino front, the Italians have driven back the Austrians still further, the War Office announced today, and have captured Posina and Arsiero, Mounts Fiara, Taverle, Spitz Kesserle, and Cima della Saette, and the crests on the Calderia and Campanella.

The official statement reads:

Between the Adige and the Brenta our advance continued, notwithstanding the enemy's attempt to hold us by the concentrated fire of artillery and machine guns and by rearguard actions, which were favored by the difficult ground. In the Valley of the Arsa we advanced yesterday across strong entrenchments at Mattassone and Anghebeni, and completed the conquest of Monte Menerle.

Along the Posina line we cleared the enemy from the southern slopes of Monte Aralta, and, after crossing the stream, took Posina and Arsiero, thus beginning the advance on the northern side of the valley.

On Sette Comuni plateau our infantry, preceded by cavalry patrols, reached the Punta Corbin-Tresche-Conca-Fondi-Cesuna line, extending to the southwest of Asiago. To the northwest we crossed the Nos Valley and occupied Monte Fiara, Monte Taverle, Spitz Kesserle, and Cima della Saette.

On the right our Alpine troops carried the crests on the Calderia and Campanella, after much gallant fighting.

Along the whole front there is considerable evidence of the enemy's barbarous methods. Arsiero was destroyed by fire. Asiago and many smiling villages were reduced to smouldering ruins. Near Magna Boschi some hundred naked corpses of our soldiers were found in mire.

In the Sugana Valley the situation is unchanged. In upper Vanoi we occupied Masi di Tognola. There were no events of importance on the remainder of the front.

One of our air squadrons, consisting of ten machines, yesterday dropped fifty heavy bombs on the Calliano railway station in the Lagarina Valley. Satisfactory results were observed. The machines returned safely. This morning an Austrian aeroplane was brought down in a fight near Verona.

One Stroke Shook Austrian Line.

MILAN, June 27, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Details of the precipitate Austrian retreat are coming through from Luigi Barzini and Arnaldo Fraccaroli, war correspondents of the Corrière della Sera.

It was 1 o'clock on Saturday morning when the first signs of the Austrian retreat became unmistakable.

The position was as follows: On the extreme Italian right flank the Alpini had captured by assault the formidable height of Cima Isidoro on the frontier north of Asiago, facing the Sugana Valley, together with a battery of Austrian big guns. On this advanced stronghold with a tremendous concentration of men and artillery the Italians proceeded to pivot all the operations in this sector, so that the protection thereby afforded enabled them late Saturday night to smash through the Austrian defenses of Mandrielle in a direct line northward at the head of Campomulo Valley.

This terrible blow at once imperiled the whole system of Austrian positions on the east and when at the first blush of dawn the Italian infantry swept down the encircling heights upon Castel Gumberto and Monte Fiara and moved forward in concentrated formation from Bosco, from Valtris of Trepali, the Chezal, the Vecchia, and Miela, and from Sbarbatal, the Austrian regiments found themselves almost entirely surrounded with no safety except in headlong flight, abandoning all the stores and munitions behind them.

In the ensuing twenty-four hours the whole Austrian defense of this region collapsed like a house of cards and the Italians were once more in possession of all the burned and ruined towns and villages.

Meantime the Italian left flank continued its heavy pressure against the Austrians, who were effectually bottled up in Asiago hollow, while 700 or 800 guns of every calibre, massed fanwise at the entrance to the Astico Valley, subjected the region north of Asiago to a frightful tempest of fire and completed three days' and three nights' incessant bombardment of Monte Cengio.

Toward 8 o'clock on Sunday morning the Austrians quit this lofty peak. Only one way of retreat remained open for them, and that was through the narrow gorge of the Assa in the direction of Asiago. To protect this the Austrian centre held out till evening.

Sunrise on Monday witnessed a wondrous and novel sight in mountain warfare. The Italians for the first time hurled their magnificent squadrons of cavalry across the burning débris of Asiago down all the valleys toward Rodigilleri and Campoverde, north of Asiago, smiting the rearguards of the fleeing foe and holding them in check till the oncoming Italian infantry completed the slaughter. The mountain dales were thickly strewn with the dead and dying of the routed army which pursued their panicky flight toward Monte Interotto, two and a half miles north northwest of Asiago.

As yet there is no telling where the Austrians may strive to make a fresh stand.

BULGARIA IS UNEASY.

BERLIN, June 27.—Sofia reports indicate that Bulgaria is uneasy, owing to the possible consequences of Greece's capitulation to the Entente demands. It is said that official Bulgarian circles declare Bulgaria would be forced to regard a Greece under the dictatorship of Venizelos and obeying Entente orders as an open enemy.

Sofia feels that Greece's capitulation has caused the whole Balkan problem to enter a new stage. The effects of the changed situation are already making themselves felt in Sofia and Bucharest. While recognizing Greece's good will to further maintain neutrality, Sofia regard's Greece's future attitude as most

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS MAY BE AVOIDED

LONDON, June 27.—Throughout today the air was charged with rumors of a serious Cabinet crisis over the Irish Home Rule compromise. The fact that there were two prolonged Cabinet councils, in addition to party meetings, seemed to confirm this view. An evening newspaper announced that the Marquis of Lansdowne, Minister without portfolio, and Walter Hume Long, President of the Local Government Board, had actually resigned, but that their resignations had not been accepted. Rumor also connected the name of Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, with the Ministers likely to resign.

Lord Selborne in the House of Lords this afternoon said that no definite announcement concerning the situation was to be expected until after a meeting of Unionists tomorrow, at which it was still hoped that the influence of Andrew Bonar Law, Secretary of State for Colonies, who supported Premier Asquith, and David Lloyd George, the Munitions Minister, who framed the Irish compromise, might possibly avert a rupture. Later, however, it was announced that the Unionist meeting had been postponed until next week at the desire of Mr. Bonar Law and the Government, who wished further time for consideration of the Irish proposal. This postponement puts a new complexion on affairs and permits of the hope that a crisis will be avoided.

Explaining his reasons for retiring from the Cabinet as President of the Board of Agriculture, Lord Selborne said his understanding of the basis of the inquiry made by David Lloyd George was that it contemplated an amendment of the Home Rule act whereby Ulster or a part thereof should be excluded from the operation of the act and that the bill of exclusion should be passed during the war, but that neither the principal act nor the amending act would come into operation until the restoration of peace. In this belief he concurred in the appointment of Mr. Lloyd George to take up the negotiations.

When, at Whitsuntide, he learned the basis of the inquiry had been changed and that it had become part of the proposed settlement that Home Rule, with the qualifications mentioned, should come into operation during the war, he informed Premier Asquith he could take no responsibility for such a policy, and handed in his resignation. He said he was ready to arrange for the exclusion of Ulster now and to give every guarantee that Home Rule would come into operation after the war, but he considered it dangerous to make the change during the war, owing to the disturbed conditions in Ireland.

"I say this," he added, "while acknowledging in the fullest way the loyal, patriotic action of John Redmond during the war."

Italians Bag Aeroplane at Verona.

ROME, June 27.—An Austrian aeroplane, while bombarding Verona this morning, was attacked and brought down by Italian aircraft in the Chiampo Valley. Another aeroplane, attacking Padua, was driven off by anti-aircraft artillery.

TURKS ADVANCE IN VARIOUS SECTORS

CONSTANTINOLE, Monday, June 26, (via London, June 27.)—The following anouncement was made today at army headquarters:

In Persia Russian troops of all arms, under protection of their fortified positions, made an attack on June 26 against our forces east of Servil. The engagement lasted until evening. The Russians finally withdrew without accomplishing their purpose, having suffered considerable losses.

A Russian detachment which attempted to outflank our troops in this sector was compelled by a counterattack to return to its position.

Our troops operating south of this sector approached the neighborhood of Chilan. The Russians avoided a fight, evacuating their positions and withdrawing to the northeast.

In the north our troops advancing from Sineh met a regiment of Russian cavalry which was defeated, suffering great losses in dead and wounded.

Caucasian Front—On the left wing, north of the Choruk, we are consolidating positions which we captured from the Russians. At other points our troops are pursuing the enemy, who is fleeing from this front toward the coast. We captured or dispersed small detachments of the enemy, among which were thirty-three men of the Nineteenth Turkestan Regiment.

"Saves us about $100 a week"

"We made a very close investigation with result that we delivered 10 tons of freight to various stores in the City with same motor power, and practically without any additional expense at all.

We figure that Troy Trailer saves us one automobile which means somewhere about $100 a week. We expect to put on another trailer and do away with another automobile. In our estimation Troy Trailer is the coming means of transportation so far as economy is concerned."

Riker-Hegeman Co., New York

This outfit makes the run from New York to Boston and back, and from New York to Philadelphia and back, every week.

"Troy Trailers" will cut your delivery costs in ½

Troy Trailers are made in capacities of 1 to 5 tons and with any type of body. They are built for use as a single trailer or in trailer trains. They are reversible, and therefore can be backed up to any loading platform, or backed into any alley, as easily as if they were being moved forward. They can be coupled to the truck at either end, thus proving great flexibility.

We also make a complete line of Trailers of smaller capacity, to be operated with small trucks or pleasure cars. An entire list of users will be furnished you, if desired, and we will give you the names of other concerns using Troy Trailers with the same kind of truck you are operating.

LAUD WILSON'S ACTS IN DEMOCRATIC CLUB

NOMINATIONS ARE RATIFIED

Resolution Declares "the Long-Pending but Inevitable Crisis" Is Being Met Firmly.

President Wilson was warmly eulogized for keeping this country out of the European war at a meeting held last night at the National Democratic Club to ratify his nomination, and that of Vice President Thomas R. Marshall. The meeting was attended by some 200 members of the club. One of the notable absentees was Tammany leader Charles F. Murphy.

A resolution rehearsing and praising the achievements of the Wilson Administration was adopted by unanimous vote. The resolution was presented by District Attorney Edward Swann, and it said in part:

The members of the National Democratic Club in the great Democratic city of New York have here assembled to express their enthusiastic and unqualified approval of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall as the candidates of a united and confident Democracy for President and Vice President of the United States.

The great tests of a party's claim to be continued as the country's dominant political power are fidelity to its pledges, the soundness of its policies, and the character and ability of its leader. We challenge candid examination of our party's record measured by these tests.

Our party was bound by its history, without any platform pledge, to exert every human effort to keep aloof from the devastating European war and maintain a fair and strict neutrality. This it has done under conditions of unprecedented difficulty, winning at the same time from both contending sides recognition of American rights by patient but persistent resort to the channels of diplomacy.

Finally, the Democratic Party has had to take up the burden of efficiently preparing the country for national defense, after years of Republican indifference and neglect, to work out a solution of the vexatious Mexican problem inherited from the Taft Administration.

Strong measures for national defense have been enacted, and the long-pending, but inevitable, Mexican crisis is being met with resolution, proper regard for American rights, and compassion for the unfortunate condition of a bandit-ridden and distracted people of a neighboring country.

Through all these problems and difficulties the high character, the fine ideals, and the commanding intellectual ability of President Woodrow Wilson have stood forth in such manner as to win the earnest admiration of his countrymen and command the attention and respect of the world. For these reasons, be it

Resolved, That the National Democratic Club unanimously and most heartily ratifies the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall, and pledges its active support in the campaign for their triumphant re-election.

Speaking in support of the resolution, District Attorney Swann said:

"We have supreme confidence in the course our President will take in dealing with the situation that has arisen in Mexico. We know that if investigation determines that the forces of the Republic of Mexico without right or authority shot down our American soldiers, the President will take such action as will vindicate the honor and the prestige of the United States."

Assistant District Attorney Alexander O'Rourke said that "only the commanding genius and diplomatic ability of Woodrow Wilson had kept this country out of the war in Europe," and that the troubles in Mexico had been inherited from the Taft Administration. Charles B. Alexander, a member of the Board of Regents, was one of the other speakers.

John M. Riehle, President of the club, in opening the meeting, made a speech warmly praising President Wilson.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—At the request of Representative Copley of Illinois, Progressive, the House today ordered printed in the Congressional Record the letter of Theodore Roosevelt declining the Progressive nomination for President.

In the Senate, Senator Thomas, Democrat, made a speech describing Colonel Roosevelt as a "fugitive from Armageddon' who had delivered his party to the enemy.

ANGLING FOR PROGRESSIVES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 27.—As a result of the indorsement given to Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee for President, by the Progressive National Committee, it is regarded by local politicians as extremely probable that there will be a complete amalgamation of the Progressives with the Republican Party in this State and possibly a harmony State and county ticket and the consolidation of the local organizations of both parties.

It is generally believed that a large majority of the Republicans who forsook the party four years ago will return to the fold, but there is doubt as to what course the former Democrats will take. Prohibitionists see a chance to gain recruits from the remnant of the Progressives who will support neither Hughes nor Wilson.

Prohibition Party leaders lost no time today in throwing out grappling hooks for Progressives who went down with the Bull Moose ship. Virgil G. Hinshaw, Chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, called on John M. Parker and other Progressives who held out to the last for a third ticket. Mr. Hinshaw told Mr. Parker that the Prohibitionists would be glad to have him accept a Vice Presidential nomination from the National Convention in St. Paul next month. Mr. Parker, who is the Progressive nominee for Vice President, appeared interested, but said he had not made up his mind what to do. He resigned as Chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Louisiana to join the Progressive Party, and has declared he never could return to the Democratic fold. He refused to be "delivered" to the Republican Party.

Mr. Hinshaw tonight issued a formal invitation to all Progressives to attend the "get-together" conference in St. Paul on July 18, the day before the opening of the Prohibition National Convention. He asked Progressives to attend with a view of "finding a common political ground on which to fight for the welfare of humanity."

SAYS MOOSE VOTES WILL ELECT WILSON

SEES HENRY MORGENTHAU

Finance Committee and Treasurer Marsh Already Installed—President Wilson Will Make Speeches.

Genial, smiling, and confident, Vance C. McCormick, the newly-elected Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, walked into the headquarters of that body in the Forty-second Street Building yesterday afternoon and took active charge of the Wilson campaign. After a conference with Henry Morgenthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the National Committee, he received a group of reporters.

"I have already received assurances of sufficient Progressive support to make the re-election of President Wilson certain," said Mr. McCormick in response to a question as to whether he had opened negotiations with the New York County Progressive organization, which appears on the verge of a bolt. Mr. McCormick would not say whether he had talked with any of the disgruntled former followers of Colonel Roosevelt in this city.

"Have you anything to say regarding the action of the National Progressive Committee in voting to indorse Justice Hughes?" Mr. McCormick was asked.

"Not just at present," was his reply. "In my opinion we will have a lot to say about that a little later."

Mr. McCormick expects to make this city his home for the campaign period. He is going to Washington tomorrow to consult President Wilson regarding the personnel of the Campaign Committee which the Democratic National Committee has been authorized to appoint. Mr. McCormick said last night that, while there was no limitation as to the number of members, eleven in all probability would be appointed. They need not necessarily be members of the Democratic National Committee.

The Finance Committee engaged campaign headquarters in the Forty-second Street Building, too, yesterday afternoon. This committee will have a suite of three offices on the third floor, just above the large suite which now is occupied by the Democratic National Committee. Wilbur W. Marsh of Iowa, the newly-elected Treasurer of the National Committee, was there, having arrived from the West yesterday. He told the newspaper men that he would remain on the job throughout the campaign, but had no other statement to make for the present.

Mr. McCormick said that the details of the campaign, of course, had not at this early stage of the fight been worked out with any degree of precision. To what extent President Wilson would tour the country and make speeches, Mr. McCormick said, would depend largely on developments in the Mexican imbroglio. That the President will take the stump is certain.

One question which Mr. McCormick expects to take up with President Wilson this week has to do with the fixing of a date for the notification ceremonies. It has already been determined that Mr. Wilson will be notified of his renomination at Shadow Lawn, his New Jersey Summer home, but the date is as yet unsettled. Mr. McCormick expressed the opinion that the ceremony would take place about July 15, the date when the Republican nominee is to be notified.

Mr. Hughes saw the performance of "Very Good Eddie" last night at the Casino. He occupied a box with a party of friends. LOCAL MOOSE TO MEET JULY 6.

County Committee May Indorse Wilson and Seabury.

Progressive County Chairman John J. O'Connell announced yesterday that he had called a meeting for Thursday of next week, when formal action would be taken to determine the future course of the County Committee.

Mr. O'Connell refused to venture any forecast as to what the Progressives in New York County would do, now that, contrary to the wishes of a great many of the most important members, the Progressive National Committee has "delivered" the party to the Republican nominee. From all accounts, there is a considerable element in the County Committee which has been the recipient of many patronage favors from the Democratic administration of Mayor Mitchel. They feel that it would be more profitable to the New York Progressives to join hands with the Democrats than to return to the Republican fold.

That a resolution indorsing President Wilson would be introduced at the meeting next week was predicted in local Progressive circles yesterday. No one, however, ventured to predict whether it could be put through or not. It is likely that the committee will be asked to take action to indorse Judge Samuel Seabury of the Court of Appeals for the Gubernatorial nomination. This would pit the County Committee of the Progressives against Governor Whitman, who expects to be renominated by the Republicans, while it is generally believed that Judge Seabury will be the Democratic nominee for Governor.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE FOR HUGHES

The Women's Roosevelt League met at the Hotel Manhattan yesterday afternoon, and with only one dissenting vote decided to indorse Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee for President. The lone dissenter was a woman from the South who later in the meeting explained that she was a Democrat by tradition, and would feel like "a woman without a country in an organization committed to a Republican nominee." The women voted to retain the name of Roosevelt League.

The women, numbering something less than one hundred, who met in the banquet room of the Manhattan to determine whether their organization ought to disband, now that Colonel Roosevelt was entirely out of it as a principal in the Presidential fight, heard a cheering announcement from Miss Alice Carpenter, President of the league.

"I have felt as blue as anything since the Chicago Convention," she told the meeting. "But this morning I heard an interesting piece of gossip that made me feel much better. I heard that a movement had been started—the first one of its kind, I believe—to demand, mind you, demand, that Mr. Hughes, if elected, make Colonel Roosevelt his Secretary of State."

The women were rather niggardly with applause throughout the hour or more that the meeting lasted, but at this information they clapped their hands vigorously. A suggestion from the chair that one of the courses open to the organization was to support Wilson was received with cries of "No!" and much laughter. They did not warm up to Hughes very much, either, and it was plain from the temper of the meeting that the league's sole reason for supporting him was that Colonel Roosevelt had agreed to do so first.

Miss Bertha Rambaugh, Mrs. Alfred Eno, Mrs. Joseph McLean, Miss Francis Keller, and Miss Alice Carpenter were appointed on the Program Committee. It was said after the meeting that the women would start an early and active campaign.

JOHNSON OUT FOR HUGHES.

Declares Nominee's Record Warrants His Support.

ORPET IS UNSHAKEN BY CROSS EXAMINATION

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 27.—Will H. Orpet, charged with the murder of Marion Lambert, resumed the witness stand today. Attorney Ralph F. Potter of the defense immediately asked about the water and molasses which Orpet sent to Marion "to relieve her mind." One of these bottles he sent to her, the other he brought to her the day of her death.

Orpet was in better voice than yesday. He talked with more assurance and more connectedly.

"Why did you tell State's Attorney Dady that you were at Madison on Feb. 9?" asked Mr. Potter.

"Well, the way things were I thought it would look bad," replied the witness.

Attorney Potter then asked: "What were your relations with Celestia Youker?"

"There was a tacit understanding between us. I had known her six years."

"Did she return your affections?"

"Yes."

"You were engaged?"

"No, there was an understanding. No date was set for marriage. I had not ever formally asked her to marry me."

"Did you tell Mr. Dady or any one else that you saw Marion take poison?"

"No."

Orpet was then cross-examined by Attorney David R. Joslyn, who is assisting State's Attorney Dady. He asked about an automobile ride which Marion and Orpet took last September.

"You stopped and went into the woods?" asked Mr. Joslyn.

"Yes."

"What did you say to Marion?"

"Well, make a guess."

"You were desperately in love with her, wern't you?"

"Not then. That came later, judging from my letters."

Orpet said he had only one year of chemistry in his studies at the University of Wisconsin.

"And you knew pretty much about potassium cyanide?"

"If I ever studied about cyanide I have forgotten it," answered the witness.

"No, Sir."

"No, Sir."

Miss Youker, it appeared, was an excellent student of chemistry, but when Orpet was called upon to discuss the subject with her he had to refer to his textbook on the subject, he said.

Fall Kills Alfred P. Sperry.

Alfred P. Sperry, 37 years old, of 66 Orange Street, Brooklyn, assistant manager of the Globe-Wernicke Company, died yesterday afternoon from a fractured skull. He was found lying unconscious on the sidewalk at Tillary and Adams Street early yesterday morning by the motorman of a Bergen Street car. Detectives from the Sixth Branch, who were notified, identified him by papers in his pockets. He died without regaining consciousness, and the detectives believe he fell and struck his head against the sidewalk. He lived alone at the Orange Street address. A sister who lives out of town has been notified.

ADVERTISING CLUBS AWAIT PRESIDENT

Mr. Wilson Will Address Them in Philadelphia Tomorrow if at All Possible.

PLAN PATRIOTIC EXERCISES

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—President Wilson probably will address the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World here on Thursday, so a message from Secretary Tumulty to President H. S. Houston of the association said today. Secretary Tumulty explained that the President "hopes and expects" to come, but "in the present circumstances" it was impossible to make a definite promise.

The Associated Clubs have arranged for a great patriotic demonstration in this city on Thursday as the culminating feature of their convention. The President, if he comes, will address the delegates in Independence Square at 4:30 P. M. The advertising men have made efforts at the convention to show that they stand for patriotism, as well as for decent business and clean advertising, and they have enlisted the assistance of city and State officials to make the exercises on Thursday elaborate and impressive. The message from Secretary Tumulty was read at the general session today and aroused great enthusiasm.

Stock Exchange for Truth.

"Both your association and the Stock Exchange," he said, "stand for plain, homespun honesty in commercial transactions and in the advertising and sale of securities and merchandise. I observe on your letterhead that the emblem of your order is the word 'Truth,' imposed on the map of the world. That also is our emblem. You have elected a vigilance committee to see that your high standards are maintained; we have elected a committee on business conduct for the same purpose. We are fighting for a common cause, namely, business ethics, one of the most powerful and interesting movements in American commercial life in this generation.

"In our determination to keep the advertising of our members on a high plane, we are influenced by two essential considerations. The first is that the New York Stock Exchange is the foremost market of its kind in the world. The securities which pass through the hands of its members represent a very considerable part of America's material wealth. Because of its size and importance and because banks, courts and legislatures have come to look upon our quotations as a most reliable index of values, we believe that advertising by our members chould be conducted upon a plane of dignity commensurate with the interests involved.

"Our second consideration has to do with the peculiar character of the business in which we are engaged. Both speculation and investment contain pitfalls; again and again it has been charged that credulous people have been lured into the market through misleading advertising methods. Nine times out of ten these misleading advertisements emanate from people who are not members of the Stock Exchange, and naturally we can exercise no control over them, but we can and do exercise a control over the advertising of our own members. We have accordingly said to them:

"'You must not only put your advertising on a dignifed plane, but you must not use anything in the nature of catch phrases or alluring devices designed to influence the judgment of those to whom it is addressed. You may advertise as generously as you please, supply the public with as much educational matter as you choose, offer what you have for sale, but do not attempt anything remotely approaching the business of a tipster.'

"We cannot protect investors and speculators against the consequence of their unwisdom in buying unprofitable securities, but we can and we do attempt to reduce their risks by insisting that the advertising of our members shall not contain anything designed to appeal to the hopeful credulity of their customers.

"Naturally it is not easy to draw hard and fast rules in such a case. In attempting to decide what is dignified and what is undignified we shall have to solve our own problems in our own way. The Governors of the Stock Exchange are elected by the members for this very purpose, and they are given large and almost autocratic power, but they never have used that power for any other purpose than the public interest, and they may be trusted in this case to maintain that high standard. The Stock Exchange has never yet encountered any real difficulties when it called upon its members to do the right thing in the right way. That we shall encounter no serious obstacle in this instance is shown by the fact that among our 1,100 members only sixteen have thus far published advertising matter that might be open to criticism."

Defends Truthful "Catch Words."

"The Stock Exchange is welcomed as an ally," he said, "by the Associated Advertising Clubs in the fight for commercial honesty."

He contended, however, that there could be no legitimate criticism of "catch words" in advertising so long as they told the truth.

H. D. Robbins, an investment broker of New York City, contended that the rules of the Stock Exchange were needlessly rigid, and that its business commitee had ruled against advertisements in which he saw nothing wrong. He added that the vigilance of the advertising men and not the Stock Exchange had decreased the number of fraudulent advertisements that were so frequent until two or three years ago.

For what was said to be the first time in the history of the Church and of advertising, clergymen, at one of the departmental sessions of the convention today, formally indorsed commercial publicity as a means of filling vacant pews. The meeting had the Rev. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, New York City, for its Chairman. One hundred and fifty clergymen, it was said, comprising all Protestant denominations, and one rabbi attended the meeting.

Of the several addresses in favor of advertising delivered by clergymen, one of the strongest came from the Rev. Daniel Hoffman Martin, pastor of the Fort Washington Presbyterian Church, New York City. He asserted that in a race with so many counterattractions it was the preacher who in modern days cried, "What must I do to be saved?" He said there could be no legitimate protest against organized church advertising so long as the minister lived up to his promises in the advertisements and "delivered the goods."

Mr. Reisner asserted that Christ Himself was one of the ablest and sincerest of advertisers.

The announcement was made today that, in all probability, President Houston would be re-elected as head of the Associated Clubs for another year. Mr. Houston came to the convention with the intention, it was said, of refusing to let his name be used in the election, which will take place on Thursday; but yielded to the arguments of his friends, who believe his leadership necessary for another twelve months to carry forward the many important projects undertaken by the clubs.

Patent Medicines Championed.

The convention will have listened to 250 addresses before adjournment on Thursday, and more than twenty-five of these came before the congress either at the general session or the departmental session today. Patent medicines were defended in a paper written by Ervin F. Kemp, general representative of the Proprietary Association of Chicago. A tabulation had been made by a committee of the association, he said, of preparations containing so-called narcotic drugs and alcohol, and this tabulation showed that out of a total of 1,078 preparations 11 for internal use and 10 for external use contained morphine, and 17 for internal use and 9 for external use contained opium. None contained morphine or opium in excess of the exemptions of the Harrison antinarcotic law, Mr. Kemp said.

"Not one preparation contained cocaine or eucaine, and but two contained heroin and but one codeine," he said. "Chloroform was contained in 23 preparations for internal use and in 20 for external use; 32 for internal use contained acetanilid, which drug was also contained in three preparations for external use."

Alcohol, Mr. Kemp said, was found in 251 preparations for internal use and in 85 for external use, 598 containing none of the ingredients which, under the Food and Drugs act, must be accurately stated on the labels.

William A. Thomson, Director of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, told the National Advertisers' department that the daily newspapers of the United States would more than double their national advertising during 1917.

"In 1915," he said, "advertising in the newspapers totaled $300,000,000. Of this amount, upward of $35,000,000 came from general advertisers. In the first quarter of 1916, newspaper advertising in the general field increased 35 per cent., and, barring accidents, the dailies will carry a total of fully $75,000,000 in national advertising alone for the year."

Mr. Thomson argued that the newspapers were supreme as mediums for local advertising.

Anne E. Tomlinson, J. M. Siddall, editor of The American Magazine; N. Mitchell, advertising manager of the L. K. Liggett Company; Horace A. Ryan of L. S. Ayres & Co.; N. Lyons of Manila, P. I.; W. F. Chambers of Cincinnati, W. B. Wheelwright of the Westfield Paper Company, Russell, Mass.; E. G. Pratt of the J. Walter Thompson Company, and Paul E. Faust of Mallory, Mitchell & Faust of Chicago, were some of those whose papers on different phases of business and advertising were read at the convention today.

Benefit at Neighborhood Playhouse.

Performances for the benefit of the relief fund of the Cloak and Suit Makers' Union will be given at the Neighborhood Playhouse Wednesday and Thursday nights of next week. The program will consist of three one-act plays, given by the Neighborhood Players, and the Russian ballet "Petrouchka," by the festival dancers of the Henry Street Settlement. The plays, which were produced by the players last season, will be "The Price of Coal," by Harold Brighouse; "A Marriage Proposal," by Anton Tchekoff, and "A Night at an Inn," by Lord Dunsany.

FEARS FOR BROKERS ON LONG CANOE TRIP

WRECKAGE FOUND ON ROUTE

Were Making Health Trip and Had Spent Winter in the North—Search Started by Friends.

About a year ago James G. Hurty and Charles Marcell, New York brokers with jaded nerves, made a break for freedom and health in a twenty-foot canoe. They planned a round trip route from and to this city by the Hudson River, Erie Canal, the Great Lakes, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Atlantic Ocean and waterways along its coast. Shortly before the close of navigation on the Great Lakes they reached Lake Michigan and put up for the Winter on Black Lake in the northern part of the upper Michigan peninsula. Starting anew on their cruise, they left Cheboygan, Mich., June 2, to go to Sault Ste. Marie. Nothing has since been heard from them and nothing about them until yesterday when Henry Clews & Co. received the disquieting message from A. W. Ramsay, Cashier of the First National Bank of Cheboygan, which follows:

> Cheboygan, Mich., June 23, 1916.
> The Henry Clews Company, New York.
> Gentlemen: Last Fall James G. Hurty with a Mr. Marcell canoed to this point and wintered here at Black Lake. They left for Sault Ste. Marie early this month and expected to be at "Soo" for the Elks convention, 13th-15th inst. Our members inquired for them but they had not arrived. Wreckage from some small craft—paddles, gasoline, cans, &c.—has been recently discovered along route in open lake that they would have to pass; also mail sent the boys has been returned today from "Soo." Putting the two together it has alarmed their friends here. Do you know if family have heard from the boys? Believe Mr. Hurty's brother is member of your firm, so write to you rather than home address given us, 15 Broad Street, New York. Friends here have asked natives at Albany Isle to search shores for other signs if possible. It is a bad place for canoe trip if stormy. Very truly,
> A. W. RAMSAY.

Mr. Hurty was at one time Secretary of the old Standard Cordage Company, but just before their departure both the young men were in the employ of Henry Clews & Co., one as manager of the Union Square branch and the other as manager of the Madison Square branch of that firm. Mr. Herty's brother, George A. Hurty, is a partner in the Clews house. He is on a vacation, but was reached at Stamford yesterday afternoon, and both he and James B. Clews instigated over the wires as diligent a search as was possible with the information in their possession.

Mr. Hurty, though greatly worried, was hopeful. Though he had heard nothing from his brother since June 2, he said in previous periods of the trip the young men had laid up for a month or more at a time without communication with the outside world. Both were much stronger than at the beginning of their journey and both were experienced and careful. Mr. Hurty thought they would wait out a spell of bad weather rather than take any dangerous risk, for time was no object to either of them.

James G. Hurty, in the current number of Field and Stream, began a description of the expedition in which he showed a wholesome respect for the winds and waters of the lakes.

"Now as we look back from the end of the first leg of our journey," he wrote, "we rather wonder at our assurance. Accept my statement that the great lakes offer some terrors to a canoe manned by novices, and breed a healthy respect for the power of the elements. But there is a tingle in the thought that we have come this far untutored, roughshod through the hazards."

Of the rapidity and sudden violence of the lake storms the canoeists had their first experience soon after leaving Buffalo, when they were forced to put inshore near Dunkirk. Putting out from there, they encountered a squall and had a narrow escape. Mr. Hurty described the experience as follows:

> I will confess the old lake gave some indication of how it could kick up on short notice. Being shallow, the sea rose easily before a blow. We pushed out with the weather moderately fair, but the worthiness of our craft was to be tested sooner than we expected. We ran straight out about a half mile into the lake, to clear some rocks to the west. No sooner had we headed west than from somewhere, somehow, heaven knows, all the furies of the devil broke loose and aimed at us. Wind, rain, and hail came in such torrents that the land was cut off from our view. Before we could set the hood over the motor it stalled. We rushed for the paddles, but soon found that, though working like demons, we were unable to point the canoe toward shore, either bow or stern. The young tornado was holding us broadside, and in a few minutes waves were breaking into and completely over the boat, Patsy was nearly washed overboard, and we were standing deep in water, still working like tigers. We were indeed helpless, but the boat kept her keel and there was nothing but to be driven ashore. It was lucky the wind was not blowing the other way. When we hit the beach there was plenty of aid at hand, if needed, as our plight had been seen, but "the prayers of a righteous man availeth much." The minister told us he had been praying for us all the time, and that perhaps explains our deliverance.

The canoe in which the invalids set out was built especially for the expedition according to their own designs. It was twenty feet long, with extra beam and depth and with air chambers along the sides. It was equipped for an outside motor which was screwed to the front wall of a well built in the stern of the craft, and which could be unscrewed and lifted out quickly. There was carried in it a silk tent, cooking utensils, provisions, and clothing, all of special design and remarkable for lightness. Mr. Hurty's favorite dog Patsy proved a companion and protector. The young men had but one slight accident on their way to the Lakes.

The outdoor life last Summer and Fall benefited them immeasurably. Mr. Hurty returned to the city for a few days last Winter, but partly from his own desire and partly from the doctor's advice returned to the Michigan woods. How much benefited they felt from their experience Mr. Hurty told by repeating this conversation with Mr. Marcell:

> "If every six months of this puts five years on our lives, by the time we hit New York again we can come pretty close to trotting along with the next generation, not counting time out for repairs," said I, talking it over.
> "But what makes me sore," returned Charlie, "is that we waited until one foot was in the grave before we grabbed the life line."

Neither Mr. Hurty nor Mr. Marcell is married. Each is about 35 years old. They were boy friends at Albany, where Mr. Hurty's father, the late James A. Hurty, was proprietor of the Hotel Delavan, one of the most famous of the State's hostelries. At the time of the destruction of the hotel by fire, a dozen or more years ago, the younger Hurty achieved distinction by alarming guests in parts of the hotel to which other rescuers did not venture.

PUBLIC SPEECHES BY PHONE

If a device which the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is developing turns out successfully, big gatherings like national political conventions will be robbed of most of their terrors. Instead of a temporary or permanent Chairman trying to make himself heard to several thousand people by shouting himself hoarse amid the hub-bub of demonstrations, such Chairmen will talk in an ordinary voice through a sensitive transmitter and each delegate and spectator will hear perfectly what is being said simply by applying an equally sensitive receiver to his or her ear.

N. V. Kingsbury, Vice President of the telephone company, tested the instrument in his office on Monday before going to Philadelphia to address the twelfth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Mr. Kingsbury told his audience that his company was experimenting with a wonderful invention that would enable audiences much larger than the one he was addressing to hear addresses perfectly through telephonic communications, even though the audiences were thousands of miles removed from the speaker.

Mr. Kingsbury said yesterday that his company was experimenting with a highly sensitive transmitter and receiver that would transmit any sound, no matter how casually the speaker addressed his audience. The system has already been perfected and successfully tried out on comparatively small audiences. The same system was used at the meeting of the Telephone Society of New York, held at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory on the night of May 19, when each one of 3,250 members of the society was supplied with a receiver which enabled him to hear perfectly every word of the speaker. The system was also connected with telephone societies in a dozen cities reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coasts, and each individual in each city heard perfectly every word that was spoken.

PLAN NEW JEWISH SCHOOL.

Union of American Hebrew Congregations Acquires Bronx Property.

The Synagogue and School Extension Department of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations will open a new Jewish religious day school in the Bronx early next month. Rabbi Jacob D. Schwarz, who is in charge of the New York office of the organization, will be the Superintendent. The school will be in the old Tremont Presbyterian Church in Washington Avenue. There will be classes three times a week and Jewish history and religion will be taught. On Saturday devotional exercises will be held.

The work will be carried on under the general direction of Judge David Leventritt, Chairman; Judge Irving Lehman, Vice Chairman; Messrs. Jacob J. Corn, Daniel B. Freedman, Frederick L. Guggenheimer, Charles Jacoby, Nathaniel H. Levi, J. Leonard Levy, Adolph Lewisohn, Julius M. Mayer, Max L. Schallek, and Ludwig Vogelstein. The ministers of the congregations belonging to the union in this city will constitute the New York Board of Supervisors under the Chairmanship of Hyman G. Enelow of Temple Emanu-El.

SAY ENO WAS SANE.

Prominent Real Estate Men Testify to His Business Acumen.

Testimony tending to show that Amos F. Eno, who died leaving the residue of his estate, estimated at $5,000,000 or more, to Columbia University, was in possession of all of his faculties when he signed the disputed document was introduced yesterday by the proponents, when the trial was resumed before Surrogate Cohalan and a jury.

Real estate men with whom Mr. Eno had done business for many years told of his keen business sense, which they had noticed remained with him until the time of his death. They all denied that he was careless in his dress or otherwise different than formerly. These men, George R. Read, William J. Van Pelt, Robert J. Dowling, and Peter R. Weller, declared that Mr. Eno never seemed irrational.

Ex-Supreme Court Justice William N. Cohen and Justice Wauhope Lynn of the Municipal Court told of their friendship with Mr. Eno and of their belief in his sanity. Justice Lynn said he had discussed the real estate situation in January, 1915, at a dinner party with Mr. Eno, who displayed an accurate knowledge of the values of property in various parts of the city.

BOY SCOUT KILLS SISTER.

Rifle Accidentally Explodes and Girl Dies in Hospital.

Fourteen-year-old Louis Ludwig, son of Nathan Ludwig, a tailor of 1,038 Lowell Street, Bronx, bought a small rifle the other day to use as a Boy Scout, and he took it to the roof yesterday afternoon to clean it. It exploded as he handled it, and the bullet entered the head of his ten-year-old sister Gussie. Louis and his brother Bernhard, 15 years old, told their mother the little girl had fallen out of a chair and hurt herself; but when Dr. Dall of Fordham Hospital found the bullet wound the boy confessed.

The girl was rushed to the hospital, but died there a few hours later. Young Ludwig was arrested but paroled in custody of his father.

Tully to Produce New Plays.

Richard Walton Tully announced yesterday that he would produce several new plays next season. His first production will be made in the Lyric Theatre Labor Day, and will be an original play. It will be given a spectacular production, it is promised.

Guy Bates Post recently concluded a tour of 126 weeks in Mr. Tully's melodrama, "Omar, the Tentmaker," and early in December the actor will be seen in a modern drama being written for him by John Hunter Booth. Mr. Tully has also accepted a play entitled "The Settlement," by Edwin Bradford, which he plans to produce next year. He may also introduce some of his plays in London, beginning with "The Rose of the Rancho."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A new musical comedy, entitled "Have a Heart," the book and lyrics by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse, the music by Jerome Kern, has been accepted for production by Elisabeth Marbury. The piece will be presented early next season in one of the theatres Miss Marbury will manage.

John Harwood, who played the role of the butler with Cyril Maude in "Grumpy," and Jeffrys Lewis have been engaged for important roles in "Please Help Emily," the comedy in which Ann Murdock will be seen at the Lyceum early in August.

Marie Tempest will bring her engagement in "A Lady's Name" at the Maxine Elliott Theatre to a close next Saturday night. After the heated term she will resume the comedy in one of the Shubert theatres.

Barnett Parker, who was seen here last Winter in "Hobson's Choice," has been added to Lew Fields's supporting cast in "Step This Way" at the Shubert.

The motion pictures entitled "How Britain Prepared," which have been on exhibition for the last six weeks in the Lyceum Theatre, will be transferred to the Standard next Sunday.

When Blanche Ring comes to town in Willard Mack's play "Jane O'Day from Broadway," William P. Carleton will again be her leading man. Mr. Carleton was in Miss Ring's company in "The Yankee Girl."

Evan-Burrows Fontaine will present a program of Hawaiian, Egyptian, Hindu, and Greek dances at the Palace next week. Kenneth Harlan will be her dancing partner.

The Famous Players Film Company has obtained the screen rights to "Under Fire," "Under Cover," "Rolling Stones," and "Nearly Married," four plays originally produced by Selwyn & Co. The work of translating "Under Cover" to the films has already been begun with Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore in the principal roles.

NAVY MAN ASSAILS ORATOR.

Says Suffrage Speaker in Broadway Offered Insult.

Louis Kutner, a convert to woman suffrage through the efforts, it is said, of Mrs. Robert Adamson, wife of the Fire Commissioner, held a suffrage meeting last evening on the southwest corner of Broadway and Ninety-sixth Street. Despite a religious meeting on the northeast corner and a Socialist meeting on the northwest, Kutner soon drew a crowd in which were eight sailors from the United States ship Arkansas, as well as Jack O'Brien, chief electrician of a torpedo boat, the name of which he wouldn't tell.

Kutner later declared he had never said anything such thing, but, in the course of his remarks, O'Brien understood the speaker to exclaim:

"Soldiers and sailors are all bums."

"You're a liar!" said O'Brien, and kicked Kutner's soapbox pedestal out from under him. As the orator descended O'Brien clipped him scientifically on the point of the jaw and started him, with his soap box, rolling toward West End Avenue. The eight sailors tried to join in, but O'Brien insisted it was a private fight, so they fairly pleaded with the crowd for some one to insult the flag. No one did.

Some one telephoned for the reserves, who came from the 100th Street Station under Sergeant Brophy. There was nothing for them to do, however. O'Brien was through fighting, and no one else wanted to. Kutner insisted he had never said what O'Brien thought he had said, and O'Brien said he was sorry he had thought he said it, and there the affair ended.

RACES FOR "SPLASH WEEK."

Girls Will Compete in Public Baths of Manhattan.

Water polo, driving contests and swimming races, with the most expert girl swimmers in New York as participants, and water stunts by the Girls' Municipal Swimming Class will be the unusual features of "Splash Week," beginning next Monday, at the Manhattan Public Baths.

Miss Katherine F. Mehrtens, President of the National Women's Life Saving League, and Miss Charlotte Epstein, Chairman of the Athletic Committee of the League, both champion swimmers, will have charge of the program. The women swimmers will contest for honors on Monday evening, July 3, at the Rivington Street Pool, 326 Rivington Street; on the afternoon of July 4 at the Battery Floating Bath; on Wednesday evening at the East Twenty-third Street Pool; Thursday at Rutgers Place Bath; Friday at the West Sixtieth Street Pool and Saturday evening at East Fifty-fourth Street Bath. Water polo will be played on the evening of July 4 at the new West Twenty-eighth Street Bath and also on Friday evening, July 7, at West Sixtieth Street Pool. In order to encourage contestants to enter each contest, the Women's Life Saving League will give a gold wrist watch to the girl scoring the largest number of points during the week.

MUTUAL RE-ELECTS FREULER

Film Corporation Adopts a Policy of All-Star Production.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mutual Film Corporation yesterday John R. Freuler was re-elected President. It was Mr. Freuler who, as head of the Mutual last Winter, engaged Charles Chaplin at a salary said to be in excess of $600,000. A number of changes were made in the personnel of the other officers. Crawford Livingston Hall, former Chairman of the Executive Board, was elected First Vice President; George W. Hall of Chicago, Second Vice President; Samuel S. Hutchinson of Chicago, Treasurer, and Samuel Field was re-elected Secretary. The Executive Board includes Mr. Freuler, Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Field, J. C. Graham, and T. H. Cochrane of Portage, Wis.

It was decided to establish executive offices in Chicago. These new offices will become the distribution centre of the corporation, while the local offices will have charge of the production end of the business. It was decided to adopt a policy of all-star production, and hereafter only established players will be presented in Mutual features.

BAKST ART AT HIPPODROME.

Charles Dillingham yesterday received a cable from Leon Bakst, the Russian artist, accepting an offer to design the costumes and scenery for next season's production at the Hippodrome. M. Bakst has a studio in Paris, where he does much of his work, and he has arranged to come here for the opening performance of the new spectacle, which is scheduled for Monday night, Sept. 4.

Leon Bakst is one of the most famous of the group of foreign artists whose work in recent years has revolutionized the art of stage decoration. He is a colorist whose vivid effects are sometimes bizarre and often daring. He has been identified closely with the Serge de Diaghileff Ballet Russe, and his stage art is best known here through the setting he painted for "Scheherazade" used by the ballet during its engagement here last season. In Paris Bakst's decorations have long been features of the Théatre du Châlet and the Opera House, and he has also done much work for the Petrograd Opera.

Organizing Actor-Soldier Brigade.

If the plans of Mortimer Kaphan, an impersonator of the characters of Dickens's stories, carry, a troop of actors will offer their services in the event of war with Mexico. Mr. Kaphan has taken steps to organize a company of soldiers, to be recruited principally from the men of the stage. He plans to give a series of performance in various theatres to raise funds to buy equipment for his actor-soldier brigade. Headquarters will be established in the building at 1,947 Broadway.

THERE MUST BE NO MISTAKES.

The Mexican crisis may not terminate in actual war, but it has led to active preparations for war, and the conduct of those preparations by the Government, through the War Department and its bureaus, will be closely scrutinized by the American people, who remember the sad results of mismanagement in 1898. In spite of the warnings of the last three years and the demand for preparedness throughout the country, now tardily heeded by Congress, we are so pressed for men that thousands have been summoned for arduous border duty who have had little or no intensive training. Granting, for the sake of argument, that a majority of the organized militia now being converted into first-line troops have had sufficient military training to fit them to take up their new task, (and we are certainly much better off in that regard than we were eighteen years ago,) there are various battalions and companies included in the mobilization call whose members have never had outdoor military practice. It is not necessary to specify. But it is essential that all bodies of young men summoned to the front shall have a chance to make themselves fit for the duties they are to perform before they are put to the severe test.

It is essential, also, that there should be no delay in providing supplies for the stations these hastily summoned soldiers are to occupy. While it is not to be apprehended that there will be any lack of weapons to fight with, if fighting is necessary, and we are willing to believe that machine guns and ammunition will be provided in the needful quantities, it is even more necessary that the sanitary conditions of the camps shall be first rate, that the water supply shall be beyond suspicion, and the food of wholesome quality and plentiful. The mistakes of 1898 were due to carelessness and ignorance. Explanations were easy if excuses were hard to make. Those mistakes must not be repeated. Ignorance no longer exists and carelessness must not be tolerated. Orders must be intelligible and they must be promptly obeyed. The medical situation has greatly improved since the Spanish war. There is no danger of typhoid. There should be no danger of epidemics of any kind. The Administration cannot afford to neglect any precaution, and no responsible official should be retained in service who shows a tendency to perform his work in a purely perfunctory way. There is hard, grinding work to be done, and it must be done with intelligence and zeal. Meanwhile, the suggestion that time be taken to train the guardsmen and inure them to the hardships of war, made by ex-Secretary STIMSON in the letter we print this morning, should have full consideration. In an undertaking for which we are ill prepared, to make haste slowly may be the wisest rule.

THE PATRON.

The more Mr. ROOSEVELT's letter commanding the Progressive Party to commit suicide is studied, the more precious its data become to Theodorologists. It is a new chapter in that unconscious egocentrism which is the beginning, middle, and end of his political system and policy:

> It is urged against Mr. HUGHES that he was supported by the various so-called German-American alliances. I believe that the attitude of these professional German-Americans was due, not in the least to any liking for Mr. HUGHES, but solely to their antagonism to me. They were bound to defeat me for the nomination.

So was the Old Guard, so were "the crooks" of 1912, bound to defeat Me. It is clear, then, that the nomination of Mr. HUGHES was due to Mr. ROOSEVELT, to the reactionary Republican hatred of Mr. ROOSEVELT. Therefore, so his singular logic runs, if expressed in plain words, a nomination dictated by hyphenates and "crooks" is a highly Progressive nomination which his fellow Progressives, when they coldly consider this question—a good many of them are hot at present—"will for the most part" "strongly support" as he does.

All through the letter he appears as the chooser, the great elector, the guarantor. "Assuredly, if I support a candidate it may be accepted as proof that I am certain that the candidate is incapable of being influenced by the evil intrigues of these hyphenated Americans." This must irk Mr. HUGHES more than a little, though he has to be grateful. His own character and intellect, though Mr. ROOSEVELT, as his protector, gives him a handsome certificate, should give a strong presumption of his anti-hyphenism. But in Mr. ROOSEVELT's view it is the indorsement and not the draft that counts. He is My candidate. Therefore he has all possible virtues in such measure as they are bestowed by radiation from Me. He is My protégé. Take him.

This is Mr. ROOSEVELT's method, always interesting and often effective. The quality of things and men does not consist in themselves. It is not intrinsic. He stamps them with his approval or disapproval, and thereby they become bully or infamous. A primitive psychology, common among children.

Is there a touch of restiveness, of resentment against his magnificent but irritating patron, in Mr. HUGHES's application to him of a line, a little altered, from "The Battle Hymn of the Republic": "You have sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat"? You think instinctively of the shouting, singing, weeping, jumping camp-meeting brethren of 1912, going forth with their breastplates of righteousness and helmets of salvation to destroy the hosts of evil at Armageddon. And now the call is a recall. Not merely retreat but unconditional surrender en masse is ordered. The Elephant is doing the trumpeting. Mr. ROOSEVELT and Mr. PENROSE, Mr. PERKINS and Mr. SMOOT, HIRAM JOHNSON and Mr. CRANE, are walking sedately, hand in hand, working for the election of Mr. HUGHES. Principles are fine, but, after all, the one thing needful to a practical man is votes. And so "the movement that will never go back" is transformed into the movement that will never "come back." Progressivism is the return to reactionarism.

There is murmuring among the stiff-necked. But the great consulter of the will of the people follows and imposes his own. Let the heathen rage. He is back where he is comfortable. He is going to have a bully time. The centre of the stage belongs to him. Mr. HUGHES is but a tolerated accident and property. Mr. ROOSEVELT is running by proxy.

"PUNISHING" THE DEMOCRATS.

A suffragist writing in yesterday's TIMES says:

> I have great respect for THE TIMES, but does it know that in all the Presidential elections in the free States since 1896 the average change of votes needed to throw the election to the other party was 9 per cent. of the total vote cast? Also that in 1912 none of the equal suffrage States would have required a change of more than ⅞ per cent. of the total vote to swing the Presidential election in the State?

Exactly what would the enthusiasts of the Woman's Party gain for the Cause if they could throw the women's vote—a myth—or enough of it in the twelve suffrage States to defeat Mr. WILSON in those States? They would punish him and his party for refusing their aid to the passage of a Federal suffrage amendment. The Republican position on suffrage is the same as the Democratic. Each party leaves suffrage to the States. Since neither can consent to a Federal amendment, the only "punishment" or "protest" the suffragists can make would seem to be to stay away from the polls. But in these days who, except the stern and unbending professionals, wastes a thought on woman suffrage?

NAVY AND ARMY PLANS.

The threat of war has put the preparedness measures on a proper basis. Whatever our condition may now be, we are going to be prepared for defense in the near future if the plans are carried out. Under the President's influence the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs has constructed a program of naval extension which will command the approval of the whole country. There is little likelihood of further opposition to a large navy in the House of Representatives.

The situation has changed since the House passed its bill. The advantage of possessing an adequate navy in case of war with Mexico, although there would be no naval engagements, is thoroughly appreciated. Besides a provision for four superdreadnoughts and four battle cruisers for the ensuing year, and an increased number of destroyers, the details of the Navy Department's five years' building scheme, rejected by the House, are to be compressed in a three years' term, so that by 1919 we shall have, either afloat or in process of construction, twenty-seven first-class battleships, six battle cruisers, twenty-five second line battleships, with a larger number of armored cruisers, scout cruisers, and cruisers of the first, second, and third class, destroyers, fleet and coast submarines, monitors, gunboats, and auxiliaries than there has hitherto been reason to hope we should ever possess. There is no disposition now to delay the increase of personnel in the navy. The force of enlisted men will be increased by 20,000.

The military appropriation has been increased to $180,000,000 so that the immediate demands may be met and army extension be unhampered by lack of money. There will be funds to pay for everything needed. Political lines have at last been obliterated in the consideration of army and navy plans. The country will cheerfully pay the bills for the sake of defense. The Mexican trouble is irritating, but we must be thankful for the awakening it has caused in Congress.

VOTING BY MAIL.

Many actors and commercial travelers, in particular, in this State have favored legislation whereby a legal resident of a State may vote by mail if he be out of it at election time. There is a State primary in North Dakota today, and divers North Dakotans in other States have filled in their ballots, spent a quarter, or whatever the price, for a notary's certificate and seal, and so voted by post. Is there any other State than North Dakota where this privilege to absentee voters has been granted? Has there been any complaint of its working in that State?

THE CRUCIAL HOUR.

By a process of frightfully costly erosion the Germans continue to win ground east of Verdun. The French, fighting with their backs to the river, yield it piecemeal, exacting for each new bit a price which they think it is not worth. That has been the tactics of defense from the first, and military theory is satisfied with the results; but sentiment has clung obstinately to the belief that the Germans could not take Verdun. Sentiment is said to have overruled military judgment and to have insisted upon a defense which ought not to have been attempted. More for emotional than for military reasons, the French have been fighting all this time a defensive action on two sides of a river. If they had abandoned Verdun in the beginning and had taken a position on the west bank of the Meuse, a vast amount of life and strength might have been saved.

Any progress of the German attack, therefore, no matter how slow or costly, is a deep disappointment to the French people, and the accelerated erosion of terrain under the beating of German waves in the last ten days would have produced, perhaps, much more depression among them but for the portents of events even greater than these, events which may change the tide of war entirely. "The hour of action for the Allies is here," says the Matin. "Attack succeeds defense on many fronts." London, say the news dispatches, is waiting eagerly for the tidings of a great adventure. In Paris and Rome the thought of a combined offensive on all fronts at once is joyously elaborated. The official War Office bulletins from London and Berlin tell of increasing activity on that part of the western front held by the British. The beginning of an offensive here has been long awaited.

It was inconceivable that the British, now as well supplied as the Germans with artillery and superior to them in numbers, from Ypres to the Somme River, would go on making war on the old plan of usurious attrition, instead of striking a blow in concert with Russia to relieve the strain at Verdun, where for nearly four months the French alone have borne the successive shocks of the mightiest offensive in the history of the war. The apparent dilatoriness of the English has been much commented upon, but criticism may have been and probably was premature. According to Mr. ASQUITH, the British have been biding their time. In a speech at Ladybank, two weeks ago, he said: "They have known from the first that Sir DOUGLAS HAIG was not only ready but eager to render them help whenever and wherever and in whatsoever shape they desired." The co-operation between the joint staffs of all the Allies, he added, was nowhere more complete than on the western front, where every move had been concerted with perfect understanding.

The assertion that "they have known" refers, of course, to the French, and "from the first" must be supposed to mean from the beginning of the battle at Verdun in February. The implication is that until now, in the combined judgment of the Anglo-French commanders, the situation required neither the aid of English troops in defense of Verdun nor a British offensive further north as a counterstroke. There was time for further preparation. Several times, especialy once at Ypres in the early Spring, it seemed as if the Germans were trying to provoke combat with the British. A premature offensive is foredoomed. Indeed, some critics hold that the most brilliant achievement so far this year on the part of the Anglo-French commanders has been to withstand the temptation to make a counterattack too soon. So now, if the hour of action has struck, as Paris and London seem equally to believe, and if the increased activity on the British part of the western front is the portent really of a well-mounted offensive enterprise, then it is permissible to expect important developments.

"AFTER THE WAR"?

The economic program of the Entente Allies, as furnished by Ambassador SHARPE at Paris and published in yesterday's TIMES in full, bears out the cabled summary. It deserves to be added to Mr. LAMONT's catalogue of the illusions of the war. There is no greater illusion than that the war can end before this cannon is spiked. Even the exhausted South would have found breath for another last-ditch struggle if it had been advertised that the North plotted its economic inferiority after the war.

Can it be necessary to call the roll of wars to show that none within memory has been followed by arrangements for continuance of hostilities under the forms of peace? Are there more friendly nations than Russia and Japan, and would they be friends if either were party to a conspiracy against the other? Were not England and France enemies, and also England and Russia, and are they not now united against Germany? Could that tripartite alliance be possible if one of the three were in an economic conspiracy against either of the others? Did the political and diplomatic Dreibund survive the demonstration to Italy that its interests lay with the Allies against Germany?

The surest basis of war is a conflict of interests, and the Allies' economic program plots just that. It is either a bluff designed to induce a surrender through fright or it is something invented to be surrendered for a consideration. It is little likely to frighten such an enemy as Germany, and nothing can be bought with it. When peace comes it will be because it is welcome as a relief from war, and not as a lever for further war of another sort.

After the war the world's greatest need will be cheap goods. The next greatest will be gold as the basis of credit to sustain a mountain of debt. Every nation will be oversupplied with the means of making munitions of war, and will be short of supplies for reconstruction of a more comfortable life. No nation can afford to be excluded from the world exchanges of goods for gold and of gold for goods. The more commercial a nation is, the less possible is it for it to convert itself into a hermit nation by a conspiracy against other nations. The world will not endure it, and no nation can be extruded from the commercial world by a conspiracy in restraint of trade. A national tariff may conceivably be protective in self-defense, just as it is lawful for a trust to develop itself to any dimensions in methods of sound trade. But a conspiracy of nations to engross trade cannot be a measure of self-defense under the guise of so-called protection. It is aggression.

The Allies' economic program is along the lines of our own "high and higher" protection, which has proved itself impracticable for the most self-contained nation in the world. No nation in the modern world can live to itself, still less can a conspiracy of nations do so. It will not be necessary to combine against the conspiracy, because it will fall of its own weight. It is doubtful if the breath of life can be breathed into it, because of the intricacy of the commercial relations which it is necessary to correlate. Individual interests in every nation will conspire against the combination, for trade follows profit, not politics, even of an economic sort.

Under the stimulus of war every nation has greatly increased its productivity. Factories have been enlarged. Males have worked longer hours. Women and children have learned that work is a blessing, not a curse. The workers will not return to idleness. The factories will not be dismantled. Throughout Europe there will be reduplication of what is reported from our munition factories. The locomotive works which have been making shells are preparing to make agricultural tractors for export. The powder works are preparing to make dyes. The same process will be intense among Saxons, Teutons, Latins, Russians, Turks. There never was such mechanical and human capacity for production, and never such incentive for supplying such unprecedented wants. After our civil war we astonished the world with our economic capacity during great prostration. The hard times of the seventies were the solid basis of the mad booms of the nineties. Our commercial invasion of Europe amazed it, but the goods were taken. The economic program of the Allies is a conspiracy against "dumping." The richest nation in the world, the one ablest to buy, and the most compelled to sell to keep its workers busy in filling the wants of itself and of the world, is the most affrighted at "dumping." The erection of a new protection upon the ruins of nations is an idle dream. More trade is the remedy, nor less; more natural trade, not a controlled trade.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Rivalry Unworthy of France.

According to a report that seemingly went from Berlin to Switzerland and thence to London before it came to us—a journey in the course of which many things can happen to news—the recent dropping of bombs from French aeroplanes on the City of Karlsruhe resulted in the killing of over a hundred civilians, of whom five were women and seventy-five children. As told in the Courrier des Etats Unis, there is added to the account the statement that the bombs were aimed at the railway station, but fell, instead, on the building in which Hagenbeck's wild animals are exhibited.

That there was a raid of this sort, made in reprisal for like attacks on the open towns of Bar-le-Duc and Lunéville, was stated in an official French bulletin issued on June 22, but no estimate of casualties caused was therein given. That they could have been as great as now reported seems doubtful, but even if there has been an exaggeration of the numbers, the bombardment was evidently a shockingly successful attempt at vengeance of a sort to be deeply regretted by the friends of France.

Reprisals in kind for acts properly characterized as atrocious can be justified on only one ground—that they will prevent a repetition of the atrocities. Almost never, however, can that end be so attained, and such activities rarely have any better effect than the starting of a competition in ruthless cruelty, and surely France could not be proud of proving superiority over her enemy in hurling death from the sky on women and children. Her rulers, military and civil, and her newspapers, have been properly emphatic in denouncing the aerial attacks on London and the coast towns of England, as well as on the undefended cities in their own country. In these denunciations such part of the civilized world as is not engaged in the war has joined with the non-Teutonic belligerents. But indiscriminate slaughter at Karlsruhe is as repugnant to the sense of right and decency as is the same thing anywhere else, and its inevitable effect will be to create, or tend to create, a feeling that all of the nations at war in Europe have gone blood-mad. That judgment, as yet, has been passed upon them only by critics who speak in haste or thoughtlessly, and by those who are for peace at any price and war at none.

Twenty Miles Proved Insuperable.

As it is now midwinter in the antarctic, the failure of Lieutenant Sir ERNEST SHACKLETON, in the steamer lent to him by the Uruguayan Government, to reach Elephant Island is little more than the ending of a forlorn hope. His expectations of success could not have been great, but, as would be the natural impulse of such a man, he eagerly took the one small chance of saving the companions whom he had been forced to leave behind on the ice when he himself, after his ship was crushed, assumed with a few others the frightful risks of starting northward for relief in an open whaleboat.

In spite of all the difficulties and dangers of navigation at this season in that part of the world, SHACKLETON was able on his return to reach a point within twenty miles of the little island. That the short remainder of the journey could not be made must have been for him the cause of bitter grief, for it meant that, if still alive, the unfortunates marooned on that most inclement of coasts are condemned to more months of desperate struggle with cold and hunger.

Evidently the Commander's anxiety as to their fate is very great, as well it may be, but he insists that there is more than a possibility of their survival. Their scanty stores may be eked out by means of the native birds, and twelve cases of provisions which may or may not be found by the prisoners were left on the ice at the point nearest to where they are supposed to be that was attained.

The expedition has been unlucky from the beginning. The ice conditions off the continental shelf were the worst that have been encountered by antarctic explorers for many years, and the weather was a succession of furious storms like those that caused the death of SCOTT and his pathetically disappointed party. "Nature" has been in a favoring mood only for AMUNDSEN in the Far South. The call of the unknown to the adventurous, however, remains as loud and compelling as ever, and when peace returns to the world, doubtless other parties, one after another, will try to solve the mysteries of that grim land.

All who go there suffer, and many die, but they must have their sufficient reward or they would not go again and again. What the reward is, ordinary, home-staying folk cannot understand, but it is not necessary that they should.

Might Wait Till He Is Accused.

A Berlin authority credited by The Associated Press with high competence to speak, indignantly denies the truth of current suspicions that there are German influences of some kind behind and inspiring the belligerent attitude of Mexico. The statement that Germany or its representatives are doing anything of the kind this competent authority scornfully characterizes as "an unmitigated lie."

Such vehemence as that seems unnecessary. In the first place, the only basis for the charges, so far as known, is the obvious fact that for the United States to become involved in a war with Mexico would have certain not unimportant advantages for the Central Powers. It would be natural enough, and in the circumstances almost a patriotic duty, for Germans in Mexico, and not particularly reprehensible for Germans elsewhere than in the United States, to do what they could to make us use our arms and ammunition for our own purposes instead of selling them to the Allies. Secondly, it is hard to believe that men as well informed as some of the Mexican leaders are could even dream of fighting the United States, except under persuasions that only Germans have any conceivable reason for using.

The competent Berlin authority would find it easier to carry conviction to minds now suspicious of German plottings in Mexico if we had not had so much experience here as to the possibilities of Teutonic "propaganda." Yet few, if any, Americans take the charges very seriously, and until they are made with more definiteness than at present it seems hardly worth while to get excited about them.

To Repair the Sailors' Loss.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the suggestion of the Lord Archbishop of Dublin, who heartily approves of this appeal, we desire to enlist the sympathies of your readers in the great loss which the sailors of all nationalities have sustained by the total destruction of the Missions to Seamen's Church and Institute, Eden Quay, Dublin, during the recent riots in the city. Expert opinion estimates our loss at not less than £3,500, a sum which we cannot reasonably hope to be borne by the charitable and small community of the Church of Ireland, many of whom have themselves sustained heavy losses in the rebellion. The extent of the empire's indebtedness to her sailors is beyond calculation, and it is on behalf of these men that we confidently appeal for support to enable us to provide again for seamen in this city an opportunity of worship and recreation and home comforts when away from home. Subscriptions for the rebuilding fund will be gratefully received and acknowledged by

What Horses Put Up With.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to the appeal for the horses, printed in THE TIMES, it would be very fine if the men of our city would trouble themselves to look after the horses and remove their feed bags, whether the horse belongs to them or not; but from the looks of the horses of our great city I think they need something to eat first. They all look pretty thin. There seem to be a number of horses with sores on their hipbones, I suppose caused from falling on the ice last Winter. These sores are not covered with skin as yet. Cannot something be done to heal them before the hot days come and the flies bother these poor creatures?

THE SUBSTITUTE'S POSITION

New York, June 24, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter to THE TIMES headed "Too Many Substitutes," it is stated that vacancies remain unfilled for months and years and that these positions are filled by substitutes. Also it is shown that this system has given way to the "highly objectionable and pernicious practice of personal preference and favoritism in giving appointments" when such appointments are finally made.

Is the public really indifferent? It seems rather a matter of insufficient knowledge. In the public school system of New York today there are countless teachers who are on the eligible list substituting in vacancies which have remained unfilled in some cases for years. To be on the eligible list means that one has met all the requirements and successfully passed all examinations required by the Board of Education.

In the cooking department alone there are sufficient facts to make one wonder. There are 234 teaching positions in that department. At the moment there are 167 regularly appointed teachers; 67 vacancies are filled by substitutes. More than half that number are on the eligible list. From the examination of 1914 there are still twenty awaiting appointment. The total number on the eligible list is 74.

The Borough of Manhattan has 23 schools with vacancies filled by substitutes; Brooklyn 24 schools; Bronx 19 and Richmond 25. In some schools there are less than five full days given to cooking and one teacher then divides her time between two or more schools.

An odd fact in this connection is that a cooking teacher receives credit in New York for work done outside of the city, but one who serves as a substitute in the New York schools, although on the eligible list here, receives no such credit. After appointment under license No. 1 several years of further experience is required to obtain the permanent license, but no credit is allowed for the period of service of the substitute, although she is on the eligible list all that time.

Then as to the matter of salary. The substitute who has been waiting for years for her appointment receives a per diem salary, loses pay every holiday and, moderately figured, her loss is about $200 per year. To most teachers that is an exceedingly important item. Multiplied by 67 substitutes, this practice has been well expressed by some one as "only an expedient to economize at the expense of these young women." It should certainly be brought to an end.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to appeal to Americans for funds to equip and maintain on a larger and more effective scale the Border Hospital which is located at Brownsville, Texas, only the Rio Grande separating it from Mexico. During the policing of the border by our army the last three years this hospital has given unselfish and gratuitous service to our soldiers and their families, as well as caring for numerous wounded Mexicans left helpless on the field, who otherwise would have died.

This little hospital was established by the Misses Kelly, daughters of a retired army officer, and through their devoted efforts it has been maintained. These ladies have struggled on with inadequate equipment and meagre furnishings, and with constantly decreasing resources, yet they have done wonderful work. We want to see this hospital placed upon a solid basis of efficiency. At present it consists of a row of one-room frame cottages, with no plumbing or proper medical equipment. The Red Cross has offered certain supplies and possibly a donation of $1,000, but this is wholly inadequate. At least $12,000 is needed immediately.

A committee working under the auspices of the International Reconstruction League, of which Dr. Charles W. Eliot is President, has been formed for the further equipment and maintenance of this hospital. This committee consists of the following members: Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Mrs. Leonard Wood, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, the Hon. Lindley M. Garrison, Charles D. Norton of the American Red Cross, Colonel Henry L. Higginson of Boston, and Basil Miles of Washington, Treasurer.

America has shown its great sympathy for the suffering in Europe caused by the war, through the medium of generous contributions. Is not this the moment when we should also respond to the needs of our own?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let me thank you for your fine editorial article on ball playing in our streets. I live on 118th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue, and ball tossing goes on there every day by a horde of little and big lads—residents of the block. They have been spoken to and the police have been appealed to, but there is a "lookout" provided by these young lawbreakers, and "Cop's coming!" puts the balls in their pockets and innocence on their faces. It's not the lads' fault; it's the parents'. These persons ought to know that their sons are lawbreakers. I have seen a young lady struck by a ball on the chest and knocked nearly senseless. The young ruffians vanished at once, like a pack of thieves, down the cellars of the apartment houses. Not one of them ran to her assistance, and one or two were chaps of 17 or over.

Dogs That Are Refined.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

William B. Dillon speaks of the "refined" dogs of today and asks that we consent to keep them on leash instead of being muzzled. Will Mr. Dillon explain just how the law is to determine whose dogs are refined?

TO ONE WHO WENT TO MEXICO.

Now you are gone, the words I would have said
Come flying, fleet and eager, through my head,
Like white-winged birds that clamor to go free,
Bearing high hope of faith and victory,
And wee words, too, that hide behind the eyes,
To flutter forth like startled butterflies—
Dear words, that I would have come back to you
As my words, when the day's long march is through.
And you are gone!

Instead, our words were all of our least thought,
The shallow wit, the hollow laughter brought,
As if we'd meet again, somewhere, tomorrow,
And there was no such thing, to us, as sorrow,
And no such thing as war. To you the past
Cried out in warrior's blood, and you, the last
Of mighty fighting men, were first to go.
No word was said, and yet, do you not know—
Now you are gone?

AVERY GAUL.

By HENRY L. STIMSON,

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The press reports of this morning publish the order of the War Department directing that the various units of the militia be sent to the Mexican border as soon as they have been mustered "without a moment's unnecessary delay." The order closes with the following sentence: "The Secretary of War enjoins on you the grave importance of the utmost promptness in these movements." The same press reports announce that pursuant to this order some of the units of the New York and New England militia will be sent to the Mexican border on Wednesday.

No loyal American would willingly embarrass his Government at a time of crisis. Every loyal American will gladly lend his utmost endeavor to the support of his Government at such a time. But in every popular Government the support of an intelligent public opinion is necessary to effective action, and there are various reasons why in this crisis, at this time, and with this Administration, the people of this country should be clearly informed where they are going and what it is proposed they should do.

In the first place, there has been widespread feeling among thoughtful people that our actions toward Mexico during the last three years have been characterized by opportunism rather than by definite policy; that we have been drifting rather than moving toward a definite goal. The Administration is now seeking a new term of official power. It is inevitable that its policies in regard to Mexico should be subjected to a special scrutiny in view of the new lease of power which it is seeking.

In the second place, there is no need of hasty or secret action. There is no national emergency in the Mexican crisis. The United States is in no real danger from poor distracted Mexico. There is every reason for making sure of our purpose, and for then taking carefully and deliberately the steps necessary to accomplish that purpose. On the other hand, it is inevitable that undue haste and lack of preparation will cause unnecessary suffering and danger to thousands of individual Americans.

Moreover, we are engaged in a new military experiment. Under our new law we are trying to find out whether our State militia can be made the foundation for a national army. It is of vital importance that this experiment should be fairly conducted; that the militia should be given a fair trial; that if they are competent for the new work we should know it; that if they are not competent we should have the full facts as to their failure, undisguised by unfair conditions and not concealed under a gloss of journalistic patriotism. Our national life may some time depend on a correct understanding of the lesson of this experiment.

After scraping our country virtually bare of regular troops we have placed between 30,000 and 35,000 men either on the border or in Mexico in the Pershing expedition. The National Guard is our only other present force of even partially trained men. Over 70 per cent. of this National Guard are located in the twenty-one States which comprise the Eastern Department. Under the President's order of last Monday the militia units called out in the Eastern Department, when fully recruited up to war strength, would comprise 128,000 men. By Saturday night there had assembled either in camp or at their armories less than 29,000 men out of this 128,000 which were ordered. Furthermore, these units are now nearly all of them at peace strength. This means that there are with the colors less than half the men who would be there if the units were at war strength. Only 44 per cent. of the men now assembled have had training with the National Guard for one year or more. The additional men who will be recruited to bring the units up to war strength will, for the most part, be utterly raw and green, without even the slight experience of a National Guard training. It is estimated that only between 20 and 30 per cent. of the men in the regiments when recruited up to war strength will have even the moderate training of a year in the National Guard. A year's training in the National Guard means at the maximum about 100 hours of military drill or its equivalent. In the average case it means much less than that.

Compare these facts with what the European nations are doing under similar circumstances. Those nations are requiring that their raw recruits be drilled intensively for from nine to twelve months before being sent into action. Such intensive training involves about 2,400 hours of military drill during the year. Before the European recruit is considered fit for active service he must therefore have received some twenty-four times as much military training as the 20 per cent. of our proposed force will have had who have received a year of service in the guard.

The order of the War Department above quoted, its insistence upon the grave importance of haste, indicates the probability that these raw militiamen, the best of whom have received only this insignificant fraction of what is considered proper recruit training in Europe, are to be hurried immediately into active service. Necessarily most of them are physically soft and out of condition. Only seven days ago they were at their desks. Most of their units are still at peace strength. Their staff organizations have not yet begun to shake themselves down to the requirements of field service. The organizations of food, quartermaster and ordnance supplies are sure to work awkwardly and badly for a while. Organization which has existed only on paper in an armory cannot be expected to work in the field without some time to adjust itself.

The inevitable result of rushing such troops into active service can be read in the history of every war which this nation has waged. It means unnecessary checks, even defeat and humiliation. It means needless suffering, hardship and death on the part of those citizens who have been patriotic enough to come to their country's service. It means untold millions of unnecessary expense and loss to the nation.

Is there any exigency in the Mexican situation which necessitates this sacrifice which will surely come from hasty and imperfect preparation? On the contrary, does not the situation clearly require the deliberate and intelligent preparation of a force adequate to carry out effectively a definite national purpose? Secretary Lansing, in his note to the Mexican Government last Tuesday, stated that the only purpose of our military action was to protect our border against the depredation of bandits coming over from Mexico. Our Administration thus fixes this as the national aim toward which our present military efforts are to be directed. Now there are two military methods in which such an aim can be effectuated and only two. One method is to keep our troops on this side of the border until the raid occurs and then to endeavor to capture and punish the raiders, either by catching them in our territory or pursuing them over the line into Mexico. That is the method which we have tried to follow hitherto. The growing hostility of the Mexican Government and population seems to be making this method more and more difficult. The growing frequency with which plots to invade our territory are being hatched in the various Mexican communities along the border would seem to indicate that this method is becoming ineffective. The only other method is by taking military possession of the places where such conspiracies are hatched to make their formation impossible; by restoring a condition of law and order in the northern Mexican provinces which will prevent them from being a source of danger to this country.

Our expedition into Mexico is following neither of these methods. It has long since abandoned the pursuit of Villa. We do not know whether Villa is dead or alive. On the other hand, our troops are not allowed to follow the ordinary military rules of procedure which govern in the case of an army occupying hostile territory. We have penetrated 200 miles into Mexico and are facing a hostile army with apparently insufficient forces and a very precarious line of communication. We are not permitted to use the railroads or to enter the towns. Our expedition is a thorn in the flesh of Mexico without being permitted to serve a useful military purpose.

The situation thus seems to be drifting into war without any of the precautions or preparations which would make war justifiable or successful. We are advised by our military experts that in case of war with Mexico not less than 250,000 men would be required. Some of these experts have placed the figures much higher, even as high as 500,000. Under such circumstances, to drift along in a course which seems to be bringing on a war when we have only 35,000 regulars available and when these regulars can be only supplemented by a small force of militia with the imperfect training above described would not seem to be good military judgment. It is a safe maxim that after hostilities commence as they have now commenced the subsequent steps should be guided by military and not civil considerations. An army in the face of an enemy cannot be managed as a pawn for non-military purposes without disaster.

With due deference therefore to the more accurate information which those in authority may have, and actuated by no other motive than a fervent desire that our relations with Mexico may be settled effectively with as little bloodshed and expense as possible, it seems to me clear that the following course should be followed:

First—Our expeditionary force should be withdrawn from its present exposed position and placed in one which is strategically sound and where it will be immediately available for defense or offense, even if this involves a complete withdrawal at present from Mexico.

Second—Our Administration should definitely determine upon the military method by which the national purpose outlined in Secretary Lansing's note shall be accomplished. If this method means the taking and temporary holding of foreign territory, let us recognize it as what it is—a state of war—and obtain the necessary national authority for the Executive to act.

Third—The Administration should then deliberately and effectively enlist, train and equip a force sufficient to accomplish this national purpose along the military method thus chosen.

It is evidently the presence of General Pershing's force in Mexico which is causing the pressure upon our mobilization; which is tempting us to rush untrained men into a service for which we know they are unfitted. This nation is great enough and secure enough in its own good intentions both to withdraw that force from Mexico, if necessary, and, later, after proper preparation has been made, to undertake to do effectively what it cannot do effectively now. It would not take very long and it would be time well spent. If our Government should decide upon a definite military policy toward Mexico and should then intelligently bend its energies toward accomplishing that end, a very few months would put us in a position to see it through. We should then know how many of our National Guard could be counted on for this unusual duty. We should have time to enlist the additional volunteers that in all probability would be required, and, finally, we should have time to train and harden them all into a force which would be competent to do what the nation requires of it. Finally, the ultimate result, whatever it was, would be accomplished with only a fraction of the suffering and loss which will now inevitably follow.

HENRY L. STIMSON.

For a Vigilance Committee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Human sharks among us already scent a feast in Mexico. Two of them have just been caught in Texas and landed in prison at Fort Leavenworth upon conviction of having sold United States Army equipment to the enemy. Doubtless many bigger ones are busy sharpening their ugly teeth wherever arms and munitions for our defenders come from. Knowing from past experience what to expect, let us, of the honest people who will be taxed of blood and money to pay for the struggle just begun, band together in a vigilance committee under capable leaders to defend ourselves and our dear country against those who are planning and plotting at this moment to wring exorbitant profits from the needs of their compatriots.

On the other hand, let us applaud and try to emulate the fine patriotism of the many firms and individuals who are making generous provisions for their employes who join the colors. I call upon Major George Haven Putnam and the honorable men with him in the National Security League to operate a vigilance committee as part of their work.

In the event of war with Mexico it might be a good plan, in view of future preparedness, to enlist an unlimited number of volunteers—far more than would ordinarily be required. This would create a large reserve of well-trained men. An overwhelming force would be a decided advantage, regardless of the character of the warfare. Though this would be a little rough on the Mexicans it would enable us to be better prepared to protect them against possible aggression by a foreign power.

KATHLEEN HOWARD WEDS EDW. K. BAIRD

The wedding of Miss Kathleen Howard of 41 South Washington Square, who is to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House next season, and Edward Kellogg Baird, lawyer, of this city was solemnized at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chapel of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street.

The chapel was transformed into a bower of white flowers, against a background of green, for the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church. It was a quiet wedding, only the immediate relatives attending. There was no reception.

The bride wore a simple gown of white taffeta and tulle, her tulle veil falling over the face and about her like a cloud. It was caught at the coiffure by a coronet of orange blossoms and formed the train. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The couple left shortly after the ceremony for Bar Harbor, where they will spend July. In August they will be at Ardsley-on-Hudson, where Mr. Baird is a member of the Ardsley Club.

The bride will be one of the principal contraltos at the Metropolitan. She came originally from Buffalo, studied in New York, and then went to Paris and studied under Jean de Reszke. She was first heard in Germany, where she sang in the Royal Opera House at Darmstadt for several seasons. She also sang here with the Century Opera Company, of which Mr. Baird was President for a time. Mrs. Howard came from Paris for her daughter's wedding, as the family have lived there for some time.

MISS MEADOWS A BRIDE.

The wedding of Charles E. Reutter of New York and Miss Mildred Meadows, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Meadows of 14 East Sixtieth Street, was celebrated at 4:30 yesterday afternoon in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church, Fifty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, the rector. The chancel was banked with white hydrangeas and palms.

The bride walked with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white tulle frock, over a satin foundation, having a satin bodice and long court train, over which was draped the tulle veil. The veil was caught at the back of her coiffure, and orange blossoms extended from the veil and ended over each ear. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Marie E. Meadows, as maid of honor, and by the Misses Gertrude R. Reutter, a sister of the bridegroom; Frances Kennedy, Helma Knoop, Jean Hofer, and Inger Dessau. All of the attendants wore orchid-colored taffeta frocks, the skirts ruffled with georgette crepe of the same color, and the corsages having taffeta fichus, frilled with the crepe, as were also the sleeves. The maid of honor wore a leghorn poke bonnet, with a lavender bow at the back, and the others wore orchid-colored georgette crepe hats, with taffeta crowns. All carried clusters of mauve orchids.

Harry Reutter was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Walter Logan, Allen Butler, Barnard Powers, Theodore Helwig, Robert Klein, and Miguel de Aguero. A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 14 East Sixtieth Street. Mr. and Mrs. Reutter will spend the Summer at Seabright, and in the Autumn will return to New York to live.

HEAR MRS. LEEDS IS TO WED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—London society is much interested in rumors of the prospective engagement of Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the "Tinplate King," and Prince Christopher of Greece. She has been engaged so often by rumors that the present report is received with considerable doubt. Some of her friends go so far as to say that she is thinking the proposal over, but is almost certain to reject her princely suitor.

At Mrs. Leeds's London residence it was said today that she was out of town and would not be back until next month. Nothing whatever was known there, it was said, of any engagement. In fact, it was indicated that reports current on the subject were without foundation.

When Mr. Leeds died in France during 1908 he left his wife a fortune later appraised at $14,000,000. She was Miss Nannie May Stewart, daughter of a wealthy Ohio banker, and first married George Worthington of Cleveland, whom she divorced, marrying Mr. Leeds three days after the Worthington divorce was granted. In November, 1908, Mrs. Leeds was said to be engaged to James De Wolf Cutting of this city. Later she was reported as about to marry Prince Murat, and two years later the Comte Hely de Talleyrand-Perigord was named as her prospective husband.

Prince Christopher is a son of King George of Greece, and on Sept. 14, 1909, Miss Margarita A. Drexel of Philadelphia issued a denial in London of her rumored engagement to him.

TO WED PRIVATE ESSELSTYN

Miss Towns's Engagement Announced as a "Regimental Notice."

Mr. and Mrs. Mirabeau L. Towns of Brooklyn have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Augusta Towns, to Richard Herkimer Esselstyn, son of Mrs. Sherman Esselstyn, also of Brooklyn.

As Mr. Esselstyn left today with the Seventh Regiment, being a member of the Mounted Orderly Company, the announcement of the engagement was sent out in the form of a regimental notice. The word "Official" appears in one corner of the military-looking document, and then follow the "orders":

From the Hon. and Mrs. Mirabeau Lamar Towns.

Subject—To announce the engagement of Miss Florence Augusta Towns to Private Richard Herkimer Esselstyn of the Seventh Infantry, N. Y., Mounted Orderly Company.

Miss Towns's father is a prominent lawyer. On th ematernal side, Mr. Esselstyn is descended from General Herkimer, being a great-grand-nephew of that noted warrior of history.

Murchison-Pentz Wedding Today.

Miss Josephine Pentz, a niece of the late Bishop Charles Henry Colton of Buffalo, N. Y., will be married to Leonard A. Murchison, this forenoon in the Holy Name Church, Ninety-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue. Mr. Richardson is the son of Professor Murchison, Director of the Fifty-eighth Regiment Band, C. E. F., of Canada, who is here to attend the wedding, and who will return to Montreal, to embark shortly for France with the Canadian contingent.

Tourists for South America.

Among those booked to sail today for Panama and South America on the Carrillo are:

A. H. Sleigh, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Kilborn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, James Boyd, J. G. Craig, A. L. Brown, P. Dempsey, Sprague Hasard, Mrs. M. H. Hislop, Mrs. Charles E. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. F. Stewart, Thomas Griffen, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Logan, Luis Bolivar, Miss Beatrice Brown, Miss Eva Smith, and H. Nicholas.

EXONERATE RALSTON IN SUIT

Demarest's Witnesses Say He Was Wrongly Accused of Alienation.

Supreme Court Justice Whitaker yesterday exonerated Joseph S. Ralston of Columbus, Ohio, President of the Ralston Steel Car Company and Chairman of the Republican State Finance Committee, of all the charges made against him by George F. Demarest in his suit for $150,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Perlabelle Demarest.

Christopher J. Hickman, a process server, who testified in Demarest's divorce suit last April that he had seen Mrs. Demarest in the company of Ralston, the alleged corespondent, declared yesterday when Ralston stood up for identification that the manufacturer was not the man. He also said that he must have served another man with the summons.

In answer to questions asked by Senator James A. Foley of counsel for Mr. Ralston, the witness said he had served the summons on a man whom Demarest pointed out to him as being the right party. Senator Foley told the Court that his client had not seen Mrs. Demarest since her marriage four years ago. He submitted the affidavits of thirteen prominent citizens of Columbus, who swore that on April 6, the date when it was alleged that Ralston was served with the summons in the alienation suit, the defendant was at home.

"Mr. Ralston first learned that the suit had been brought against him when he read a statement in the newspapers that a Sheriff's jury was about to assess damages against him because of a default," Senator Foley said.

Demarest is said to be a moving picture actor. He is a brother of Mrs. Maude Hackett, the wife of Harold Hackett, the former tennis champion.

MRS. WILSON COMING HERE.

Will Attend Press Club Dinner with the President.

Unusual importance is attached to the speech which President Wilson will make before the New York Press Club at its annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel next Friday night. Although the gathering is in no sense political, great significance is expected to be attached to the President's remarks. It will be his first public utterance since his renomination.

The President will be accompanied to New York by Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty, and his physician, Dr. Carey Grayson.

Among the other speakers will be Mayor Mitchel, Ralph Pulitzer, Irvin Cobb, Bainbridge Colby, who nominated Roosevelt, and E. P. Howard, President of the club. The Dinner Committee has made arrangements for 600 guests. The offices of the club are at Spruce and William Streets.

Prominent men in the business and professional world will be present. Among them will be Theodore N. Vail, Jacob H. Schiff, James Speyer, Melville E. Stone, John B. Stanchfield, August Belmont, Dudley Field Malone, W. F. McCombs, James Buchanan Brady, John Barry Ryan, E. H. Gary, Michael Friedman, and Vance C. McCormick, the new Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

WED AT VASSAR COLLEGE.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—The first wedding to be held in the Thompson and Pratt Memorial Chapel at Vassar College was solemnized at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Miss Martha Isadore White, a member of this year's graduating class, daughter of Henry Seeley White, Professor of Mathematics in Vassar, became the bride of Erwin Stuart Hubbard of Manchester, N. Y. The Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummings, rector of Christ Church, this city, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Clifford P. Case of the Reformed Dutch Church.

Mrs. George Hawley of New Haven, Conn., cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor, and Miss Edith Louisa Hubbard of New York, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Willard White, youngest sister of the bride, were the bridesmaids. Melville Edward Johnson of Cambridge, Mass., was best man.

MRS. VAN VRANKEN'S ESTATE

MINEOLA, L. I., June 27.—Mrs. Hannah K. Van Vranken, a daughter of John Kellum, who laid out Garden City for A. T. Stewart years ago, left an estate which totals $1,131,236.80 gross and $1,107,493.53 net, according to an appraisal filed in the Surrogate's Office here today.

Mrs. Van Vranken died at Hempstead Village, where she had en estate of seventy-five acres, on Dec. 23 last. She was the widow of Dr. G. D. Van Vranken, a veterinary. Both were noted locally for their charities.

The personal estate of Mrs. Van Vranken, according to the appraisal, consists principally of bonds and mortgages, estimated to be worth $580,695.85; 6,000 shares of Brooklyn City Railroad stock, valued at $106,800, and seventy-five shares of Brooklyn Trust Company stock, valued at $37,500. The cash in banks amounts to $56,676. The country estate at Hempstead is appraised at $182,500. Other realty embraces several parcels in Brooklyn.

John K. Van Vranken, a son, and Anna K. Van Vranken, a daughter, receive the bulk of the estate. The former's share is $573,647.01, and the latter's $546,096.52. The M. E. Church, Hempstead, receives $3,000, and nephews and nieces divide more than $20,000.

George Nash, an importer, who died on Nov. 29, 1915, left an estate of $124,669, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed yesterday. Mrs. Belle M. Nash, his widow, receives a Summer home at Lake Champlain in addition to a life estate in two-thirds of the residuary estate. The remainder is held in trust for the benefit of Marguerite Nash, his daughter, until she is 40 years old. Mr. Nash's holdings in stocks and bonds amounted to $118,000. He owned an equity in realty valued at $9,500.

Robertson Rodgers Estate $401,401.

An appraisal of the estate of Robertson Rodgers, who died on Nov. 8, 1915, shows that the broker left $410,401. Debts against the estate amounted to $7,479. Mr. Rodgers made several bequests to friends and employes. The residuary estate is distributed in equal shares among two sisters, a brother and a nephew. He held a seat in the Stock Exchange valued at $73,000 and owned personalty, including insurance, amounting to $83,444. The interest of the testator in the brokerage firm of R. Rodgers & Co. was appraised at $332,722.

Will of Henry Seubert Filed.

The will of Louis Henry Seubert, the architect, who superintended the construction of the Grand Central Terminal, was filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. Mr. Seubert, who died in the Hotel Marseilles on June 19, left his estate, the value of which is unknown, to his wife, Mrs. Clara Hadley Seubert. He requested her to provide for the maintenance of his son, Nelson H. Seubert. He made a similar request for the care of his mother and sister.

Nussbaum-Seckels Wedding.

Miss Frances J. Seckels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Seckels of 256 West Ninety-seventh Street, and Herbert L. Nussbaum, were married yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at the St. Regis. The Rev. Mr. Moses officiated. Miss Mildred Adelsdorf was maid of honor, and Edwin Myers acted as best man. The couple have gone to California on their honeymoon, and will reside in this city on their return.

Trooper Trimble Hastens Wedding.

Rufus James Trimble, a member of Squadron A, and Miss Verna Lee Rooney, whose marriage was set for this evening in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, were married on Monday, owing to the mobilization order. Mr. Trimble's best man was his brother, Henry W. Trimble of Essex Troop, N. J. N. G., and the ushers were all members of Squadron A.

Miss Dixon to Wed Henry A. Clark.

Captain and Mrs. James Wyllys Dixon of Flushing, L. I., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marguerite Dixon, to Henry Austin Clark of 375 Park Avenue. The wedding will probably take place in the Autumn.

$2,000,000 HOTEL FOR FIFTH AVENUE

WILL BUILD 15 STORIES

Five Private Dwellings to be Torn Down in Latest Encroachment of Business on Avenue.

One of Baron William Waldorf Astor's most valuable real estate holdings in New York City, the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, was leased yesterday to a building syndicate for a long term and plans were filed to erect on the plot a fifteen-story apartment hotel to cost $2,000,000. It is the first parcel of Lord Astor's property in this city to pass to the hands of outsiders for improvement in a long time.

The lessee is a syndicate organized by clients of the Thompson-Starrett Company and Herbert Lucas, who is associated with McKim, Mead & White as the architects of the structure. It is said that members of the Guggenheim family are interested. The negotiations for the lease were closed by Bryan L. Kennelly.

He said yesterday that the lease is for twenty-one years with renewal privileges. For the first twenty-one-year term Baron Astor will receive as ground rental about $2,000,000 net. The lessee will pay the taxes and other charges. Toward financing its operation the syndicate has obtained a first mortgage on the leasehold of $1,600,000, through S. W. Straus & Co.

Five Private Houses to Go.

The property has a frontage of 115 feet on Fifth Avenue by 150 on Fifty-sixth Street, occupying more than half of the easterly block front, the remainder of which is covered by the Huntington mansion at the Fifty-seventh Street corner. On the Astor corner are five private residences. Three of the houses are 721, 723, and 725 Fifth Avenue, and two smaller ones are at 3 and 5 East Fifty-sixth Street.

When erected by Mr. Astor, about 1889, they were among the best built and finest dwellings in the choice residential section of the thoroughfare. Ambassador Gerard occupied one of the Fifth Avenue houses previous to his departure for Germany, and the corner house has lately been under lease to Mrs. Nelson W. Aldrich, widow of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island. The assessed valuation of the plot last year was $1,800,000, of which $1,585,000 represented land value.

The new hotel will be an imposing structure in the Renaissance style, with a large grillroom in the basement, a restaurant and tea garden on the ground floor, and several private dining rooms on the second floor. The apartment suites will have from two to twenty rooms. The plans consisted of only seven drawings, 14 by 15 inches in size. The officials of the Building Bureau said they were the smallest plans ever filed in the bureau for so large a structure.

The demolition of the houses which have long been known as the Astor houses is another illustration of which so many have been given in recent years of the passing of private residences on Fifth Avenue below Fifty-ninth Street. The massive Huntington mansion, soon to be overtopped by a fifteen-story building, remains as one of the few survivors of earlier Fifth Avenue conditions.

Fifty-seventh Street, both east and west of Fifth Avenue, is changing to a business street more rapidly each year. The fine old Whitney mansion on the southwest corner of Fifty-seventh Street was torn down more than three years ago by August Heckscher, who bought the property from Harry Payne Whitney for a business building. The residence formerly occupied by Edwin Gould on the northwest corner of Fifty-sixth Street, directly opposite the Astor houses, gave way some time ago to an art store. Mrs. Alice Vanderbilt's mansion on the west side, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth Streets, still remains, but on the opposite block only one of the famous Mason-Jones row stands unchanged from the day it was built forty years ago—the one on the northeast corner opposite the Huntington home and occupied for several years by Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs. All but one of the houses in the remainder of the block, to Fifty-eighth Street, have lately been remodeled for business, and on the site of one a bachelors' apartment has been erected.

Opposite the Astor corner, on the south, was the old Woodbury G. Langdon home, which gave way three years ago to the twelve-story Langdon Hotel, and the remainder of that block is entirely devoted to trade.

The Vanderbilt homes, a short distance below, remain, and an interesting change, radically different from the prevailing trade encroachments, is seen in the former George Vanderbilt home, on the northwest corner of Fifty-first Street, the southerly of the twin Vanderbilt houses, which has just been expensively remodeled by Cornelius Vanderbilt, at a cost of over $200,000, for his home. At the death of his uncle, George Vanderbilt, the house became the property of Cornelius.

Rockefeller Homes Protected.

John D. Rockefeller and his son have made the strongest fight in recent years to keep business from getting a foothold near their homes, in Fifty-fourth Street, just west of Fifth Avenue. The Rockefellers have purchased several adjoining dwellings, to prevent them from going to trade interests, and it was for that purpose that the elder Rockefeller purchased a few years ago the Seward Webb house, between St. Thomas's Church and the Twombly home. It is in the middle of the block between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Streets, abutting on the garden of the Rockefeller house. Mr. Rockefeller, however, a few weeks ago had plans filed for erecting a six-story business building on the site.

Graduates Act in Teacher's Play

The graduating exercises of Public School 44, in Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, were held yesterday afternoon in the Bedford Branch of the Y. M. C. A. A feature of the entertainment was the presentation of 'The Teachers' Nightmare" by the graduating class. The playlet was written by Miss Katherine M. Whittet, one of the teachers. Eighty-three boys and girls were graduated. An address on patriotism was delivered by James F. Harley of the Board of Education.

Nathan Seeley.

Nathan Seeley, a retired merchant and founder of the firm of Seeley Brothers, paint dealers, is dead from heart disease at his Summer home in Poland Springs, Me., in his seventy-first year. He was born in Bethel, Conn., and came here when a boy. In addition to his other business, he was the principal owner in the street railways of Worcester, Mass. Mr. Seeley was one of the founders of the Downtown Club and was a member of the Union Club for thirty-four years and a former member of the New York Yacht and Manhattan Clubs. He lived for thirty-nine years at 25 East Twenty-ninth Street and left a widow and two sons.

William Milligan.

William Milligan, stenographer of the Westchester County Court for fourteen years, died on Monday night at his home in Mount Vernon, in his sixty-fourth year. Before removing to that place, he had served as private secretary to General Ben Butler during his Presidential campaign, and was also for some time secretary to the Surveyor of the Port of New York. When Mr. Milligan's death was announced Judge Frank L. Young paid him a high tribute yesterday before opening court. Mr. Milligan's wife and five sons survive him.

NOMINATOR OF TAFT DIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 27.—George A. Knight, former Republican National Committeeman and one of California's best known attorneys, died here today from heart disease. In 1908 he made the chief speech nominating William Howard Taft for President. Mr. Knight was born in Worcester, Mass., and was in his sixty-sixth year. He was a graduate of the College of California and was admitted to the bar in 1872. Later he became District Attorney for Humboldt County, Insurance Commissioner of California, and attorney for the State Board of Health.

Mr. Knight was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1896 and seconded the nomination of the late President McKinley. In addition to representing several transportation companies, he was in charge of the $18,000,000 estate left by Charles L. Fair. Mr. Knight was a member of the Pacific, Union, Bohemian, and Press Clubs of this city.

Theodore Hamilton.

Theodore Hamilton, an actor known best for his work in Shakespearean rôles, died yesterday at his Summer home, in West Haven, Conn., in his eightieth year. He was born in Baltimore, Md., where he made his home at the time of his death and where he will be buried. Mr. Hamilton made his first appearance here at the Old Bowery Theatre in the rôle of the Duke of Buckingham in "Richard III." Later he played in support of Edwin Forrest. He fought through the four years of the civil war, and during 1869-70 was leading man at Booth's Theatre, where he played Nathan in "Leah the Forsaken" with Kate Bateman. After a foreign tour, Mr. Hamilton again played here, appearing with Edwin Milton Royle in "Friends." In 1896 he played the title rôle in "Pudd'nhead Wilson," and during 1900-01 appeared with James K. Hackett in "The Pride of Jennico." His last appearance here was in 1904-05 in "The Missourians."

Mary Davenport, Actress.

Mrs. J. Duke Murray, who for nearly half a century was known on the stage as Mary Davenport, died Monday night in Fresno, Cal., at the age of 65 years. Several years ago she suffered a stroke of apoplexy, from which she never completely recovered.

During her long career Miss Davenport played Juliet to the Romeo of Edwin Booth, and appeared in the support of many notable actors and actresses. At the time of her marriage to Mr. Murray, twenty-eight years ago, he was manager of Milton Nobles's company, and Miss Davenport was its leading woman.

Mrs. Murray was one of the charter members of the Professional Woman's League. She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Susan Thompson of New Bedford, Mass., and three grandchildren.

REFUSES TO SHOW FREEDMAN'S PAPERS

RATES OF N. Y. EDISON CO.

Lighting Contractor Says They Are Unpublished, Fluctuating, and Preferential.

Senator Thompson, Chairman of the Legislative Investigating Committee, had a conference last night with Mayor Mitchel which resulted in an arrangement whereby the Mayor will not be called before the committee to explain why he refused to permit Harry Klein, an investigator, to search the letter files of the Mayor's office. The Mayor told Senator Thompson that for personal reasons he should persist in his refusal and the Senator said he would respect the Mayor's wishes.

The letters the committee is anxious to obtain refer to real estate matters in connection with the Controller's office. The committee issued a subpoena yesterday for Charles O'Malley, real estate expert of the Controller's office, but Mr. O'Malley was on a vacation and the committee may not be able to examine him before Friday, when the committee's time expires.

Daniel L. Turner, assistant chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, was the first witness yesterday. He was called to testify about the contract provisions for the recapture of the third tracks on the Brooklyn elevated lines. He said he believed the city could only recapture the third tracks, but he thought this would so impair the value of the other branches of the roads that the companies might be induced to turn over the entire routes to the city.

Walter G. Oakman, formerly a Director of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, who was also a Director of the B. R. T. and the Hudson & Manhattan Company, was next called. He said he did not think there was a serious conflict between the Hudson & Manhattan Company, in which William G. McAdoo was interested, and the B. R. T. Frank Moss, counsel to the committee, asked him if Mr. McAdoo did not make his offer to build the subways in order to break the deadlock that was then existing between the Interborough and the B. R. T. The witness admitted that the McAdoo offer was an ambitious attempt to enter the subway field.

Mr. Oakman is a trustee of the estate of Andrew Freedman, and Mr. Moss wanted to know if Mr. Freedman had a bank account in London. The witness said he had no knowledge of such an account, nor did he know if Mr. Freedman had any property in London.

Q.—Have you any record of Mr. Freedman's having a bank account in Europe? A.—Not to my recollection.

Q.—You are familiar with all the affairs of the Freeman estate? A.—In a general way, yes. I had a list of his securities and his bank accounts.

Q.—As a trustee of Mr. Freedman's estate, have you any objection to this committee examining his checks and papers? A.—Yes; I have an objection to this committee going on a general foraging expedition in Mr. Freedman's affairs. If the inquiry was relevant to the affairs of the committee I would have no objection.

Mr. Oakman referred to the examination of the papers of the Gillespie Company by Perley Morse, the committee's expert accountant, when private letters concerning Governor Whitman had been brought to light. This, he said, was an utter breach of faith, and he did not want to see Mr. Freedman's affairs handled in the same way. Senator Thompson said the Gillespie accounts were relevant to the committee's investigation.

Mr. Moss said the committee had found difficulty in understanding a large mass of checks found in Mr. Freedman's effects which had been drawn to "bearer" and to a certain Jacques S. Cohen. There were scores of these checks, which amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars, he said. He said the period over which they were spread made them very pertinent to the committee's investigation. The committee, he said, was interested in tracing transactions and therefore sought to know if the witness, as executor and Trustee of the Freedman estate, would have any objection to an examination of the checks. The committee, he added, didn't want to be charged with neglect of duty in not going after these matters.

"I shall be guided by advice of counsel," was all Mr. Oakman would say.

In reply to a question by Senator Thompson, the witness said he had no papers or documents bearing upon the dual subway contracts.

The next witness was Ragland Momand, a street lighting contractor, who had already been examined by the committee. He criticised the New York Edison Company for charging what he termed fluctuating and preferential prices.

He said the Edison Company sold its electrical current at "unpublished rates." Some of it, he said, was sold at .52 cents a kilowatt hour and some at 1.115 cents. In 1914, he said, the Edison Company collected from the city $1,433,292.08 for current at prices ranging from 3.24 cents to 7.3 cents a kilowatt hour. He said 20 per cent. of the Edison Company's total product for 1914 had never been accounted for and that the revenue from this, at the average price of 4½ cents a kilowatt hour, would amount to about $5,000,000.

Ernest C. Moore, an engineer with offices at 154 Nassau Street, was examined and said that because of the quibbling in the Board of Estimate he felt inclined to relinquish a million-dollar contract he had with the city. Mr. Moore's contract calls for the installation of wires in the ducts in the new east side subway. His section extends from First Avenue through Forty-second Street to the shaft of the Queensboro tunnel.

He said he had held this contract for nine months, and the members of the Board of Estimate had been haggling as to whether it should be charged to construction or equipment account. Meantime, he said, the price of steel has increased extraordinarily, with little likelihood of its declining. For that reason, he said, he felt like giving up the contract. If the cost of his contract is charged to construction the city and not the B. R. T. will have to pay for it.

The committee will continue its session this morning.

John Heidelbach.

LONG BEACH, L. I., June 27.—John Heidelbach, a wealthy restaurateur, who for many years ran a chain of restaurants in and about New York, died at his country home at 250 Jackson Boulevard this afternoon. GIANTS WHITEWASH THE ROBINS IN BROOKLYN AND THEREBY BREAK EVEN ON THE SERIES

TESREAU'S SHOOTS BAFFLE SUPERBAS

WHEEZER DELL THE VICTIM

Just because the Giants threatened to exile Jumbo Jeff Tesreau to the wilds of St. Louis, Jeff rose in his might at Ebbets Field yesterday and pitched such good ball that the Giants downed the Dodgers by a score of 1 to 0. This victory gave New York an even break on the recent Brooklyn series, each club taking three.

Tesreau gave the Dodgers six hits and half of them were collected by Zach Wheat. He was never better than on two occasions when he allowed two hits an inning and was in danger. Then he pitched himself out of the holes with rare skill. It was Jeff at his best, and there is no danger of the big moundsman being sent to St. Louis, as further negotiations for the deal to trade Jumbo for Slim Sallee were canceled yesterday.

The Giants didn't pound Wheezer Dell with any degree of wickedness, but a costly base on balls paved the way for the Giants' lone run. Umpire Quigley received considerable attention from Larry Doyle. Larry was called out on strikes in the sixth inning and he was so disappointed that he opened a brand new package of gab for the umpire. Quigley had to shake his finger at Doyle and threaten to keep him after school if he wasn't good.

Robins Miss a Chance.

The thing that counted against the Dodgers was some base running which found them tardy both in their thinking caps and afoot. They had a good opportunity to do something in the first, when Johnston got a single which jumped off Fletcher's feet, bounding high over his head. Daubert and Stengel both rocketed to Fletcher and then Wheat shot a single to left field.

Johnston seemed to have the idea that he could cover ground like Ted Meredith and tried to romp around to third on a hit which was shorter than normal. Burns got the ball and threw him out with dispatch.

In the second Mowrey, first man up, walked. Cutshaw sacrificed and Olson skied to Fletcher. Mowrey was caught fast asleep off second by Rariden, who tossed to Doyle. The ball was relayed to McKechnie, who was waiting for Mowrey with outstretched arms.

Brooklyn was again somewhat clumsy in staging a double steal in the seventh. With one gone Wheat singled and so did Mowrey, Wheat going to second. Cutshaw forced Mowrey at second, Doyle missing a double play by half an eyelash. Cutshaw and Wheat, who had gone to third, then started a double steal. Cutshaw kept running up and down between first and second to give Wheat a chance to start for home, but Zach refused to take a chance and posed near third like the statue of Bill Shakespeare in Central Park.

Tesreau Saves Himself.

The Brooklyn populace got all worked up to 101 degrees in the shade in the ninth inning, when the Dodgers got two runners aboard the bases and gave evidence of starting something. In this round, with one out, Tesreau let one of his shoots slip and it bounced playfully off the back of Jake Daubert's head. In the collision the ball came out second best, for Jake only smiled and rubbed his head tenderly.

Casey Stengel tried to kill the ball and his effort resulted in a high balloon to Kauff. Wheat then beat out an infield rap which bounded over Tesreau's head. One and all the Brooklyn folks implored Mike Mowrey, for goodness sake, to do something for his country. Mike accommodated with a fly to Burns.

The Giants got the run which captured the game in the first inning. Burns got a pass and went to third on Benny Kauff's single to right centre. Davey Robertson lifted a long sacrifice fly to Stengel and Burns scored easily. Kauff stole second, but no one could help him to get along.

The Giants missed a good chance in the sixth. Burns walked and Kauff fanned, much to the delight of the natives. Robertson got another single and when Doyle fanned Burns and Kauff worked a double steal. Fletcher, the next batsman, fanned, and opportunity had flown. The score:

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—Boston bunched four singles, with a pass to Magee in the fourth inning here today and thereby scored all the runs of the game and achieved a 3 to 0 victory over Philadelphia. It was the fourth straight defeat of the home team by the braves. Snodgrass and Magee each robbed Paskert of a home run, and Maranville made three sensational plays. The score:

CUBS CAPTURE A COUPLE.

Have Better of Pirates in Both Games of Double-Header.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Chicago scored a double victory over Pittsburgh today. Saier's home run gave Prendergast the honors over Cooper in the first game, a 1 to 0 pitchers' battle. Prendergast fanned eight, allowed three hits, and permitted no Pirate beyond second. Cooper was nearly as good, and except for Saier no Cub reached third.

Successful use of the squeeze play was a feature of the 10 to 4 rout of the Pirates in the second. The score:

No one of these more or less glorious June days is complete now without its home run by the man who made Trappe, Md., famous, J. Franklin Baker, and a glance at the appended box score will put every one hep to the fact that he made another one at the Polo Grounds yesterday, his third in as many days. But this same glance will not indicate that it was Baker's four-base blow in the sixth inning which gave the Yankees their fifth victory of the now closed series with the Washington Senators. The score was 3 to 2.

Ray Caldwell, pitching the kind of baseball which made him one of the leading American League hurlers last year, came back with his second victory of the series, again beating Joe Boehling and putting the Yankees once more within half a game of the Cleveland Indians, who were defeated by Chicago. Caldwell allowed six hits, while "Mein Poy Choe," as Boehling is known in Senatorville, allowed only one more. The Yankees gave Caldwell first-class support, and the Senators did some brisk fielding, too.

Tiny Hughey High brought the game to a close with a most remarkable catch of a wicked line drive by Williams, which traveled into left field with such force that it carried High three or four times around in midair before he finally got back to terra firma with the ball tightly clenched in his fist.

Joe Judge, the New York boy who plays first for the Senators, was badly spiked in the fifth inning, when Caldwell, after being caught napping off first on Henry's throw to Judge, slid back to the bag. After receiving medical attention, Judge was relieved by Williams. While a physician was attending Judge, Nick Altrock and Tom Sawyer, Griffith's trained jesters, staged a mimic operation of their own, and their antics made even King Griffith, the noted graven image, shake with laughter.

Fine baseball was on the bill from the moment when Moeller, Washington's first batter, leaned heavily against one of Caldwell's pet offerings and planted it into the right-field stand.

The Yanks got two hits in the first inning, one by Gilhooley, the other by High, but both were wasted, as Peck hit into a double play and Judge tossed out Pipp to Boehling. The local men broke through with their first run in the third, when, with one out, Gilhooley walked, stole second, and reached third on Henry's poor throw. High hit to Shanks, and Gilhooley was caught between third and home. During the run-up High sprinted all the way around to third, and the bases were very much crowded by the two little men when Gilhooley also ran back to the base. High was declared out, and Gilhooley tallied when Peck crashed a three-base hit into deep centre.

Washington forged ahead for the time being in the sixth, when Boehling and Milan walked and Shanks singled to left, scoring Boehling. Shanks tried for an extra base, but a great throw by Lee Magee to Gedeon cut him down for the final out. Then along came Baker with his daily four-ply clout, good for a pair of runs, as Wallie Pipp went home ahead of him. This put the Yankees in front for the rest of the game. A fast double play by Pipp and Peckinpaugh killed a fine chance for the Senators in the eighth.

With the best opportunity thus far offered this season to crawl to the top of the ladder the Yankees went last night to Philadelphia for a series with the Athletics. They will be back soon for a long stay at the Polo Grounds. The score:

WHITE SOX BEAT INDIANS.

Jackson's Bat Accomplishes Defeat of League Leaders.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Chicago defeated Cleveland 4 to 2 here today in a pitchers' battle in which Williams had the better of Bagby, holding Cleveland to six hits, three of which were made in the ninth inning. Jackson made a home run and two doubles, scoring three runs. About 1,000 militiamen, about to go to the front, were present, the guests of the Cleveland Club. The score:

TIGERS IN EVEN BREAK.

Detroit and St. Louis Browns Each Get One in Double-Header.

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—Detroit and St. Louis divided a double-header today, St. Louis taking the first game, 5 to 3, and Detroit the second by 5 to 2. Sisler led the attack in the first game with four hits in four times at bat and two stolen bases. Detroit won the second game in the seventh inning, when Young scored on Austin's fumble and Baker's double. The scores:

RED SOX DOWN ATHLETICS.

World's Champions Batter Shoots of College Pitcher.

BOSTON, June 27.—Connie Mack gave Johnson, the former Ursinus College pitcher, a try-out against the Red Sox today, with Carroll, of Tufts College, as catcher, and the Athletics were defeated, 7 to 2. Johnson was taken out in the seventh inning after he had been hit freely and had shown an inclination to wildness. After the first inning Ruth mowed his opponents down in rapid order. The score:

WOMEN PLAY FAST TENNIS.

Miss Wagner and Mrs. Green Winners at Sleepy Hollow.

The first women's invitation tennis tournament ever held by the Sleepy Hollow Country Club started yesterday afternoon on the courts at Scarborough, with an entry list which included some of the best players in the metropolitan section. Three rounds of the event were completed, and though none of the leading players met with disaster, several were pressed to hard matches.

Miss Marie Wagner, who has been winning regularly of late in local tournaments, came through the second round yesterday by the default of Mrs. Robert Leroy. In the third round she was opposed by Mrs. Humphries, and the former indoor champion had little difficulty in disposing of her rival, Miss Wagner taking the match at 6—0, 6—2, by steady tennis, that bordered at times on the brilliant.

The arrangement of the draw left only two matches to be decided in the first round, and one of these came as near to furnishing an upset as any during the afternoon. Mrs. Robert A. Pope displayed unlooked-for strength against Mrs. H. Stuart Green, and though she was defeated, 6—4, 6—4, her game was such that Mrs. Green had to reach the top of her play to withstand the attack of her opponent. That Mrs. Green was in excellent form was shown a bit later when in the third round she met Miss Caroma Winn. Miss Winn has a powerful forehand drive, which usually succeeds in providing difficulties for her opponent. Perhaps Miss Winn was a bit off her game yesterday, but even if that be taken into consideration, Mrs. Green's play was decidedly effective. Victory came to her with the score 6—1, 6—0, and she will be a hard opponent for Miss Wagner in the upper half of the draw, presuming, of course, that each player comes through the next round. The summary:

First Round.—Mrs. H. Stuart Green defeated Mrs. R. A. Pope, 6—4, 6—4; Mrs. George Chapman won from Miss Margaret Taylor by default.

Second Round.—Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer won from Miss Florence Ballin by default, Mrs. Percy Wilbourn won from Miss Katherine Browning by default, Mrs. A. Humphries won from Miss Gertrude Della Torre by default, Miss Marie Wagner won from Mrs. Robert Le Roy by default, Mrs. M. B. Huff defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman, 6—4, 7—9, 8—6; Miss Ina Kissel won from Miss Natalie Borwning by default; Miss Caroma Winn won from Miss Elizabeth Morre by default, Mrs. H. Stuart Green won from Mrs. C. C. Townsend by default, Mrs. Chapman won from Mrs. Irving by default, Mrs. Rawson Wood defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—3, 6—4; Mrs. W. J. Tingue defeated Mrs. E. P. Shattuck, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. L. G. Morris won from Mrs. Edward Raymond by default, Mrs. David C. Mills defeated Mrs. J. R. Hall, 6—4, 6—4; Miss Edna Wildey defeated Miss Florence Sheldon, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. G. B. de Gersdorff defeated Mrs. C. C. Parsons, 6—2, 7—5; Miss Marion Vanderhoef defeated Mrs. Lesher, 1—6, 8—6, 6—1.

Third Round.—Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourn, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. A. Humphries, 6—0, 6—2; Mrs. H. Stuart Green defeated Miss Caroma Winn, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Edna Wildey won from Mrs. Chapman by default, Miss Marion Vanderhoef defeated Mrs. W. J. Tingue, 1—6, 8—6, 6—1; Mrs. David C. Mills defeated Mrs. L. G. Morris, 6—4, 7—5.

CHURCH PUT OUT IN FIFTH ROUND

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Quite unexpectedly defeat overtook George M. Church in the fifth round of the clay court tennis championship at the Lakewood Tennis Club this afternoon. There was little room for Church to believe that he was in danger when he faced Conrad B. Doyle of Washington, but one of the surprises of tennis suddenly came to the fore, and the man who holds the doubles championship with Dean Mathey was vanquished in a three-set match, the score being 6—2, 2—6, 6—2. The former Princetonian struggled gamely against the brilliancy of his comparatively unknown opponent, but it did not avail to stem the tide of disaster. This was by far one of the most important matches that has marked the tournament up to date.

Church was defeated because he was outplayed in every particular of the game. Noted as one who excels at the net game, Church found a master at his own type of game, one who could combine the net qualities of tennis with a resourcefulness that left Church but small opportunity for success. The manner in which Doyle started out against Church must have given the latter a bit of foreboding as to the outcome. There were dazzling placement shots, which flashed past Church with terrific speed, and the spectators began to realize that the first big upset of the tournament might occur in this match.

The former Princetonian is always a slow starter, but in the first set he was completely swept off his feet. He was taken by surprise, and apparently never recovered until Doyle had carried off the opening set. Then he rallied at bit of his old-time strategy to his command and the situation was reversed. Church played cautiously and was rewarded by gaining the second set at 6—2.

This left the two men to fight it out to a decision in one set, and Church could not measure up to the demands of the situation. Doyle seemed to have an abundance of reserve energy, while Church showed all of the indications of a man who has played himself out. It proved literally to be the case, for as Doyle's speed increased that of Church diminished, and, though the latter managed to get two games, he was never a contender in a serious sense. Doyle varied his game to such an extent that Church could not solve the attack, and he was beaten down under the fusillade of shots that Doyle directed into his territory.

What seemed to take the heart of Church was the fact that in Doyle there was one who could play the net with remarkable effectiveness. This strong feature of Church's being counteracted there was nothing left for him to do but battle to a hopeless end. The Washington man, however, was not at loss in any position on the court. When Church in the first set tried to rush the net he found the rival contestant sending up a well-placed lobs that careened over Church's head to within a few inches of the baseline. They always seemed to drop fair and always with no more than a few inches to spare. Against this lobbing game Church found himself almost helpless. He tried to make the gets and did succeed at times, but the effort was sapping his strength and leaving him open to the attack which Doyle was reserving for the latter part of the match.

When Church started his rally in the second set, Doyle tried to fight him off, but he did not go to extreme ends to stop the progress of his opponent. Church worked like a Trojan and took the set by dint of clever work, but when the set was over the ultimate decision in favor of Doyle was in sight. Church had been doing twice as much court covering as his opponent, and his energy was one the wane.

Doyle realized that his opportunity had come, and his most brilliant play of the match followed. He attacked at the net, and Church did not have the skill to fight off the charge as did Doyle when his rival tried the same tactics in the opening encounter. His lobs when they were sent skyward either had too much power and were driven out or else they fell just a little way over the net, affording a certain point for Doyle by smashing.

All along Doyle was placing to the lines with great accuracy, and there was no intimation from the manner of his stroking as to where the shot would be directed. Church was bewildered, and in a last endeavor rushed to the net to try and recover. Doyle accepted the challenge, and it was then more than at any other time that the superiority of Doyle's play made itself felt. He scorned the lob for the time being, and with each man close there were repeated sharp rallies in which the Washington man had the best of the volleying.

Only five players are now left in the singles event—McEllroy of Pittsburgh, Doyle of Washington, Davis of San Francisco, Knox of Pittsburgh, and Garland of Pittsburgh.

Willis Davis, one of the most prominent of the Californians, scored a victory over John C. Neely; but his partner in the doubles, H. Van Dyke Johns, had to take a defeat at the hands of McEllroy.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt made her appearance when the women's singles event was called today. The Norse champion appeared to be in excellent stroke during the two matches that she played. In one she defeated Miss Florence Rudolph of the Lakewood Club and then vanquished Miss Margaret Taylor of New York. The first match was won two love sets in the first contest and in the second the score was 6—1, 6—0. Miss Martha Guthrie of Pittsburgh defeated Miss Buda Stephens of Toledo at 6—4, 6—3. The summary:

MEN'S SINGLES.—Third Round—Walter S. McEllroy, Pittsburgh, defeated W. T. Burt, Cleveland, 6—2, 6—1; W. B. Knox, Pittsburgh, defeated Edwin R. McCormick, Los Angeles, 6—2, 6—3; Coleman G. Clark, Chicago, defeated Paul B. Prentiss, Cleveland, 6—2, 6—3; Jerry Weber, Chicago, won from R. A. Johnson, Parkersburg, by default.

Athletics Release Wyckoff.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—It was announced at the office of the Philadelphia American League Baseball Club here tonight that Weldon Wyckoff, a member of the Athletics' pitching staff, had been released to the Boston Americans. Wyckoff is a right-hander, and has been with the local club several years.

MORGAN'S GRAYLING WINS.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., June 27.—Although only twenty-seven yachts competed in the races today, the second of the interclub cruising week, yachtsmen were much encouraged, for they got a good day's sport out of one that at the beginning promised anything but that. The winners in the day's run from Greenwich Harbor to this port were J. P. Morgan's fifty-footer Grayling, O. G. Jennings's Pauline in the New York Y. C. forty-foot class, F. L. Richards's Adios in the thirty-foot class, J. S. Jenkins's Aurelia in the Stamford one-design class, and Aleda, Arvia, Natoma, and Olwyn in the other classes for sailing boats, and Z. Wilson's Spare Time in the race between power boats, on actual time of running.

Indian Harbor was buried in a thick fog this morning at the hour set for starting the races, and the hopes of the yachtsmen for the brisk run to Huntington, L. I., promised by last night's fresh breeze from the southward, were dashed. By 11 o'clock the sun had burned the fog away, and there was a very faint breeze from the north-northeast, which caused the Race Committee to cancel the courses set for the day's races and order a run straight across the Sound to Huntington, provided there was wind enough. Then the committee boarded the United States destroyer Macdonough and waited for the wind to freshen by noon, the hour set for starting the sailing craft on their journey.

This it accommodatingly did, getting around to the south-southeast, when the signal BZ was set on the Joyance, the flagship of Commodore W. H. Childs of the Indian Harbor Club, which indicated the start. The yachts got under way for the westerly end of Great Captain's Island, from which point the course was set for a southeasterly run to Huntington Bay, thirteen miles away.

By the time the first class was ready for the start a good breeze from the southeast had cleared the Sound of fog, and enabled the yachts to get away with a good, whole-sail breeze. Commodore George F. Baker's Ventura led the New York Yacht Club fifties across the line on the starboard tack at the weather end of the line, with J. P. Morgan's Grayling, sailed by Ralph H. Ellis, almost abeam to the leeward, and George Nichols's Carolina, sailed by Clinton Mackenzie, astern by a couple of ship's lengths. A moment later they all came about, and headed to the westward to get a better position for a long beat later in the race, which might the sooner fetch them to the finish line.

Mistral had the windward position when the forties were sent away with Black Duck, Rowdy, and Pauline following closely. Pauline went on for a long leg to the eastward, while the rest came about and laid a course to the westward.

As Nahma, the temporary crack of the Class P boats, did not appear at the line, a special race was arranged between the Aleda, the old Class P Olympian, and Alice, a Class N sloop, the latter getting away to windward with a couple of lengths the best of the start.

The only two of the New York thirties to race were the Adios and Alera, which went over the line on the port tack and headed off to the westward, chasing the greater part of the fleet.

Despite the fact that only twenty-seven sailing craft responded to the starting signals, they presented a picturesque scene as they made off toward Huntington, the various theories of their sailing masters as to the best way to take advantage of the windward work scattering them over a wide area of the Sound.

Although there were a score of motor boats about the harbor, only two of them would race—Spare Time, owned by Z. Wilson of Sea Cliff, and the Farad, belonging to C. H. Chapman of New York. These started after all the sailing craft were on their journey, and went in a direct line to Huntington, as they did not have to pay attention to the breeze.

While the yachts were on the way across the Sound the wind hauled around to the south, grew fresher as the afternoon waned, and was blowing at about twelve knots when the yachts came into Huntington harbor. The first to finish the run was the power boat Spare Time, which crossed the line at 3:20:29, eight minutes in actual time ahead of her single competitor. Coming like a streak two minutes behind her was the Grayling, which finished at 3:22:08, having made the run of thirteen statute miles in 2 hours 7 minutes and 8 seconds, and beating Ventura by a trifle more than 9 minutes. Mr. Ellis, who sailed Mr. Morgan's yacht, had taken her over toward the Long Island shore on her first tack, a manoeuvre which enabled him to get the best of the wind when it shifted around from southeast to almost directly south. Ventura held nearer to the middle of the Sound, as did Carolina, and was a long way off when Grayling defeated them both for the second time within a week.

Pauline, which had stood to the eastward at the start, found her tactics to be successful, for she was the first of the New York Yacht Club forties to cross the line four minutes in front of Black Duck. Mistral and Rowdy had quite a little brush in their exchange of tacks, Black Duck defeating Mistral by scant two minutes, with Rowdy a trifle more than that in her wake.

Ten of the new Stamford one-design boats made their first appearance in this part of the Sound in this run and were very favorably looked upon by the yachtsmen, who have counted to see the performances of these newest of Alden's designs. Aurelia, owned by James S. Jenkins, was the winner of the run for the class, making the trip in 2 hours 35 minutes and 45 seconds which was as fast as the time made by some of the much larger boats of the handicap class. Altogether this showing was most gratifying to their owners, as the fleet of ten made the turn in good time, the leader being less than three minutes behind D. L. Elliman's Polly, the second in the class to finish.

COCHRAN'S FILLIES TAKE TWO EVENTS

Genesis Wins Canarsie Stakes and Burlesque Another Two-Year-Old Race at Aqueduct.

With three lengths to spare, Gifford A. Cochran's Genesis won the Canarsie Selling Stakes, the fifteenth running of which was the feature of the card at Aqueduct, the course of the Queens County Jockey Club, yesterday. Artemis, from the Oneck Stable, was second, with Richard T. Wilson's colt Straight Forward third.

This race, which is for two-year-olds and has a value of $1,500, was first run in 1898, and was originally at four and a half furlongs instead of five. Last year it was won by August Belmont's Fernrock. The victory of Genesis yesterday was so impressive that it stamps her as a high-class filly, and her record to date adds force to the belief that this young daughter of Star Shoot will make a name for herself on the turf. Mr. Cochran also took the last race with another filly by this sire.

Genesis made her début less than two weeks ago, at Jamaica, when she graduated from the maiden class. Her next start was at the same course, when she won the Greenfield Selling Stake from a field which included five other smart youngsters. In winning the Canarsie Selling Stakes yesterday the filly met the finest lot of two-year-olds which she has yet been called upon to encounter, and she accomplished her task with ease.

The field of twelve was just cut in half, owing to the withdrawals. The six starters were sent away in almost perfect alignment. The Wickliffe Stable's Felicidad took command soon after the break and Garner hustled the gelding right along. Genesis soon drew alongside, however, and then assumed the lead. The remainder of the field was spread out, with Artemis and Straight Forward the nearest contenders.

Coming around the turn into the stretch Felicidad ran out almost to the other rail and lost a lot of ground. This gave Artemis and Straight Forward a chance to come through. At the half mile the latter had half a length on the Oneck Stable entry. Meanwhile McCahey on the winner, for the first time during the race, let his mount down and the filly shot ahead and was three good lengths in the lead at the finish. Davies on Artemis got a little more out of his mount and beat Straight Forward by a head for the place. The winner and the second and third horses were all sired by Star Shoot.

The handicap for three-year-olds and upward at a mile went to Bayberry Candle. The mare was outrun in the early part of the race by Sandman II., which led for almost three-quarters of a mile, but the pace was too hot for the Broomstick gelding and he was forced to relinquish the front position. Grumpy, away back at the start, came along with a rush and Loftus on Bayberry Candle had all he could do to avert defeat by the Brookmiller entry. But the rider went to the whip and the mare made one supreme effort, which lasted long enough to give her the advantage by a scant half length.

Harry Shaw, in difficulties most of the time, was frequently hemmed in where he could not make his run. However, in the last hundred yards he was able to get through and came along on the rail to take third place by a head from Sandman II. The Greentree Stable's Gainer, which many thought had a fair chance of winning the race, was practically left at the post and finished absolutely last.

The opening event was a close contest between F. W. Speirs's Buck Shot and Emil Herz's imported Hanworth, which at the finish had a half a length lead on Buck Shot. The race was for three-year-olds, over a six furlong route. The field of ten was at the post four minutes, owing to the antics of Charmeuse and Buck Shot, and to make matters worse the mare, after getting away fairly well, stumbled, fell and threw her rider.

The summaries, with the straight, place, and show odds:

HINKEL TO BE REFEREE.

Head of American Boxing Body Named for Dillon-Moran Bout.

Matt Hinkel of Cleveland, President of the American Boxing Association, was named yesterday by Chairman Wenck of the State Athletic Commission, to referee the ten-round bout between Frank Moran and Jack Dillon, which the Washington Park Sporting Club in Brooklyn will stage tomorrow night. Hinkel, who all along has been the choice of Jack Dillon as third man in the ring, proved acceptable to Ike Dorgan, manager of Moran, upon his nomination by Wenck, although a few days ago he would not agree to Hinkel's appointment.

Hinkel has had considerable experience as a referee, and is regarded as fearless when in the ring. Not much more than a year ago he ordered featherweight champion Johnny Kilbane out of the ring because he thought he detected the titleholder withholding his best efforts against an opponent who had once been a sparring partner of Kilbane. His western reputation gained Hinkel the appointment as alternate arbiter for the Johnson-Willard bout in Havana.

Final arrangements for the bout tomorrow will be completed this afternoon when the $35,000 balance of the purse will be posted by the Washington Park Club with the stakeholder, George Considine. When the match was arranged Considine received $5,000, with the stipulation that the remainder of Moran's $25,000 and Dillon's $15,000 be posted twenty-four hours before the bout.

Moran finished his training two days ago at White Sulphur Springs, and will leave Saratoga for New York this afternoon with a car full of fans. He will be the guest of a wealthy man from Pittsburgh while here. Dr. Joseph Cearmer, head physician for the State Athletic Commission, has examined both Moran and Dillon and pronounce them physically fit and in fine condition.

Three hundred fight enthusiasts are due here today from Indianapolis to root Dillon to victory and to help swell a crowd which is expected to reach almost record proportions.

Bouts at Pioneer S. C. Tonight.

Another series of sectional boxing exhibitions will be staged this evening at the Pioneer Sporting Club in West Forty-fourth Street. Two ten-round bouts will feature the program, three of the principals coming from the west side, and the fourth from New Jersey. In the main event Johnny Lore will be pitted against Willie Ryan of New Brunswick, N. J. The other ten-round bout will be between Chick Simler and Joe Mooney, both west side boxers.

At the Clermont A. C. in Brooklyn this evening Young Zulu Kid will box Jimmy Murray in the main bout of ten rounds.

NIPPER CAMPBELL LEADS BIG FIELD

HIS FIRST DAY'S SCORE 144

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 27.—Two little men, "Nipper" Campbell of Baltimore and Louis Tellier of Brookline, with drives as long and approaches as deadly as those of the largest and brawniest professionals and amateurs in quest for the national open championship, led the field of forty-one starters in the first half of the qualifying round for the open title held on the Minikahda Club course today. Campbell played his first round in 71 and his second in 73 for the leading total score of 144.

The diminutive Frenchman was only a stroke behind, but his play varied in a disconcerting manner on his two rounds. In the morning he made his way around the eighteen holes in 70 strokes, equaling the course record held by Harry Legg, the home club amateur. The stop-over for luncheon took the edge off his golfing touch, and he required an extra five strokes in the afternoon before he sank his last putt on the home green for a total of 145. Thirty-two of the forty-one starters qualified for the championship proper, which starts tomorrow, and all the favorites that were on the starting list for today are sure of their places in the final rounds.

Englishman Leads the Amateurs.

The lowest amateur score was returned by J. S. Worthington, an English visitor and a former Irish open champion, who took 71 on his morning round and 75 in the afternoon, finishing in third place with a total of 146 strokes. Closely following him was Harry Legg, the Minikahda amateur, who tied for fourth place with Jack Hutchinson of Allegheny with 147 strokes to his credit.

One hundred and forty-nine strokes proved the popular choice for some of the best-known pros in the country. Walter Hagen of Rochester, national open champion in 1914, paused at this mark, in company with Jack Dowling, another small man who found the Western course to his liking; Freddie McLeod of the Columbia Country Club, and Jim Ferguson of Spring Lake.

Bob McDonald of Bufalo, who tied with Gil Nicholls for the metropolitan open title last year and lost in the play-off, was in a tie with six other golfers at 151, with rounds of 75 and 76 marked on his card. Mike Brady, who, with the former champions and a few others of the select, is one of the favorites for the title, made two comfortable rounds of 74 and 76, contenting himself with tenth position and 150 strokes. George McLean, the young Dunwoodie pro, was in a tie with Bob McDonald at 151. Bert Battell of Flushing was a little further down the list, at 155, and one stroke below him was Herbert Strong, the long-hitting professional of the Inwood Country Club.

Conditions Favor Good Play.

The Minikahda course was at its best when the first pair, Jack Jolly of Newark and P. J. Gaudin of Onwentsia, teed up and played off at 9 A. M. The weather was favorable, and the golfers could blame only themselves for their misdeeds. Campbell had little to complain of, for he made the outward journey in the morning in par figures, and coming back to the clubhouse he saved a stroke on the 475-yard thirteenth hole by unceremoniously helping himself to a 4 where the score card indicated that 5 was the proper number of strokes to be taken.

In the afternoon he made a better record to the half way mark, reaching the turn in 35, a stroke under par, but he weakened on the inward trip and took a 38. He reached the 460-yard second green in two strokes and sank a putt for a 3, two strokes under par, and he removed another stroke from par at the 265-yard fifth hole, which he made in 3. A 5 on the ninth, a 4 on the tenth, a 6 on the thirteenth, and a 5 on the sixteenth, all made in a stroke over par, offset some of his strong play, going out, but a 2 on the seventeenth put courage into him again. His cards were as follows:

MORNING ROUND.

Out ....4 5 3 4 5 4 3 4 4—36

AFTERNOON ROUND.

Louis Tellier, playing with Elliott Evans of Chicago, a younger brother of Chick Evans, who is to play tomorrow, drew the largest gallery of the day and received enthusiastic applause for his brilliant play. His cards were as follows:

Worthington Starts at High Speed.

Worthington, the first amateur on the list, played beautiful golf on the first nine holes, reaching the turn in 34 strokes. He was exactly par on every hole except the second and the fifth. On both these holes he was a stroke better than par, and the only hole in the entire circuit where he required more than par was the fourteenth, a 365-yard hole that added a total of 5 instead of 4 to his card. His 71 was a stroke under par for the course. His cards were as follows:

Gray Wants Billiard Matches.

George Gray, the well-known English billiardist, who is at present exhibiting at Daly's, is anxious to play any American pocket billiard expert at pocket billiards upon an English table. The pyramid game and pocket billiards are similar, except in size of table, balls, and size of pockets.

HILTON CAPTURES MEDAL.

The sons who, according to their own admissions, toiled so nobly in the Pater et Filius tournament at Sleepy Hollow on Monday, had a chance to show what they could do when playing single-handed yesterday in the metropolitan junior championship at the Englewood Country Club. Latest reports from the battlefront indicate that the fathers were much maligned.

Vincent K. Hilton of Greenwich, without the advantage of having played with his father on the previous day, went around the Englewood course as though he had his whole family assisting him, and captured the low-score medal with a 78. Devereux Emmet, Jr., of Garden City, who won first prize at Sleepy Hollow with his father, was relegated to the second division yesterday without his father, and was beaten in the first round of match play—still without his father.

W. P. Belknap, Jr., of Richmond County took second prize at Sleepy Hollow with the able assistance of the senior member of the firm but when left to his own devices yesterday he wandered around in the rough until he sank into the fifth division. Joseph G. McMahon, the third and last prize winner at Sleepy Hollow, was a little better and managed to get into the fourth division, but hereafter the prattle of the youngsters at the Pater et Filius tournament will be taken with a grain of salt.

Hilton led the field of forty-four youthful golfers with perhaps the largest collection of fours ever seen on a junior scorecard. He made fourteen holes in this particular number of strokes, which, with two fives and two sixes, gave him his low total of 78 for the round. He failed to get a single three on any of the short holes. Beginning at the ground and starting skyward Hilton is a long proposition, but he is still longer off the tees. He outdistances most of the other players by a score of yards and has a consequent advantage in his approach shots to the green. He took three putts on three greens, but with this exception his play was remarkably steady and effective. His card was as follows:

In ....4 4 4 6 5 4 4 4 4—39—78

Not content with winning the medal in the qualifying round, the ambitious Greenwich youngster went out again in the afternoon and disposed of Herbert Hutchinson of Forest Hills by the comfortable margin of 6 up and 5 to play. Hilton was runner-up for the junior title to Phil Carter back in 1914 at Plainfield, and as Carter has slipped quietly over the age limit Hilton has been reminded that this will be his last chance to win this particular title and he is setting his plans accordingly.

A defeat in the first round would have interfered with these plans in a discouraging manner, but even if he did carry the fatal disadvantage of having won the medal, the Greenwich golfer started on his winning career at the first hole and was never headed. He took three putts on the first green, but as Hutchinson did likewise in addition to requiring an extra shot through the fair green, Hilton won the hole 5—6. He won the fourth hole, where both were short, by laying up his approach dead and going in with a single putt, and he took the eighth by circumnavigating a stymie.

He was 3 up at the turn, captured the tenth, where Hutchinson obligingly stymied himself, won the eleventh when his opponent chased his ball from one trap to another, and made his advantage 6 up at the twelfth, where Hutchinson's ball, discouraged at its treatment, made good its escape in the rough and was never found. The thirteenth was halved, giving the match to Hilton, 6 and 5.

Frank K. English of New Haven won the driving contest in the afternoon with a total of 600 yards for his three drives. Francis M. Bacon, 3d, of Garden City, and John Berrien of Upper Montclair were tied for second place, Berrien winning the play-off with 573 yards. The summaries:

MRS. STOCKTON IS VICTOR.

Forty-five women took part in the one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association held over the links of the Essex County Country Club yesterday. Mrs. Leila C. Stockton of Lakewood, medalist in the metropolitan championship at Baltusrol, won the low gross prize again, making her third consecutive low-score prize in as many tournaments. Mrs. S. A. Herzog of tournaments. Mrs. S. A. Herzog of Glen Ridge tied for the net prizes, Mrs. Herzog with a card of 93, 5—88, and Mrs. Koempel with a score of 95, 7—88. Mrs. Albert McDonald of Plainfield won the approaching and putting contest, taking only nine strokes to hole three balls out from some distance off the green.

GIANTS GET COLLEGIANS.

Sign Pie Way of Yale and George Smith of Columbia, Twirlers.

The Giants yesterday signed two college pitchers, Pie Way of Yale and George Smith of Columbia. Both joined the club yesterday and will be kept on the ineligible list until there is room for them on the regular staff.

Way pitched for Yale last season and showed much promise. During the present season, he was not allowed to play with the Elis because he had accepted some of his expenses for playing with a Summer resort team on Long Island.

Smith is one of the best pitchers Columbia has had for many seasons and Coach Andy Coakley predicts that he will have a successful career as a big leaguer.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 27.—Contrary to the two matches played in New York, when high scoring was indulged in by the contesting teams, today's match in the Halifax Cup series had comparatively low totals, and resulted in a close victory for the New York team, which defeated the Frankford C. C. on the grounds at Haverford by 158 to 173 runs. The Frankford Club was first at bat, and it looked like a sure victory for the home team until just before the end of the game. With but one wicket remaining New York was twenty-two runs behind. J. D. Keenan was then joined by J. S. Bretz. Before time was called they tied the score and added fifteen more. Bretz was bowled by Bottomley for 9. J. D. Keenan had a not-out score of 39. The score:

SAYS VON DER GOLTZ MADE HIM JOIN PLOT

CALLS BUFFALO TRIP REVEL

One of the reasons why the expedition that Horst von der Goltz organized to blow up the Welland Canal in Canada failed of its object was, according to testimony given yesterday, because its commander and Constantine Covani, his assistant, spent so much time in Buffalo "sporting around" that the other members of the band felt aggrieved, for they were not only left lonely, but without the means for providing entertainment for themselves. Charles Tucker, or Tuchsimer, who served as von der Goltz's secretary, told about it yesterday in the Federal District Court, where, before Judge Augustus N. Hand and a jury, Captain Hans Tauscher, the Krupp agent in this country, is being tried on the charge of having furnished the explosives that were to have been used to destroy the Canadian waterway.

The case for the Government moved quickly yesterday, and before the end of the day Assistant United States Attorney Roger B. Wood had called to the stand all except five of the prosecution's witnesses. Von der Goltz, who, as Bridgeman Taylor, acted as Captain von Papen's representative in the canal case, was in court, and for a few minutes he occupied the stand to identify some of the exhibits in the case.

Tucker told how through a chance meeting in front of a newspaper bulletin board in 1914 he became associated with von der Goltz, and served him at $2 a day. Without other credentials than that he was a German and interested in war news, he was taken into the Welland plot and went to Buffalo on the so-called military enterprise.

At the time of the departure for Buffalo Tucker asserted that von der Goltz simply confided to him: "We are going against Canada." When the party left there was slight friction. The commander of the band wanted Tucker to carry the suitcases containing the dynamite, but Tucker said he refused, and reminded him that he had been engaged as a secretary and not as a porter. This dynamite, he said, had been placed in his room in Buffalo for a few days, but was removed just a few minutes before a policeman searched the room. After the attempt against the canal was abandoned, he said, he went to El Paso, where he was arrested and brought back to New York, and lodged on Ellis Island.

Tucker would not admit that von der Goltz ever told him definitely that they were to blow up the Welland Canal, or that Captain von Papen was financing the expedition.

Tucker Under Cross-examination.

It was under cross-examination by Herbert C. Smyth, counsel for the defendant, that Tucker told of the good time enjoyed by von der Goltz and Covani in Buffalo. They used to go out together, he said, and when they returned late they would tell with joy what a good time they had. This, the witness said, started the trouble.

During the cross-examination of the witness Mr. Smyth said he would show that there was never a serious purpose to blow up anything but to blow in the money that was received from Captain von Papen. The whole alleged military expedition was ridiculous, he said. When Tucker, in reply to one of Mr. Smyth's questions, said he was forced to go to Buffalo against his will, Judge Hand asked in some surprise: "He forced you?"

"Yes," replied Tucker, "he said I must go, and if I did not go he would shoot me down."

"Did he say he would shoot you?" queried the court.

"He told me," said Tucker, "that he would have me shot down."

The witness added that, though von der Goltz was not with him all the time in New York, he did not seek to escape. Pressed for a reason for not taking flight, Tucker said: "He came to my room and frightened me." Then he repeated that he made him go to Buffalo.

Corroborative evidence of what a "jolly" party it was that went to Buffalo carrying the dynamite was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Amos S. Guy, who kept the house at 198 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, where von der Goltz quartered his force while they were "looking the ground over." They explained also the testimony of Tucker that the dynamite was shifted just before a policeman searched their rooms. Mrs. Guy said that during the four days the men were rooming in her house there was trouble over the disappearance of a watch which von der Goltz, or Taylor, as he was known to her, said he had lost. She stated that as soon as the complaint reached her she left her husband on guard while she went out and called in a policeman. He failed to find the watch and missed finding the dynamite by a few minutes.

Mr. Guy retold the story of the lost watch. He described his transients as composing a jolly and noisy lot.

Testifies to Tauscher's Character.

The proceedings were held up to allow Colonel Jay E. Hopper of the United States Ordnance Department to testify as a character witness for Captain Tauscher. He said he had known Tauscher for about ten years and that his relations with the Ordnance Department were cordial and frank.

Valentine Buettner of Buffalo, who has been described as an aviator, and who was in September, 1914, manager of Fels Café in Niagara Falls, said he allowed von der Goltz to leave the dynamite with him. He told how he got William Schroeder to take the suitcases away. Later, he said, Schroeder told him they had contained explosives.

Paul Blume, manager of the telegraph money transfer department of Kuhne, Nachod & Kuhne, 120 Broadway, told of sending, at the order of Captain von Papen, various sums of money to John T. Ryan, the Buffalo lawyer. One draft was to the account of Captain von Papen, he said, and the other for the firm's account.

"Why did you leave von Papen's name off the second draft?" asked Mr. Wood.

"Von Papen asked me to do so," replied the witness.

In testifying of the financial transactions made necessary by the Buffalo expedition Mr. Ryan said that he never knew that von Papen was his client.

"One day in September, 1914, that man," said the witness, pointing to von der Goltz, "came to my office and asked me whether Steffins had sent any money from New York for Bridgeman Taylor. I said there are three other lawyers named Ryan in Buffalo, and he went away, but returned next day. Meanwhile, I got a telegram from John Devoy, editor of The Gaelic American, saying he sent Taylor to me and asking that I identify him. I went to the bank, found a remittance for $100. I gave the money to Taylor on his second visit to the office."

He told of other remittances, and Mr. Ford asked him whether he knew for whom he was acting. He said he did not.

A receipt he had signed, which stated it was for von Papen's account, was shown the witness.

"I did not notice the name von Papen on that receipt before," he explained.

Cross-examined, he said Taylor got $400 in all in eight days and then came a telegram from "Steffins" that he was to instruct Taylor that nothing more could be done for him.

That Tauscher ordered the dynamite right after he held a conference with von der Goltz was testified to by Adolf B. Levenger, Tauscher's secretary. It was brought out during the examination of this witness that the books of Tauscher's office for 1914 are missing. Corroborative evidence as to the purchase was furnished by Harold A. Clark, an employe of the du Pont Powder Company.

Henry Muck, an employe of Tauscher, added to the testimony that Tauscher paid for the dynamite and sent a bill to von Papen. He could not tell what had become of the books. Walter A. Richter, Tauscher's shipping clerk, told of delivering the pistols at Meyer's Hotel in Hoboken. He could not identify von der Goltz as the man who received them.

Mayor Says New York Central Gets No New Franchise.

A letter from Mayor Mitchel has been received by the Real Estate Board in reply to a communication on the New York Central Railroad's west side plans, stating that the board is in favor of the general improvement, but was desirous of ascertaining if the city would receive fair compensation for the value of the realty and franchises involved.

In his reply Mayor Mitchel says that in order to leave no doubt as to the accuracy of the appraisements by the Finance Department, a checking of the appraisements has been ordered to be made by the real estate firm of George B. Read & Co. On the subject of the franchise, Mayor Mitchel states he believes the Real Estate Board is laboring under a misapprehension, saying that the railroad is acquiring no new franchise, as its franchise right comes from the Legislature. The Mayor adds:

"The only right or privilege that the railroad acquires at the hands of the city is that of crossing certain side streets with a greater number of tracks than it now maintains, and of constructing an elevated structure along the marginal way from Fifty-ninth Street to Thirtieth Street, with a capacity of four tracks. Against this privilege the railroad surrenders its right to operate two tracks on the surface of Eleventh Avenue, Tenth Avenue, West Street, Canal Street, and Hudson Street."

The Mayor calls attention to the fact that the railroad company is obligated to expend upward of $14,000,000 for the creation of improvements of a purely municipal character.

MRS. REDMOND'S WILL FILED

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—The will of Estelle Livingston Redmond, descendant of Chancellor Livingston, and wife of Geraldyn Redmond, New York clubman, was filed here today by Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr. and John E. Mack, the latter of Poughkeepsie. The estate involved is estimated at between three and four million dollars.

Beneficiaries in New York are as follows: Association of Catholic Charities, $5,000; Little Sisters of the Assumption, 312 East Fifteenth Street, $5,000; three sons of deceased, $75,000 as equivalent bequests to a share in the Dutchess family seat, which is given to the husband for life and then to Johnston Livingston Redmond, another son; Mary McGrath, a nurse, $1,000, and $1,800 yearly. A trust is created for the whole residue.

Racquet Club Decides to Move.

The members of the Racquet and Tennis Club, at a meeting in the clubhouse, West Forty-third Street, approved yesterday the recommendation of the Board of Governors to accept the twenty-year lease, with a privilege of twenty years' renewal, of the entire block front on the west side of Park Avenue between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets, owned by Robert Goelet.

New Yorker Gives $125,000 to Colby

WATERVILLE, Me., June 27.—A gift of $125,000 from Richard C. Shannon of New York toward an endowment fund of $500,000 to be raised for Colby College by 1920, the centennial year of that institution, was announced today. Mr. Shannon was graduated from Colby in 1862.

SEE NO TRADE PERIL IN WAR WITH MEXICO

OUR MOTIVES ARE TRUSTED

"It's a Business Proposition, in Which Sentiment Doesn't Count," an Agent of Brazil Asserts.

Commercial and financial interests in this city having close business relations with Argentina, Brazil, and Chile, the so-called American A B C powers, expressed the belief yesterday that intervention by the United States in Mexico, in the shape of actual hostilities, would not at this time cause distrust on the part of the Southern republics toward this country nor weaken the growing trade bonds between those countries and this.

In all quarters the suggestion was scouted that any Central or South American nation, or group of nations, would, for a moment, entertain the idea of taking up arms in behalf of Mexico.

W. S. Kies, Vice President of the National City Bank of New York, which has done pioneer work in establishing branch banks in the leading South American countries and who also is an official of the American International Corporation, made this statement yesterday:

"Press reports from the chief centres of South America tend to support the view that public opinion in the countries of the southern continent is in the main convinced of American sincerity of purpose in effecting, if possible, a solution of the Mexican problem. I think from all the information at hand that South America as a whole is convinced of the motives actuating the United States at this time. It should be borne in mind at the present juncture of affairs, as at all times, that square dealing with our southern neighbors in all business relations will count much in our favor."

A representative of the Foreign Trade Council, representing the largest manufacturing and exporting interests of the United States said:

"There is no unanimity of opinion in South America, except that formed by the educated classes. These classes make the sentiment in a given country, and they are invariably influenced by commercial and financial considerations, including investments by foreign capital. If there is any so-called sentiment in the chief South American countries against the United States on account of the Mexican situation, or what it may lead to, it may be set down to our trade competitors, who through their press endeavor to play upon old fears of jealousies.

"The enlightened sentiment in such countries as Argentina, Brazil, and Chile has noted what the United States did for Cuba, and the wholly disinterested manner in which the latter country was treated. This attitude will probably be extended to cover whatever steps this country may find necessary to take to restore Mexican stability. We do not think that if intervention comes it will impair American trade with the leading South American countries to any extent. While the southern republics have a common ancestry with Mexico, their interest really ends there, as all considerations of commercial and monetary intercourse tend toward the United States."

W. J. Raeburn of the Lloyd Brazileiro, the Government-owned steamship line operating between New York and Brazilian ports, gave it as his view that war between the United States and Mexico would not result in any sentimental cutting down of purchases here by the merchants of Brazil.

The stability at this time of trade between the United States and South America is reflected by the latest report of the Department of Commerce, just available, from which it appears that, in the ten months ended with April, this country's exports to South America reached the unprecedented value of $141,831,663, against only $78,-603,662 in the same period of 1915. Imports from South America in the ten months ended with April mounted to $312,205,689, a gain of almost $100,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1915, when their value was set down at $216,-194,667.

Argentina, Brazil, and Chile were the largest buyers and sellers. American trade with Central America also gained both ways in the period referred to above.

Poets to Meet in Central Park.

Edwin Markham will preside at a meeting of American poets to be held in Central Park at The Meadow, (Sixty-ninth Street knoll) this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The meeting is intended as a tribute to the memory of Padraic Pearse, Thomas MacDonagh, and Joseph Plunkett, but without political significance. Among the poets who will read are Eleanor Rogers Cox, Mrs. Henry Mills Alden, William Hamilton Hayne, and Louis Untermeyer, and messages of sympathy will be read from George Sterling, Harriet Monroe, Jessie Rittenhouse, Dana Burnet, and others. There will be vocal and instrumental music. In case of rain the meeting will be held at the Hotel Plaza.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

MICHAEL SCHOEMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Michael Schoeman, who lives at 937 Simpson Street, the Bronx, and who has a women's apparel store in Springfield, Mass., by these creditors: Jacob Brodkin, $493; A. Storch, $172, and A. Valentine, $51. Judge Mayer appointed B. W. B. Brown receiver under a bond of $1,000. Liabilities are $12,000 and assets $5,500, consisting of stock, $1,000, and a claim against fire insurance companies, $4,500. He recently had a fire loss, which was adjusted at $4,500, and this money has been attached at Springfield by twelve creditors.

HARRY SEMKEN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Harry Semken, surviving partner of Semken & Hingslage, wholesale dealers in butter, &c., at 321 Greenwich Street, by these creditors: R. B. Shimer & Co., $847; Willard P. Brown, $1,096, and W. S. Douglas & Co., $600. It was said that the firm had been out of business for some time, and creditors were afraid the assets would be dissipated. Liabilities are about $10,000.

DR. MARWIN COMPANY, INC., manufacturer of toilet preparations in a mail-order business at 9 West Twentieth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $7,180 and assets of $655, consisting of materials, $350; office furniture, $250, and accounts, $55. Among the creditors are the Compagnie Novana, $2,000, and National Folding Box Company, $1,382. The company was incorporated on June 6, 1913, with capital stock of $10,000, and William H. Rowse is President.

SASCHA PIATOR, an actor of 226 West Fiftieth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,354 and no assets. The debts are for money loaned, mortgage, notes, advertising, and hotel bill.

THEOPHILUS BROWN HILTON of 488 Seventh Avenue, formerly of Phillips & Hilton, in business at Fort Smith, Ark., which was dissolved in August, 1911, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with individual liabilities of $1,451 and assets of $65, and firm liabilities of $786 and no assets.

JOHN S. JAMISON of Cold Spring, Putnam County, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,366, and assets of $10 in cash in bank at Newark, N. J., where he was formerly in business.

JOHN M. STAHL.—Judge Mayer has appointed Oscar Igstaedter receiver for John M. Stahl, grocer, at 465 Columbus Avenue, under a bond of $750.

FORTY-FIRST STREET REALTY COMPANY.—Judge Mayer has granted a motion to dismiss the petition in bankruptcy filed on Feb. 20, 1914, against the Forty-first Street Realty Company of Broadway and Forty-first Street. The company formerly owned the Hotel Continental property, which was sold at foreclosure sale on Nov. 19, 1914, to F. L. Mabee for $750,000. The mortgage was $918,000, held by the Mabee estate, which had sold the property to the Forty-first Street Realty Company in 1912. Liabilities of the company were said to be over $200,000.

CHARLES ROSNER.—Judge Mayer has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Charles Rosner, jobber of tobacco, at 782 East 152d Street, and sustained the specifications of objections of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

SAMUEL LISSAUER, merchant tailor, at 69 Wall Street, has made an assignment to Abraham Breitbard.

Duty on Gilded Frames.

The Treasury Department has notified Collector Malone of a change in the classification of gilded frames of wood for oil paintings. The frames affected by the new order cover such as are composed of wood, paste, and gold leaf, wood chief value. Such frames, at the expiration of thirty days, when having 25 per cent. or more of the exposed surface covered with gold leaf will be taxed 50 per cent. under the tariff provision for "articles or wares plated with gold or silver." The old practice of returning the frames at 15 per cent. as "manufactures of wood" will be discontinued.

The children's wash suit manufacturers have no fault to find with the business they are getting. Orders have been exceptionally large, and factories are taxed to the utmost to turn out the goods required for the Fall season. While there are quite a few novelties being shown, there is no particular model that has gone so well as to require special mention. The styles remain practically unchanged, and are designed on the order of the Norfolk belted and middy effects. In the infants' wear lines quite some success has been registered by the domestic hand-made goods. These have taken the place of the apparel that was imported from France before the war.

While a moderate business in gray goods passed yesterday, there was nothing very brisk to the trading done. Sales were reported on 38½-inch 60-48s at 4⅝ cents. There seems to be a good demand for 64-60s 38½-inch at 5½ cents and 68-72s 39-inch at 6⅛ cents. Neither of these constructions is over-plentiful at this time. A few 27-inch 64-60s for July-August delivery were sold at 3⅞ cents. The market generally was quiet. Closing prices were:

Still Fewer Tie Silk Weavers.

According to one statement made by the representative of a tie silk manufacturer yesterday, a large number of weavers have gone to the border with the National Guard. As the shortage of labor has been the chief difficulty experienced by this trade, the situation, instead of growing better, has become worse. Popular priced lines that were opened for the holiday business were sold up in a remarkably short time, even though prices were increased by quite a percentage over the opening figures. The most popular fabric for the Christmas trade seems to have been moires in satin stripes and plaids. Figured goods are selling at the present time to some extent, but the bulk of business appears to have been placed on stripes.

Shirt and Collar Supply.

The chief trouble of the shirt and collar makers at the present time lies not in getting orders, but in placating their customers who cannot get the goods they bargained for some time back. During the last sixty days the leading factor in the trade has not accepted orders calling for delivery before July 1. Prices are back on the old scale and values compare favorably with those formerly given, despite the advances which have come in the cost of materials of all kinds. The Fall business received is said to exceed all past records. The consumer will find no difference in the shirts he buys next Fall except in a more sparing use of colors. Where three stripes were used two are now thought sufficient. For the same reason dark backgrounds are not being so extensively manufactured.

Shetland knit sweaters, which imitate the hand knit goods, are furnishing such a heavy business at the present time that production cannot come up to the wants of the trade. The chief problem in the manufacturing of such merchandise is the shortage of knitting needles, and there is also difficulty in procuring yarns and colors. Fibre silk sweaters are back in favor, and the rush for goods of this variety is so great that jobbers and manufacturers cannot begin to meet the demand. Solid colors with trimmed collars and sashes are those desired. The demand is centred on high colors, such as rose, copenhagen, Kelly green, and gold. The most popular models are made with V necks. A scarcity of cheap wool and cotton sweaters is predicted for the Fall. Lines have been withdrawn by jobbers and manufacturers.

Despite the views of some alarmists as to the effect of the war on silk prices, the best market opinion holds that there will be no recession in values. Most of the big manufacturers report their production as practically sold up for the coming Fall. Advices received from Yokohama yesterday gave a better tone to the raw silk market. Besides the recovery expected in the raw silk end, manufacturers can see nothing but a most prosperous season ahead from the standpoint of distribution. Over the counter sales will be larger, they contend, because of the strike in the garment trade. Just at present the style indications point to the heavier silks required by the fashions of the day. Satins are growing stronger, and some factors believe they will lead over taffetas. The consensus of opinion, however, gives large sales to both of these fabrics.

The situation in the anthracite trade is one of well sustained activity at a time of the year, according to the Coal Trade Journal, when slowing down usually occurs. This is a natural consequence of the late start, for much of the tonnage now being bought would have been taken in April and May had prices been on a settled basis at the time. The catching-up process may necessitate full time operations right through the Summer. Orders from New Haven line points have been coming in much faster than they can be filled since the embargo on anthracite has been taken off by the railroad. Locally the shortage of egg coal continues to be a feature, while stove is also well sold up. The fact that coal can again be bought for shipment eastward at normal prices has caused an easier feeling in the bituminous market.

Short skirts and unseasonable June weather, Morse & Rogers report, are playing havoc with the low shoe business. Anticipating this to be a high shoe season, there were less low shoes made than ever, and yet of the few that were made some already have been sold at cut prices. To make matters worse, large quantities of last year's pumps and oxfords have been thrown on the market at ridiculous prices. One large manufacturer had over 6,000 pairs of pumps left last season, for which he refused $1.25 a pair, expecting to get more for them. He has just sold this same lot at 75 cents a pair, and there are many more such lots in the market. It looks as though women will be compelled to buy combinations this Fall. Every factory is loaded with orders on this class of shoes. Some of the high-grade factories are beginning to complain that there is a shortage of light-weight buck and suede, suitable for tops on the combination shoes. Gray and fawn tops are most in demand.

Woolen Men's Troubles.

A good deal of perplexity exists in the woolen trade because of the soaring price of wool. This applies more to the men's wear end of the market, although, of course, there are ramifications in other directions as well. Almost as troublesome to the selling agents and mill men is the problem created by the long-continued strike or lock-out in the garment trade. The mills are feeling the loss of trade resulting from this labor disturbance, the little buying business done at the present time being confined to those cheaper houses catering to the more ordinary trade. The stagnation in buying, it was explained, is due to the fact that the garment houses that dictate style are not running. Therefore, the styles for the new season have not been determined. Until these operators get to work nobody knows what the Fall styles will be, the net result of which is that no piece goods are being bought.

WAR INCREASES DIVIDENDS.

$2,000,000 More Than Last Quarter Distributed by Four Companies.

War demands for metals, materials, and ocean bottoms were reflected in increases of dividends by three corporations and the inauguration of dividends by another yesterday. Anaconda Copper led the list with a quarterly declaration of $2 a share, which is an increase of 50 cents a share over the rate in the previous quarter. Northern Butte, another copper company, increased its quarterly distribution from 50 to 75 cents a share.

The Central Leather Company, which has profited from the demand from Europe and sees further profit in the demand for shoes for American troops, declared a quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. and an extra dividend of 1 per cent. An initial dividend was declared by the United States Steamship Company, which was organized by Charles W. Morse in the latter part of last year, and in whose interest Mr. Morse is at present in London. The rate was a quarterly 1 per cent. and one-half of 1 per cent. extra.

Altogether the increases mean the distribution of nearly $2,000,000 more than the stockholders of these companies received in the first quarter of the year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The market in crude rubber is quiet and without features. Prices quoted yesterday were as follows: Crepe, 60 cents; rib-smoked sheet, 59 cents; up-river fine, 64 cents, and up-river coarse, 41 cents.

The following were elected officers by the Executive Committee of the Silk Industry Home Defense League at a meeting yesterday in the rooms of the Silk Association of America: Albert Tilt, Captain; Lloyd W. Francis, First Lieutenant; W. W. Metcalf, Second Lieutenant; Francis B. Shepard, Top Sergeant; Benedict Erstein, First Sergeant; Frederic W. Becker, Second Sergeant; Tom M. Jardine, Third Sergeant; Benedict Erstein, Chairman, and W. W. Metcalf, Vice Chairman.

$109,275,000 IN GOLD SENT US BY ENGLAND

That Total Reached When New $10,000,000 Shipment Comes to Pay for Supplies.

BARS OF METAL IN 318 BOXES

What was said to be the largest consignment of gold ever brought into this port in a single vessel came in on the St. Paul of the American Line on Sunday night, and was delivered at the Assay Office for the account of J. P. Morgan & Co. late Monday. It consisted of 318 boxes of gold in bars. Up to the close of business yesterday only 68 of the boxes had been opened and their contents weighed. The English bars are lighter than those which have been coming in from Ottawa, and it was thought that the total contents would run a little over $10,000,000.

A larger cargo of gold was started from here for Europe just before the outbreak of war, when the Kronprinzessin Cecilie left New York with about $11,000,000 on board. The vessel turned about on receiving wireless information of the declaration of war, and put into Bar Harbor. Hitherto, the largest amount of gold sent directly to this port on the current movement amounted to $4,000,000. Yesterday's consignment, added to the shipments from Canada, brought the total gold received on this movement to $109,275,000.

The receipt of bars direct from England supported a report in the financial district to the effect that the stock of gold at Ottawa, earmarked for the British Government, had been temporarily exhausted.

In addition to the gold, J. P. Morgan & Co. received yesterday from the British Government a dozen packing cases filled with American securities. These were deposited in the vaults of the Bankers Trust Company. It could not be learned what disposition is to be made of them, but they may be used to secure a new British Government credit.

The British have three ways of paying for the enormous shipments of munitions and supplies going forward from the United States. The first is settlement in gold, of which shipments have been coming into New York almost daily; the second, proceeds from the sale of American securities mobilized in England and sold for the Government's account in this market, and the third, loans.

It has been reported in the financial district in the last few days that a part of the American stocks and bonds collected by the Treasury Department will not be thrown on the market, but pledged with a Trustee to secure time loans in this country. According to the best estimates obtainable, a much larger amount of securities has been mobilized than has been liquidated on this market. Bankers would make a very favorable rate on a long-time loan backed by the deposit of securities here.

The French loan of $100,000,000 is waiting on final cable exchanges, and is expected to be ready for announcement next week.

Berlin exchange rates caused themselves to be noticed yesterday, when pronounced weakness set in. The high rate for marks was 74¼, as against the high price of 74¼ on Monday, and the close was made at 72¾, showing a loss of 1½ cents.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Pencils, Metals, and Oil Among the Things Considered.

A. W. Faber was sustained yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers in a majority decision affecting pencils composed of cedar, metal, and lead or crayon, and used by architects, engineers, draftsmen, artists, and illustrators. The Collector classified the goods as articles of metal intended to be carried on or about the person, whereas the importers claimed entry at 20 per cent. as manufactures of metal not specially provided for.

George Borgfeldt & Co. were sustained in the claim that brass and steel lead pencil sharpeners were properly dutiable at 20 per cent. under the general provision for metal manufactures not specially provided for. The Collector took 60 per cent. duty, holding they were "designed" to be carried on or attached to the person.

Albert O. Pritchard & Co. lost in a protest relating to the amendment of an entry covering wrapping paper. It appeared that at time the entry was made the consular invoice was not at hand, entry being made on a pro forma invoice, bond being given to produce a consulated invoice. Immediately thereafter, about the time the goods were being appraised and the invoice sent to the Appraiser, the consular invoice arrived. The appraisal was made, however, in the meantime on the pro forma invoice, the value of the merchandise being raised considerably. Duty was assessed upon the appraised value and accruing penalties taken. The importers protested against the payment of the additional duty.

The Societa Libraria Italiana was sustained in a contention for the free entry of books of music, containing a considerable amount of text printed in a language other than English. Assessment had been made at 15 per cent. as "music in books or sheets."

Collector Malone was reversed in the protest case of the Kupfer Bros. Company relating to powdered tin. The Collector classified the product at 25 per cent. as bronze powder. The testimony given at the trial was to the effect that the commodity was known not as a bronze powder, but as powdered tin. In view of this the board held that the claim of the importers for a tax of 20 per cent. under the general metal provision was well taken. The protest was sustained.

S. L. Jones & Co., San Francisco, were upheld by the board in protests relating to the entry of oil of the Perilla plant, it being held to be a nut oil, on which there is no duty, and not an "expressed oil," which calls for one of 25 per cent.

SILK MEN IN RATE FIGHT.

Henry Thurtell of the Interstate Commerce Commission began a hearing yesterday in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building on the application of the Silk Association of America for a reduction of railroad freight charges on raw silk. The association contends the rate has increased 50 per cent. since the Cummins law compelled the railroads to demand actual valuation on all shipments. The railroads agree with the silk shippers that an adjustment would be beneficial to both sides, and the controversy is a friendly one.

Prior to the passage of the Cummins bill silk shippers put a low declared value on their shipments, thus obtaining from the railroads the benefit of the low first-class freight rate, and then protected themselves against loss or damage in transit by insurance of their shipments. With the operation of the new law the railroads first increased their charges to three times the original rate, but afterward reduced them to one and a half times this rate.

The proceeding bears on the interests chiefly of sixty-five members of the Silk Association, who control about 80 per cent. of the looms and spindles in this country. Preliminary testimony was taken yesterday, and the hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

A Good Bond Yielding Over 6%

Some of the reasons why we recommend the 6% Gold Bonds of the Middle West Utilities Company, due January 1, 1925.

They are protected by earnings over two and a third times the interest requirements.

Trading was less active yesterday and prices much stronger. It was suggested in some quarters that the improvement after the sharp decline of the previous day was due to an expectation that the de facto Government of Mexico would recede from its present attitude and thereby remove the danger of war with the United States. This expectation hardly fitted in very well with the bulk of the day's news and it was hardly necessary to assign that as a reason for the lessened selling and for the partial recovery in prices.

In view of the opinion held in important banking circles that American intervention in Mexico would not retard business in the United States but on the contrary would stimulate it, it is not surprising that liquidation such as was carried on on Monday should be followed by such an upturn as occurred yesterday. It has indeed been a matter of surprise to many people, more outside of Wall Street than within it, that the stock market should be declining on account of the Mexican news notwithstanding the widely held belief that to bring the Mexican situation to an issue and to do away with the highly unsatisfactory conditions which have existed in that country for a number of years would in several ways be a helpful instead of a harmful development.

The explanation of this apparent inconsistency probably lies in the fact that the Mexican news merely started a selling movement which later was carried along by reason of the weakening of margins and the consequent uneasiness among speculators throughout the country. The Western wire houses have been among the large sellers, a fact which is finding reflection in the reduction in bank loans on Stock Exchange collateral. Many more accounts than had previously been realized were being carried on too slim a margin and it took only the first upset caused by the new crisis in our Mexican relations to start a selling movement which was carried to bounds far beyond anything which seemed justified by the Mexican news itself. If this diagnosis be correct it would seem to follow that the market position has already been materially improved and is likely to be further improved by any additional pressure of the sort to which the list has been lately subjected. It is the usual experience in such situations that stocks thus sold move into stronger hands.

Were it not for the very keen interest taken in all phases of the Mexican situation more attention would probably have been paid yesterday to the further large gold arrivals and to the news from London that the remaining minimum prices on the Stock Exchange there are to be removed. This latter announcement is of considerable significance. It suggests the large strides which had been made since the war began to restore financial affairs to a normal state. The Bank of England's statements in recent months have indicated unexpectedly rapid progress in the clearing up of loans assumed by the Bank of England when the war broke out and the lifting of minimum prices gives evidence of corresponding progress in the liberation of the stock market.

The further normal conditions are restored before the war ends the easier it will be to effect the readjustments which will be necessitated by the return of peace. We were long ago able to remove the restrictions which we put upon our own markets following the war, but we also have a real interest in the progress being made in the restoration of normal conditions in other financial markets, notably in London; for all financial centres are closely related, as the events of the first few days after the outbreak of the war showed very vividly.

Influence of Favorable News.

At the opening of the market Wall Street knew that the Progressives had indorsed the Republican nominee for President, which was a matter many considered to be of bullish import. As the day advanced increases in dividends were announced by four companies and a batch of extremely favorable railroad earning reports came out. There was material in plenty for bullish speculation, but the rank and file of speculators were not inclined to avail of it. Some of the largest commission houses were again sellers on balance, for the Mexican developments appear to have created a more unfavorable market impression in the interior than in this city. Professionals covered short contracts on the news and the market at one time advanced rather buoyantly. But it was the impression among the traders that they got their stocks back rather easily and in the late trading short selling was renewed in considerable volume.

Union Pacific Earnings.

Reporting for May, Union Pacific showed gross earnings of $8,734,000, an increase of $2,150,000 over the same month last year, and net earnings of $3,386,000, an increase of $1,558,000. For eleven months ended with May the company earned $95,367,000 gross, an increase of $15,736,000, and $37,043,000 net, an increase of $9,089,000. The figures were eloquent enough, but like record earnings of other companies which have been displayed this week, did little to stimulate speculation in the rails.

The Duration of War Business.

A man with intimate knowledge of the extent of foreign purchases in this market denied yesterday that the war order business, using that term to cover all extraordinary purchases in this country, is running out. He said that the consumption of materials is still much larger than the current rate of production in most of the belligerent countries, and that if the war continues with its present vigor the United States must supply the Allies as it has done in the past. According to this authority, the Russian Government has only begun to provide for its needs. If the necessary financial arrangements can be made new Russian business is expected to develop that will dwarf some of the earlier orders placed here by that country.

An Exception to Prove the Rule.

It had grown to be such a regular consequence of increased dividends that the stocks affected should promptly sell off, as though the increase were bad news, that there was some selling in advance of the Anaconda meeting yesterday. However, Anaconda, helped, perhaps, by a more favorable turn in sentiment that was reflected by rising prices in other quarters, moved up on the announcement that the dividend had been increased from $6 to $8. It sold up to 81, and even after slumping off on realization sales managed to close at 79⅞, with a net gain of 2⅜ points. The other coppers acted better, too. Inspiration recovered 1⅛, Kennecott 1⅜, and Greene-Cananea 2⅜.

An Ambitious Pool.

A report got into print yesterday of the formation of a new pool. It was to buy and hold for higher prices 50,000 shares of Steel. As there are only 5,083,000 shares of Steel, it was at once seen by customers who do not need to have bullish developments diagramed for them that the withdrawal of 50,000 shares would leave the market practically bare of Steel common. In anticipation of the rise which must eventuate when that condition is reached Steel sold up ¼ to 83⅞. Other pools have succeeded in driving prices down with their well-meant efforts to make the public see the value of stocks pooled.

MONEY SCARCE IN LONDON.

Necessitates Borrowing from the Bank of England.

LONDON, June 27.—Money was scarcer today, necessitating borrowing from the Bank of England. Discount rates were firm and Exchequer bonds were more active now that the Government is accepting them at par for the payment of death duties.

The removal of the remaining 276 minimum prices is expected to lower values on the Stock Exchange, but to attract a good deal of investment money available at the end of the half year. Consols today reflected the latest war news and advanced ⅛, and other gilt-edged securities were firmer in sympathy. Business was slack in most directions, however, and American shares were especially idle. Oil and shipping stocks were firm, but Mexican issues were weak.

The removal of the minimum prices on the London Stock Exchange comes more than a year after action of the same kind was taken by the New York Stock Exchange. Like the London Exchange, the local board opened for business first with bonds at minimum prices. Guaranteed stocks were then added to the list, and other stocks were put on gradually, all guarded by minimums, which, however, were reduced from time to time until the public appetite for securities indicated that it was safe to resume free trading. London was naturally slower in taking this action, for the number of securities was much greater there and the selling pressure immeasurably heavier. The removal of the minimum prices there now denotes a free market between British subjects. In transactions with foreigners trades are still restricted by the Defense of the Realm act.

To Bid in Western Pacific.

Henry E. Cooper, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, has left for San Francisco to attend the foreclosure sale of the Western Pacific Railway, which takes place today, and it is expected that he will bid in the property for the bondholders. The Equitable Trust Company is Trustee of the old first mortgage under which $50,000,000 bonds were issued. Of the new $20,000,000 first mortgage bonds to be issued in reorganization approximately $7,500,000 have been subscribed by the old bondholders and $12,500,000 will be taken by the underwriters.

NEW I. M. M. BOARD PRACTICALLY NAMED

H. A. Sanderson, E. C. Grenfell, and Lord Pirrie to Act for British Interests.

TO RELEASE LEYLAND CASH

J. P. Morgan and Charles Steele Will Represent Morgan Interests, George W. Perkins Dropping Out.

In furtherance of the plan for reorganization of the International Mercantile Marine Company the British Government has approved three British nominees to the directorate of the rehabilitation company, and has signified a willingness to release from the treasury of one of the largest British subsidiaries more money than that subsidiary has paid before to the dominant company.

The three British nominees are Harold A. Sanderson, the company's President; E. C. Grenfell of Grenfell, Morgan & Co., London, and Lord Pirrie of Harlan & Wolff's, Belfast. On the new board these men will represent British interests, which, in accordance with an agreement between the late J. P. Morgan and the British Government, in 1902, have up to the present been represented by five Directors. The two British Directors who will not appear on the new board are Charles F. Torrey and J. Bruce Ismay. Mr. Ismay's resignation, which was filed Monday, was a formality, for he has had little active connection with the company since the sinking of the Titanic.

On receipt of this information from the British Government J. P. Morgan & Co. let it be known that they had selected Mr. Morgan and Charles Steele to represent them on the new board. George W. Perkins, who was elected on the board as a Morgan representative, will not be on the new board, the Morgan representation having been reduced from three to two.

Representatives of the preferred stockholders and of other important interests in the company continue to urge James N. Wallace, President of the Preferred Stockholders' Committee, to go on the new board, but Mr. Wallace has not consented. The other representatives of the preferred stockholders will be F. W. Scott, Harry Bronner, and Charles H. Sabin, who are members of the Preferred Stockholders' Committee, and either Albert Rathbone, counsel to the committee, or George W. Davidson, Vice President of the Central Trust Company. In the event that Mr. Wallace refuses to enter the board both Mr. Rathbone and Mr. Davidson will probably be chosen.

The other members of the new board stand as announced last week: Charles A. Stone and Frank A. Vanderlip, representing the American International Corporation; Otto T. Bannard, representing the bondholders; John W. Platten and Donald Geddes, representing the common stockholders.

Frederick Leyland & Co., Ltd., is the British subsidiary whose earnings it is proposed to devote in a substantially larger amount to the dominant company. Last year this company earned a profit of more than $7,000,000, as shown by the annual report, but set aside $3,750,000 in a reserve fund, paid practically all of its debenture debt, increased its working capital from $1,500,000 to about $3,500,000, and increased its investments from $1,600,000 to nearly $10,000,000. Higher charges were also made to depreciation. The net result was that though dividends were increased, and all of the back dividends on the common paid off, the amount turned over to International Mercantile Marine was little more than $1,40,000.

With the reserve and depreciation funds strengthened, and current earnings of the Leyland Line approximating $2,000,000 a month, money can be spared and the company remain in a position to meet any emergency. Receiver Franklin is confident that this year's receipts from the company will be handsome.

Until a closer approximation of the amount derivable from the subsidiary companies is possible the reorganizers will not decide whether or not to sell notes to pay part of the $30,000,000 which is to go in cash to bondholders.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

A marked improvement in the tone compared with the day before soon showed itself on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. This reflected a much calmer view of the Mexican situation. At the start there was irregularity, with softness in some directions, but prices quickly steadied and advanced, with some of the gains very substantial. Toward the close setbacks occurred, but the market ended with net improvements general.

NEW YORK BANKERS PLAN LOAN TO CHINA

ASK LESS THAN $5,000,000

Instability of Government Makes Large Commitment Unlikely—May Pledge Salt Tax.

The Chinese Government, after many futile attempts, is likely to succeed in the near future in arranging a Government loan with American bankers. Representatives of a number of the largest banking institutions in Wall Street held a meeting in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday to discuss the newest proposal, and while no agreement was reached, the indications favor the granting of a small initial loan, to be followed probably by additional sums.

Lee, Higginson & Co. were made fiscal agents for the Chinese Government in this country some months ago, and at that time an advance of $1,000,000 was made. The Guaranty Trust Company participated with Lee, Higginson & Co. in this transaction, and will be associated with them in forming a new group. The pending discussions are turning about a request for a little less than $5,000,000.

This loan has no connection with one for $5,000,000 recently arranged by the American International Corporation for dredging and improving the Grand Canal. This project, which is expected to restore thousands of acres of fertile land to farmers, was initiated by the American Red Cross as a means of lessening the periodical famines. The money will be supplied by the American International Corporation in installments, to be expended under the direction of engineers in the company's employ.

The new loan was originally intended to run between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000, but the shifting systems of Government in China made bankers chary about entering upon arrangements for any such sum. One of the men at yesterday's meeting expressed doubt as to the success of the smaller undertaking, but the money is ready for China if proper guarantees can be obtained. It is thought that the unmortgaged portion of the salt gabelle may be pledged back of the loan.

The Japanese have withheld from China part of the salt tax surplus, which they aver belongs to them, and the new administration has been further embarrassed by its inability to collect the customary payments from some of the provinces which have been in rebellion. The $5,000,000 now being sought would be used for putting the new Government on its feet.

In the closing months of the Taft Administration preparations were made for the advance of upward of $100,000,000 to China by Great Britain, France, Germany and the United States. The American allotment was to have been supplied by a group embracing the National City Bank, First National Bank, J. P. Morgan & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Japan and Russia were later admitted to participation, and a Six Power loan was almost completed when the American participation was canceled because of the disapproval from Secretary Bryan. The other nations finally dropped out and China's finances, which were to have been reorganized and put upon a stable basis, went from bad to worse with the failure of Yuan Shi-kai to hold his people together. Since that time Japan has sought to dominate China's fiscal affairs.

Specialized Investment Recommendations

Their Advantages

The Investing Department of our business is managed by practical men—men who have worked upon public utility properties and know actual conditions. To that practical knowledge is added the experience which comes from examining many properties in many sections of the country. To that is added the knowledge which comes from the theoretical study of the public service field in general.

Studying The Effect of mortgage provisions upon bondholders, and the effect of charter provisions upon preferred stockholders, is a part of our research work. We are students of the public utility business, and it is for that reason that our recommendations should be of value to you.

A postal to-day will bring to you a list of ten Public Utility Bonds and Preferred Stocks, yielding on the average,

6% Preferred Stock

Within the last two weeks Cities Service Common Stock has advanced more than 70 points to above $350 a share, while the Preferred Stock, which pays regular monthly dividends of ½ of 1%, may still be purchased on

Approximately a 7% Income Basis

This anomalous position of the senior issue has been brought about by liquidation of foreign holdings caused by the policy of the British Government in placing heavy taxes on all incomes derived from holdings by its people on foreign securities.

It is now evident that this foreign liquidation is nearing its end and with its cessation Cities Service 6% Preferred Stock should quickly advance to much higher prices. More than four times the requirements for the preferred dividends are now being earned and after July 12, 1916, this stock will have first claim on all assets and earnings of the issuing corporation.

While the Preferred Stock may now be purchased around 86 or on approximately a 7% income basis the market value of the common stock, or junior issue, has advanced until now it is around $350 a share, indicating an equity of more than $64,200,000 above the Preferred Stock or almost twice the entire outstanding par value of 6% Preferred Stock.

We advise the purchase of Cities Service Preferred Stock for permanent investment and are ready to give complete information in regard to it either in person or on application by letter or wire.

July First Coupons

The reinvestment of July first coupon payments is a problem which many investors are facing and which you yourself may now be considering. We suggest and recommend to you for your careful investigation, first mortgage serial real estate bonds, issued and safeguarded under the Straus Plan, yielding 5½%.

Each issue is a first mortgage, securing a series of bonds on a specific piece of improved property. We loan only on the best class of land and buildings; earning a net rental income sufficient to meet the interest, pay off about one-twentieth of the whole number of bonds each year, and leave an ample surplus. We require good locations and ample equities. We purchase these bonds with our own funds direct from the borrowers and offer them, carefully safeguarded, to the investing public.

No investor has ever lost a dollar on any security purchased of us since this House was founded, thirty-four years ago—a record which should be a basis for the confidence of investors.

Kennecott Copper

No one disputes the claim made that Kennecott Copper is one of the richest copper mines discovered in America in the last quarter century; that it produces copper at less cost than most other copper mines in this country and that it is in an excellent position to maintain the present dividend. It could even pay more. This is the business side of the company. But of late the market action of Kennecott stock has puzzled a great many of its shareholders who believe, with such a good future before the enterprise, it should sell higher. In the current issue a copper authority who has carefully analyzed the recent financing of Kennecott gives his view of this puzzle and what he has to say is well worth reading. There are many other interesting articles in the same issue.

Driggs-Seabury Common Stock

Earnings 70%

These enormous earnings are possible because of the big profits which the Company is said to make on the $20,000,000 order of 3" Guns and 6" Shells. The Company's Savage Arms plant at Utica has orders for 20,000 Lewis Guns. Profits on this contract alone are believed to be close to 75%.

20% Dividends

The Company is paying dividends of 5% quarterly and extra dividends 5% quarterly are rumored. It would be easily possible for the Company to pay these extra dividends as owing to the increasing productive capacity of its plants it is estimated that net earnings will soon exceed the rate of 100% on the Common Stock.

HAVEMEYER & ELDER, INC.

Sugar Refiners' Firm Placed on Modern Business Basis.

The partnership of Havemeyer & Elder, which for more than twenty-five years has been engaged in the sugar refining business in Brooklyn, Long Island City, and New Jersey, has been incorporated as Havemeyer & Elder, Inc.

The change became known through the filing of a mortgage of $2,000,000 on the company's property in Long Island City in favor of the Bankers' Trust Company. At the offices of F. C. Havemeyer, Jr., in Brooklyn, it was explained that the change was made for the purpose of placing the firm on a modern business basis. The funds raised by the mortgage, it was said, would be used in enlarging the company's capacity.

MAY EXPORTS BREAK RECORD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—American exports for May exceeded those of any preceding month in the history of the country. The total was $472,000,000. That was $61,000,000 above those of March and $300,000,000 more than the monthly average for May from 1911 to 1914.

The magnitude of our foreign trade may be conceived by the year's total of $4,186,000,000, which is an increase of $1,500,000,000 over the preceding year and twice the exports of the year ending May, 1911. The total exceeded by $80,000,000 the exports of the entire year of 1870.

The imports for May were also the greatest on record, the total value being $229,000,000, an increase of $11,000,000 over April, the previous high mark. This total exceeds the monthly May average from 1911 to 1914 by $82,000,000. For the year ending with May, imports totaled $2,110,000,000, an increase of $430,000,000 over the preceding year and $242,000,000 over the corresponding period two years ago. The combined value of imports and exports in the twelve months just ended was $6,246,000,000, a growth of $1,916,000,000 in a single year.

The favorable balance of trade in the month and twelve months ending with May was the largest ever known. For May it was $243,000,000 and for the year ending with May, $2,026,000,000. Corresponding figures for last year were $132,000,000 for May and $983,000,000 for the twelve months.

May showed a net inward gold movement of over $15,000,000, thus reversing the conditions shown in the preceding three months. Imports of gold in May aggregated $27,000,000, compared with gold exports of $12,000,000, and gold imports in the twelve months to May 31 amounted to $424,000,000, as against gold exports of $85,000,000, a net inward movement for the year of $339,000,000. Last year gave a net inward gold movement of $68,000,000, while two years ago there was a net outward gold movement of nearly $2,000,000.

FOR HIGHER COAST RATES.

Commerce Commission Holds That War Has Killed Water Competition.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Holding that water competition between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts has been completely destroyed under war conditions, the Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered transcontinental railroads to revise their rates from the East to the Pacific Coast by Sept. 1, so that they shall not be lower than rates to intermediate points.

The order was a result of the investigation of existing rates on application of the Nevada railroad commission, the Spokane Merchants' Association and representatives of various intermediate cities. The commission found that the need for lower rates to meet water competition has completely disappeared for the time being and that "there is little likelihood of any material competition by water during the present year."

"The unprecedented freight rates being paid for ocean transportation between this and other countries," said the opinion, "have attracted practically all of the ships heretofore engaged in coast to coast service. In these circumstances coast rates are lower than conditions warrant. The rate adjustment in question was established after exhaustive hearing and careful study, and was justified by the conditions then existing. The war and an unparalleled rise in prices for ocean transportation have so changed the situation as to transform a relation of rates which was justified when established to one that is now unjustly discriminatory against intermediate points."

The commission's revision order applies to a long list of commodities in westbound traffic, including iron and steel articles from Pittsburgh, and canned goods, coffee, meats, cotton, and wool products, dry goods, hardware, shoes, twine, paper, oil, &c., from the East generally. It includes eastbound rates from California points via rail and water routes through gulf ports to the Atlantic seaboard.

THE MEXICAN LIGHT & POWER COMPANY, LIMITED,
THE MEXICAN ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY, LIMITED,
PACHUCA LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a joint meeting of the Holders of the Bonds issued by the above named Companies will be held at Winchester House, Old Broad Street, London, E. C., on Friday, the 14th day of July, 1916, at 12 o'clock noon, to consider and decide upon the policy to be adopted for the protection of the Bondholders' interests until conditions in Mexico improve.

In order that the Bondholders might have full information as to the present position of the Company, the Hon. F. H. Phippen, K. C., of Toronto, Canada, and Mr. E. D. Trowbridge, C. E., of Detroit, Michigan, recently visited Mexico in the interest of the Bondholders at the request of National Trust Company, Limited, the Trustee under the various Trust Deeds, and with the approval of the Committee. On their return they made a report on the properties, with important recommendations. A copy (1) of the report, and (2) of a statement issued by the Trust Company and the Bondholders' Committee giving various recommendations can be obtained on application at the following addresses:

THE BANK OF SCOTLAND, 30 Bishopsgate, London, E. C., and Head Office, Edinburgh.

THOMAS PORTER, Secretary to the Committee, 34 Bishopsgate, London, E. C.

In the opinion of the Trust Company and the Bondholders' Committee it is important that the Bondholders should have an opportunity of meeting Mr. Phippen before he returns to Canada, which he is compelled to do shortly.

Steps are being taken to convene with as little delay as possible formal meetings of the holders of the different bond issues, in accordance with the provisions of the respective Trust Deeds. The calling of these meetings involves considerable delay on account of the Notices having to be advertised in, amongst other places, the cities of Mexico and Brussels, a matter of no little difficulty at the present time. The general meeting referred to above has therefore been convened to enable Bondholders to meet Mr. Phippen and Mr. Rundle, the General Manager of the National Trust Company, before there gentlemen are compelled to return to Canada. The resolutions intended to be placed before the formal meetings will be submitted for the consideration and approval of the Bondholders at the general meeting now called.

the depositaries under the agreements already prepared and signed by the Committee. Bonds can also be deposited with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, St. James St., Montreal, and Messrs. Bell and Schell, 16 Exchange Place, New York, acting as Agents for the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto. The Committee have extended the time for deposit until the date of the meeting called for the 14TH JULY NEXT. The requisite forms of deposit can be obtained on application to any of the said Banks, or to the undersigned.

The Committee impress upon the holders of Bonds the importance of uniting for the protection of their mutual interests.

A copy of the joint circular issued by National Trust Company, Limited, (the Trustee for the Bondholders,) and the Committee, setting out the policy which they recommend, and a copy of a report made by the Hon. F. H. Phippen, K. C., and Mr. E. D. Trowbridge, who have recently visited Mexico in the interests of the Bondholders, can be obtained by Bondholders upon application to the above mentioned Bankers, the Offices of the Companies, 19 Manning Arcade, Toronto, the National Trust Company, Limited, Toronto and Montreal, or to the undersigned.

COTTON UNSETTLED BY JULY DELIVERIES

HEAVY WALL ST. LIQUIDATION

Cotton was somewhat unsettled yesterday by deliveries of July contracts, and prices closed at a net loss of seven to sixteen points. During the early trading, it was the impression that the tenders did not amount to more than 10,000 bales, but later estimates were increased to about 25,000 bales. Spot brokers seemed willing to buy their July only at an increased discount from October, ranging from seventeen to eighteen points. There were also rumors that the report of the National Ginners' Association would be bearish on its estimate on the condition of the crop.

There was rather heavy liquidation by Western and Wall Street houses as a result of the disposition to even up commitments in advance of the Government report, which will be issued at 11 o'clock on Saturday. The extent of the liquidation has been surpassing to the local bulls, who were also discouraged by the lack of outside support. Some traders found it difficult to understand why spot houses should have been such ready buyers of July at the prevailing differences, especially as it was believed that the cotton to be delivered had been pretty well picked over.

The weather details showed scattered showers over the Savannah district of Georgia, Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas. Temperatures are getting rather high in Texas. Eighteen stations yesterday reported temperatures of 100 to 109 degrees.

The Journal of Commerce says that rains have been excessive in North and South Carolina, causing considerable grass and interference with chopping. In Georgia the situation is said to be rather mixed, but the percentage condition has improved.

Cotton yarn prices are said to be showing more of an upward tendency. It is said that some spinners are declining offers of substantial forward contracts.

Spot cotton markets, as officially reported, were unchanged, Norfolk thirteen points decline. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, ten points decline, middling 13.10c. Futures closed steady.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was fairly active, and early in the day prices experienced an advance of over a cent a bushel. Shorts were good buyers, and for a time sentiment was a little more bullish owing to steadier prices abroad and on account of more or less apprehension over the Mexican situation. Receipts, however, were again heavy, and toward the close of the day values eased off sharply, losing all the early advance and closing net unchanged to ⅛c lower. In the local cash market, No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.12¼; No. 2 hard, $1.15¼; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.22¼; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.25¼, all free on board, New York.

December	1.08⅜	1.06⅝	1.07⅛	1.07⅛	1.04⅞

CORN.

The firmness in the cash position again had a stimulating influence on the corn market and prices showed net gains for the day of ¼@⅝c. The July position again showed the greatest strength, with shorts inclined to cover, owing to decreasing stocks in Chicago, and the situation was further strengthened by export sales of about 400,000 bushels. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 87½c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

Price changes in the oats market were comparatively narrow throughout the day and closing quotations were net unchanged. The weather was more favorable for the new crop, but this was offset by the firmness in corn and export sales of about 100,000 bushels. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 46½c; No. 3 white, 45@45½c; No. 4 white, 44@44½c; fancy clipped white, 46@47½c; ordinary clipped white, 44½@46½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was only moderately active and price changes were again irregular. Pork was under considerable pressure at times but rallied at the close under covering by July shorts; lard closed with moderate losses, and ribs were about unchanged from the final of Monday. Hog receipts were moderate, but the hog market showed a slightly heavier tone. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 12,000; estimated for Wednesday, 26,000. Kansas City received 12,000 and Omaha 11,500.

COFFEE.

A slight early rally was followed by renewed weakness in the coffee market yesterday, with most of the active months making new low ground for the movement under further scattering liquidation and a little trade selling. Reports of easier cost and freight offers served to check the early demand, which had been based chiefly on reactionary arguments, and there seemed to be very little support around the ring during the afternoon, with the close showing a net loss of 3 to 7 points. Sales were reported of 53,750 bags. The spot market was more or less nominal, with quotations on the basis of 9⅛ to 9¼c for Rio 7s, and 10¼ to 10⅜c for Santos 4s. Rio 7s were offered here at 8.75c, London credits. Rio reported a clearance of 15,000 bags for New York. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures opened steady, 3 points lower to 3 points higher, and later in the day prices eased off a couple of points under July liquidation, but generally the market ruled within a narrow range. The close was 1 point net lower to 1 point net higher, with sales for the day 7,100 tons. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was steady and unchanged at 7.65@7.75 for fine granulated. There were only moderate withdrawals on old contracts, while new business was light, although there were sales of some 12,000 tons reported to Argentina at or about 6.40c, free on board, shipment from New Orleans.

Quotations on Cuban raws were unchanged. Cost and freight were quoted at 5⅛c, molasses at 5.68c, centrifugals at 6.40c. Porto Ricos advanced 12 points on a sale of 25,000 bags to an outport refiner at 6.20c, cost, insurance, and freight, delivered, clearance this week.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,047 packages. Under some pressure to sell, prices were shaded ¼@½c on most grades of creamery, and at the decline there is only moderate business. Ladles are active and firmer; some large sales of city made at 24c. Packing stock also in quite active demand and prices in sellers' favor. Creamery, extras, (93 score,) per pound, 29@29½c; higher scoring, 29½@30¼c; firsts, (89 to 92 score,) 28@28½c; seconds, (84 to 88 score,) 26@27½c; thirds, 24½@25½c; creamery, unsalted, extras, 29½@30c; higher scoring, 30¼@31c; firsts, 28½@29c; seconds, 26½@28c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 28½c; good to prime, 26½@28c; common to fair, 24@26c; renovated, extras, 26½@27c; firsts, 25@26c; lower grades, 23@24c; imitation creamery, firsts, 25½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 24½@25c; seconds, 23½@24c; lower grades, 22@23c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 23½@24c; No. 2, 23c; lower grades, 21@22½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 17,692 cases. The market is firm under moderate receipts and sufficient trade to give holders some advantage. Asking prices are generally higher on almost all grades, although qualities to exceed 25c in carefully graded candled stock are still very exceptional. Most business in regular packings ranges 23@24c as to quality. Underpriced clean eggs and good dirties and checks keep closely cleared. Fancy nearby eggs slightly higher. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 26@27c; extra firsts, 24½@25½c; firsts, 23½@24½c; seconds, 22½@23½c; thirds and poorer, 20@22c; dirties, No. 1, 21½@22c; No. 2 and poorer, 19@21c; checks, good to choice, dry, 20@20½c; undergrades, 17@19½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 29@31c; ordinary to good, 26@28c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 25½@28c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 24@27c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 27½@28½c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 23½@26½c; duck eggs, State and nearby, Indian Runner, 30c.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

$2,000,000 Hotel for Fifth Avenue Astor Corner—Hoadley House Sold Again—Church Buys Harlem Plot—Ice Company in Big Long Island City Deal—Suburban Buying.

The leasing of the Baron Astor property on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street for the erection of a $2,000,000 hotel was the big feature in the realty market yesterday. Bryan L. Kennelly acted as the broker in the deal.

Curiosity over the purchaser of the six blocks forming the old American League baseball park in the upper Heights section led to a rumor that Vincent Astor had acquired the parcel. While the brokers are not divulging the name of the new owner, William H. Wheelock of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company said yesterday that he was willing to go so far as to make a positive denial that Vincent Astor was the buyer.

Hoadley House Sold for Ninth Time.

For the ninth time since 1912 the Joseph Hoadley dwelling at 18 East Eighty-second Street was offered at public auction in foreclosure proceedings by Bryan L. Kennelly yesterday. It was knocked down to William E. White, who is said to represent the Hoadley interests, for $73,000.

At each of the previous sales the Hoadleys paid 10 per cent. of the knockdown prices and then failed to complete the purchases. These deposits, instead of being forfeited, were deducted from the mortgage judgment held by the New York Life Insurance Company.

Excluding yesterday's sale, it is figured the Hoadleys paid a total of $81,000 toward the judgment of over $100,000.

Operators Buy on West 22d Street.

Lowenfeld & Prager, operators, have purchased from R. H. Hudspeth and Nelson Greenfield 338 and 340 West Twenty-second Street, two three-story dwellings, on a plot 46 by 100. E. H. Ludlow & Co. were the brokers.

Church Buys Harlem Plot.

The two old dwellings at 142 and 144 West 131st Street, 30.8 by 99.11, formerly used as a synagogue, have been purchased by the Greater New York Corporation of the Seventh Day Adventists. The property was purchased from the Right Realty and Security Company, which recently acquired it. It is between Lenox and Seventh Avenues. J. B. Wood was the broker in the deal.

Harlem Dwellings Sold.

Ernest C. Hinck, formerly Mayor of Montclair, N. J., has purchased from the E. C. Sewall estate 21 West 126th Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 17.6 by 99.11. F. M. Crowley & Brothers negotiated the sale.

Schwab & Co. have sold for Solomon Bossak the private dwelling at 421 East 119th Street, 16.8 by 100, between First and Pleasant Avenues.

Bronx Sales.

Schwab & Co. have sold for James T. Barry the five-story apartment house at 415 Claremont Parkway, 56 by 83; also for Solomon Bossak the private dwelling at 1,228 and 1,230 Hoe Avenue, 50 by 100, and the two-family house at 452 East 186th Street, 20 by 100, for the Surety Realty Company.

Brooklyn.

Tutino & Cerny have sold for the Kruse-Abramson Realty Company to a client for investment, the two-story and basement two-family brownstone dwelling, on a plot 20 by 100, known as 543 Forty-seventh Street.

Fred M. Smith has sold the brick house at 635 Hancock Street, 18 by 46 feet, for the Williamsburgh Savings Bank to a client.

Ice Company Buys in L. I. City.

The Knickerbocker Ice Company has purchased from the City of New York a plot comprising nearly an acre at the northeast corner of Locust Street and Dryer Avenue, Long Island City, for $29,475. The plot is adjacent to the Sunnyside yards near the Woodside and Laurel Hill sections, and will be developed in connection with the company's business there.

Long Island.

Pease & Elliman have sold for William B. Codling and Edwin N. Rowley the Koehler farm at Woodbury. It is near the estates of J. Watson Webb and Victor Morawetz, and also the Van Sise farm, which was sold by the same brokers a short time ago to Philip L. Goodwin.

The Meister Builders, Inc., have sold to Mrs. N. J. Joe, a plot 60 by 100, on Beach Forty-third Street, about 1,800 feet north of Far Rockaway Boulevard, upon which the purchaser will erect two cottages.

The Lent-Halcott property, consisting of fifty-nine lots, having a frontage of about 500 feet on Jackson Avenue, and thirty lots fronting on Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets, Corona, have been sold by J. Guidera and A. W. Nelson to Harry Colyer of Highlands, N. J.

The Saks-Gertler Construction Company has purchased from J. Fuchs a plot 95 by 100, at the southeast corner of Freedom and Ashland Avenues, Woodhaven.

New Jersey.

The Schonmaker estate of about five acres, facing the Rahway reservoir, between Westfield and Rahway, N. J., has been sold by the Quiller, Morgan Company to E. P. Winans of South Norwalk, Conn. The property was held at $15,000.

Commercial Leases.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased for Thomas F. Devine to the Exide Battery Depots, Inc., the property 100 by 125 at the northwest corner of Sixty-fourth Street and West End Avenue. A four-story building will be erected for the tenants. The same brokers have leased the building at 11 West Thirty-seventh Street to the Neighborhood Lunch Club; the store at 225 West Forty-seventh Street to Herbert Hayman.

A. H. Mathews has leased the six-story building at 448 Greenwich Street for Josiah H. DeWitt.

N. Brigham Hall and William D. Bloodgood have leased for Walter F. Kingsland of Paris the store at 1,330 Third Avenue, northwest corner of Seventy-sixth Street, to Joseph Delveaux.

Lewis B. Preston, Inc., has leased to Paul Lehman the store at 2,477 Broadway, in the Roxborough, northwest corner of Ninety-second Street.

Bronx Theatre Lease.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased for the new owner of the McKinley Square Theatre, the property at 1,315-21 Boston Road, extending through Clinton Avenue just north of 169th Street, to the Damorba Amusement Company, (Frank C. Bangs, governing director.)

The new owner purchased the property from the State Banking Department, and the new lease has been made to the amusement company, which has been a tenant for the last few months. The aggregate rental is over $100,000.

Plans have been completed by W. T. McCarthy for five four-story and cellar brick apartment buildings to be built by the Wolfinger & Lesberg Building Company, Inc., on a plot 330 by 100, located on the south side of Seventy-fifth Street, 100 feet west of Third Avenue, Brooklyn, to cost $300,000.

Realty Notes.

Justice Giegerich has granted permission to the Children's Aid Society to sell four lots on the west side of Gouverneur Street, between East Broadway and Henry Street, for $70,000 to the Henry Street Settlement. The announcement of the sale, subject to the Court's approval, was made a few days ago.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given that Joseph W. Harriman, John Z. Lowe, Jr., and William A. De Long, the Trustees in Bankruptcy in this proceeding, have filed their report as such Trustees, claiming compensation at $33,746.46, upon which heretofore has been paid $31,478.05, in the office of the undersigned Referee herein, where the same may be inspected by creditors and all parties in interest, and that a final meeting of creditors of said bankrupt will be held at the office of the Referee, 45 Cedar Street, New York City, on July 7, 1916, at 3:30 P. M., at which meeting (1) the final report of the Trustees will be examined and passed upon, and if found correct the same will be allowed and the Trustees discharged of their trust and their official bond canceled; (2) the petitions for allowance to John W. Ingram and Joseph M. Hartfield, as attorneys for the Trustees, also any other applications for allowance or claims against said Trustees, will be examined and passed upon; (3) an eighth and final dividend will be declared by the Referee if there are any funds applicable thereto; and (4) any other business proper to be performed at such meeting may be transacted.

Please take further notice that at the time and place aforesaid the Trustees will offer for sale at public auction certain uncollected notes, claims and accounts, certificates of stock, mortgage bonds, and all other uncollected assets of the estate, an itemized list of which is on file in this office and marked Exhibits A and B attached to the Trustees' petition filed herein June 26, 1916, which list is open to the inspection of all creditors and parties in interest.

The Trustees will also offer for sale at the same time and place aforesaid the books, papers, and records belonging to the bankrupt herein.

Further particulars as to the above-mentioned property may be obtained on application to the Trustees' attorneys, John W. Ingram and Joseph M. Hartfield, 55 Liberty Street, New York City.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Temperatures are now near or above the seasonal average in all parts of the country, except in Upper Michigan and on the Pacific Coast, where cool weather continues. There have been local showers and thunder storms within the last twenty-four hours in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, New England, Indiana, Michigan, and the Northwest. Fair weather prevailed elsewhere.

Pressure is low over the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions and high over the Great Lakes and off the Atlantic Coast.

Indications are that showery weather will continue Wednesday and Thursday in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, and local showers are also probable in Northern Michigan and New England. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Temperatures will be somewhat lower Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, and it will change little in other parts of the country east of the Mississippi River.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coast will be light to moderate variable, with overcast weather; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate east to south; local showers.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Southern New England—Probably local showers and cooler Wednesday. Thursday, probably fair.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and cooler Wednesday. Thursday, fair.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Northern New England—Local showers Wednesday; cooler in the interior. Thursday, fair.

3 A. M.	64	63	4 P. M.	75	72
12 M.	74	73	11 P. M.	56	66

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 68; for the corresponding date last year it was 66; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 71.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 64; at 8 P. M. it was 67. Maximum temperature, 75 degrees at 12:40 P. M.; minimum, 62 degrees at 12:01 A. M. Humidity, 62 degrees at 12:01 A. M. Humidity, 97 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 90 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.06 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.98 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Acting City Supt. Straubenmueller yesterday gave out the figures showing the number of pupils graduated this month from the elementary schools. The totals are as follows:

Borough.	Register.	Graduated.	P.C.
Queens	2,233	2,124	95.1
Richmond	540	506	93.7

P. S. 42, the Bronx (Claremont School) will hold its nineteenth semi-annual graduation exercises at 1:30 P. M. today. Ella Schwartz will deliver the salutatory and Benjamin Selmanowitz the valedictory. Dr. Edward L. Corbett will make an address to the graduates, and District Supt. Joseph S. Taylor will distribute the diplomas.

The exercises of the class of June, 1916, at P. S. 58, Woodhaven, Queens, will be held at 2 P. M. today. The diplomas will be presented by Principal Cyrus E. Smith.

TIMES	515	Tribune	95
Globe	471	Sun	93
World	152	Evening Sun	80
Mail	140

Twenty-seven other papers were mentioned by smaller groups of readers.

Forty-one members of the Barat Club, at Hunter College, including Professor Higgins and Miss Egan of the teaching staff, are making a retreat at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Maplehurst. The retreat is given by Father Donelson, rector of Georgetown University.

Sixteen members of the Pi Delta Theta Fraternity of Hunter College are spending a week of camping in the Adirondacks. They sleep in tents and practice swimming, boating, tennis, and basket ball.

Frank D. Wilsey has been appointed Chairman of the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Education, to succeed Mr. Benson, who recently resigned.

The cooking department in the Education Department is greatly hampered by the economic measures which the Board of Education has been forced to adopt. There are 234 teaching positions, only 167 regular teachers and sixty-seven substitutes, who have been teaching from one to three years. There are seventy-four women on the eligible list from the last examinations held in March, 1916. Twenty of this number have been waiting since 1914 for appointment.

The Trustees of Froebel Academy announce the removal of the school from 687 Lafayette Avenue to 900 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, where it will open its fortieth year in September.

SCHIFF AND ADLER LAUD CLOAKMAKERS

GIVES THEM A DIETARY

Citizens' Committee Conducts a Remarkable Meeting and Gets Gift of $10,000 for Strikers.

Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Health, told 3,000 striking cloakmakers in Carnegie Hall last night that they owed it to the people of New York City to use what money they could get to keep their bodies properly nourished in order that the public might be shielded from disease so likely to follow in the trail of the idleness of 40,000 workers in crowded quarters for several months.

Dr. Emerson then outlined a dietary for a family of five, father, mother, and three children, over five years of age, costing 45 cents a day. This is what the Health Commissioner told the strikers to buy for the day's food:

	Cents.
1 pound of cereal, cornmeal, oatmeal......	3
1 pound of sugar..............	8
1-3 pound of molasses..............	2
½ pound of oleomargarine..............	11
2 quarts of milk..............	12
Total..............	45

Dr. Emerson said this would give 10,000 heat units. He advocated the officials of the strikers making up Board of Health baskets to weigh ten pounds in all and to be sold for 45 cents.

"If 20 cents more a day can be spared," he said, "it should be spent for 10 cents' worth of potatoes and 10 cents' worth of apples. One-half pound of pork fat, costing 10 cents, may be substituted for the oleomargarine. Of course, if there are young children in the family there must be more milk.

"You are spending some of your own money and some of other people's to keep you until you can again earn your own. We health officers see in your strike increase in pneumonia in the city, increase in tuberculosis, increase in infant mortality and in anaemia. As a general thing undernourishment prevails among the garment workers. In this time there is especial danger. I appeal to you on behalf of the people who live with you in the city to take care of nourishing your bodies. You owe it to the city for the aid you are getting fro mthe city's people. You notice I have not included tea or coffee in your dietary. That is because neither possesses any food value. Tea, of which you drink, is a fraud upon your stomach.

"We rely upon you to make this contribution to the good of the city."

The meeting was under the direction of the Citizens' Committee for the Support of the Locked-Out Cloak and Suit Makers.

On the first floor the seats were crowded with the garment workers. In the first and second balconies were persons interested in the strike, while the upper two galleries were filled with strikers. Jacob H. Schiff referred to the meeting as a gathering of the "classes and masses."

"I say to the classes," said Mr. Schiff, "come and help freely and promptly. What is to be done must be done at once. These masses are fighting the fight of good citizenship, and you can't afford to see them loose.

"I feel from my soul the shame of this situation, its injustice, its wrong. This is the first time in eight weeks I have met any union men. They have fought their own fight by themselves. What we attempt to do in helping them we almost force upon them.

"The manufacturers are not unanimous in the stand they are taking. Many of them are held in line through a false sense of duty to their association. We have tried to convince the manufacturers of the error of their ways.

"I say to the manufacturers now: 'Come back, come back before it is too late. Restore the protocol.'

"I say to the workers, fight the good fight, for you are fighting the fight of good citizenship. The city cannot afford to see you lose. Your fight must win, not by might, not by power, but by the spirit of God and of social justice."

Dr. Felix Adler, who was Chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Conciliation, which went out of commission when the manufacturers refused to abide by its decisions and locked out the workers, traveled for twenty hours from his Summer home in Maine to address the meeting. When he arose to speak he was cheered and applauded for ten minutes.

"We take off our hats to the quiet self-sacrifice you have shown," he said. "It is an easy thing for the rich to give of their superfluity. But when 15,000 workers are giving one-fifth of their earnings, when we hear of 1,500 girls, whose wages average $5 a week, scraping together $1,000 to help you—those are gifts that are worth ten times their weight in gold. I say that to ride twenty hours is but a small sacrifice to meet such people face to face.

"I hesitated to come here tonight for fear that it might be said that my praise of you might reflect upon the committee of which I was head. But I am not here as champion of the workers; I am here in behalf of arbitration and as spokesman for the public good.

"Industrial strife is prejudicial to the public good. A strike hurts efficiency and it leaves a black spot in the hearts of both sides.

"There is patriotism in this thing. Let it be America first—America first in industrial efficiency. Strife must cease, and there must be peace. In your devotion to arbitration you have shown that you are patriots. For there is at stake in indusarial war the success of America in the world's markets.

"I don't try to say anything about the rights or wrongs of the grievances of either side. The issue is not one of grievances; it is one of the method of settling grievances.

"The public owes you a duty. I say to the public that unless they show their moral suasion is backed by material support, public opinion has shown that it is impotent."

Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay of Columbia, one of a group of economists who studied the strike and found the manufacturers at fault, said:

"You will triumph because you are fighting for a principle as above selfish interests. If you do not win this strike, I venture to say that in the very near future the principle of arbitration for which you are battling will be written upon the statute books."

Allan Robinson, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee, presided. He announced an anonymous contribution of $10,000 to the strikers.

"Forty thousand workers in this industry have been out of employment since April 28," he said, "and their wives and children are suffering from the pangs of hunger. Many of them have been evicted from their homes. The public is very much concerned, for sooner or later it pays the bill of every industrial disturbance. The workers in the cloak and suit industry are not making demands, are not asserting any rights; they are not asking increased wages or shorter hours; they have lost their employment because they stand for the principle of arbitration.

"It is the verdict of men who have seen many strikes that the conduct of the workers in this lockout is without parallel in this country. The public is supporting them, not because it is opposed to the manufacturers, but because it believes in arbitration. The Citizens' Committee is committed to the principle of arbitration, and it will 'fight it out on this line if it takes all Summer.'"

"This is their fight for a place in the sun," he said. "I ask you women under the soft touch of the clinging fold of the beautiful garment these workers have made to think of their agony."

Mr. Hillquit expressed surprise that the manufacturers were "fighting for a principle."

"For them to have principles is funny," he said. "They must have caught them—like the measles.

"They have but one purpose—and I make the accusation frankly and openly—to return to the old sweatshop conditions. Why do they try to break the union? It is because they know that when you are organized you can fight for the dignity of your rights."

ST. LOUIS WANTS CLOAKMEN

Movement Is Started to Induce Them to Move There.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—The Business Men's League will send a committee of wholesalers to New York to try to induce the cloak and suit manufacturers who have been harassed by a prolonged strike to locate their factories in St. Louis. A. F. Versen, Industrial Commissioner, who has been in correspondence with the manufacturers, will leave for New York tomorrow, and the committee will follow him soon after he has opened negotiations.

Forrest Ferguson, President of the Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Company, is Chairman of the league's Committee on New Industries, composed of men at the head of dry goods and other manufacturing and wholesale houses doing a gross business of $80,000,000 a year. There never have been any strikes among employes of the cloak and suit manufacturers here.

ART SCHOOL AT N. Y. U.

This Summer's Course Deals with Demonstration Drawing.

New York University has perfected the organization of its post-graduate art school conducted in its Summer sessions.

"This has been done," said Dr. James E. Lough, Director of the Summer school, yesterday, "after some years of experimentation by Dr. Haney of the art department. This department is unique, in that it offers a number of courses and has but one instructor, Dr. Haney giving all of the courses in a sequence, which extends over several years. Certain of these courses deal with methods of instruction in high schools, others with the elementary grade and others, still, with supervision of art work. The course to be given in the Summer of 1916 is entirely new, and deals with what Dr. Haney calls 'Demonstration Drawing.' This is the kind of drawing that must be done by lecturers and speakers on art, who wish to make from memory large sketches in color before audiences.

"In addition to the course on methods, the art department offers each Summer some very practical work in applied design. This instruction is shaped on the lines of continental practice, Dr. Haney having made an extensive study of the methods of industrial art instruction given in continental art schools. This study he completed just before the European war began."

VETOES GERMAN REGIMENT.

Mayor Mitchel received the suggestion a few days ago that a regiment be organized to be composed of citizens of German birth exclusively. The suggestion came from Fritz Pohl of 403 West Street. In a letter to Mr. Pohl yesterday the Mayor said that the formation of such a regiment, in his opinion, would not be advisable. He wrote:

"While I commend your interest, I am of the opinion that it would be hurtful to draw racial lines in American military affairs. I think what we ought to do is to emphasize the importance of drawing together all of the nationalities into an army which is simply American. I would, therefore, deprecate the formation of a regiment composed wholly of men of any one nationality, whether they be German, French, Italian, or Russian, as this might tend to draw the very racial lines which I believe should be avoided. I suggest that you urge your men to join the regular organizations of the National Guard or such other organizations as may be recruited by the Federal authorities."

OSBORNE, ON HONOR, DENIES HE'S OLIVER

Then Rae Tanzer Takes Stand, and, Pointing to Him, Says "He Is the Man!"

LAWYERS PASS THE LIE

Expect Girl's Trial for Perjury to End and Case Go to the Jury by This Afternoon.

There was a dramatic moment at the trial of Rae Tanzer for perjury in the Federal District Court yesterday when she stood facing James W. Osborne, the lawyer, and in the face of witnesses to the contrary and his own sworn statement, she repeated her charge that he was Oliver Osborne. Lifting her hand and pointing toward him she said: "He is the man I gave the Oliver letter to. I put it in his hand. I cannot be mistaken."

She was called in rebuttal after Harold Spielberg, her former lawyer, had testified that she had confessed to him her mistake in taking James W. Osborne, the lawyer, for the Oliver Osborne who had promised to marry her and then deserted her. Her appearance on the stand was made more dramatic by the fact that just a few minutes before Benjamin Slade, her attorney, called her to the stand from her place beside the counsel table, where she had been sobbing, James W. Osborne had said to the Court and jury, "On my honor as a man I never saw Rae Tanzer in my life before the day I saw her in United States Commissioner Houghton's office."

It was the liveliest day in the Federal District Court since Rae Tanzer went on trial, and it had been a trying day for the diminutive defendant, who had heard Mr. Spielberg tell the jury that he had advised her: "If James W. Osborne is the man, say so. If he is not then go down on your knees, kiss his hand, and ask forgiveness for the great wrong you have done him."

There was a storm when Mr. Slade asked Mr. Spielberg if he knew he was liable to disbarment provided the things said about him were true. The question was no sooner asked than Judge Wolverton told Mr. Slade he must withdraw it. On his refusal to do so the Court warned the lawyer that he would have to take the responsibility of not heeding instructions from the bench. Mr. Spielberg, in anger, said he was willing to be disbarred if he had done wrong, and he accused Mr. Slade of "contemptible and dastardly" conduct. Later he apologized.

After Rae Tanzer had recanted, the witness said, she could not face the Slades, and he called up David Slade and told him. David Slade, much excited, he said, came to his office. To the witness Slade was reported by Mr. Spielberg to have said: "Good God, little girl, what have you done to me? I repeatedly asked you if James W. Osborne was the man, and didn't you say he was?"

To this Rae replied: "I am awfully sorry." Then Slade, according to the witness, said to Miss Tanzer: "If you had only consulted me I could have proved that he was the man."

"I said to him," continued Mr. Spielberg, "That's a hot one. Here is a girl who has been going with a man and you think you know him better than she."

The lie passed when Benjamin Slade said he was the only courageous one in the case that would "call a spade a spade."

"You are wrong and you lie every time," said the witness, but he apologized as the Court stopped his talk.

Arthur Hammerstein told of the call Mr. Spielberg and Miss Tanzer had made upon him. The former told him, he said, that James W. Osborne and Oliver Osborne were the same man, and that he could prove it. Mr. Hammerstein said he offered Miss Tanzer $1,000 a week, but that she replied money could not buy her services until she had proven her case.

William Stuyvesant Chanler, one of Miss Tanzer's counsel, testified as to how he came into the case, and James W. Osborne and Rae Tanzer were called in rebuttal.

It is expected the case will go to the jury this afternoon.

MRS. REACH ASKS DIVORCE.

Broker, in Answer, Says Jealousy Hurt His Social Position.

Mrs. Hattie D. Reach applied yesterday to the Supreme Court, before Justice Dugro, for an absolute divorce from Malcolm Reach, a fruit broker, who lives at 74 Pinehurst Avenue. The couple were married in Ellicott City, Md., on Sept. 10, 1905, and separated in March. 1915. Mrs. Reach asked the court to continue the temporary allimony of $150 a month, as she asserted that her husband had an income of $15,000. She alleged that he had been guilty of misconduct in Scranton, Penn., and other places with a woman to whom he had made many costly presents.

Reach, who did not defend the action, asserted in his answer that his wife had ruined his social standing by reason of an unreasonable and jealous disposition. Justice Dugro reserved decision.

PRIZES AT EXETER.

Six, Including a Harvard Scholarship, Won by a New York Graduate.

EXETER, N. H., June 27.—At the commencement exercises at Phillips Exeter Academy today, Paul Drane Van Anda of New York, a senior, received six prizes for academic excellence, with his classical diploma presented by S. Sidney Smith, '66, of New York, President of the Exeter trustee. He had won one of the three Teschemacher scholarships of $1,000 for a four-year course at Harvard; the general excellence prize of $50, given to the senior who, having been two or more years in the academy, is recognized on the ground of scholarship and general character as holding the first rank; the senior Latin prize, given by Colonel Frank B. Stevens, '80; the senior Greek prize, given by Prentiss Cummings, '60; the first prize of $40 in the Merrill competition for original work in English composition, and the prize given by Pitts Duffield, '88, "to that member of the senior class who excels in composition and in the appreciation of literature."

He also earned the maximum marks in every subject studied throughout the year. This constitutes a record in scholarship in the one hundred and thirty years of graduating classes at Exeter. William Eldridge of New York won honorable mention for general excellence in studies, and Joseph Lamont Gavit won the second Merrill prize for original work in English composition. The other Teschemacher scholarships at Harvard were awarded to H. D. Costigan of Chicago, and F. C. Southworth, Jr., of Meadville, Penn.

The Yale cup for general excellence in athletics combined with good standing in study was awarded to Spencer F. Martin of Clinton. The other graduates included Thomas S. Lamont, Robert R. Heywood, and Fifield Workum of New York, and Howard B. Goodrich, Paul Field and Julian F. Rowe of Brooklyn.

$2,000 Toilet Set Goes to Son of the Duc de Chaulnes.

The B-F-B Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, which conducted one of the largest enterprises at the recent Allied Bazaar in Grand Central Palace, yesterday announced the names of the winners of twelve of the most valuable prizes awarded at its exhibit. The eight-year-old son of the Duc de Chaulnes received the tortoise shell toilet set valued at $2,000, and George Blumenthal, 23 West Fifty-third Street, won the Steinway piano. A diamond brooch valued at $1,500 was won by C. Latham, 349 Central Park West.

The other prizes and their winners were: Victrola, N. Rowby, 59 West Forty-sixth Street; hatpin, Charles Stein, 128 East Eighty-third Street; chest of drawers, A. B. Spingarn, 44 Liberty Street; book of sketches, R. Day, 862 Lexington Avenue; silver jug, Mrs. F. Stevens, 134 Montague Street, Brooklyn; Valli Valli doll, Mrs. Winnger, Astor Theatre; Century phonograph, Mrs. G. C. Lewis, New Dorp, S. I.; evening gown, Mr. Picard, 50 Central Park West; diamond ring, Whigham, 998 Broadway.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 27.—The Alumni Association of the University of Vermont at its annual meeting today voted to have a committee investigate the so-called activities of Professor A. H. Appelmann, in charge of the Department of German Language and Literature. The committee was ordered to report its findings as soon as practicable to the President of the association, who was empowered to lay them before the Board of Trustees of the institution.

Resolutions adopted by the association stated that, because of "criticism of the un-American activities" of Professor Appelmann, "sinister suspicions are current which undermine the good name of the university and one of its professors."

TENANTS SEE SNAKES, OWNER FACES TRIAL

40-INCH REPTILE CAUGHT

Of all the tenants in the tenement house at 304 East Sixty-second Street, there was never one so unpopular as Mrs. A. Ringle, who was summoned before Magistrate Barlow in the Yorkville Court yesterday on a charge of harboring snakes in her flat. No one in the house had anything against her until five weeks ago, when her wriggling pets made themselves so conspicuous that tenants either dream or see snakes every minute of the night and day. There are thirty-two families in the house, and some sixty children who become panicky at the mere thought of a snake and much more the sight of one.

All of this was explained to Magistrate Barlow yesterday by Irving Cohen, one of the tenants, who produced by way of evidence a forty-inch snake pickeled in alcohol and curled up in one of Mrs. Cohen's preserve jars. He told how he was shaving one day, when he heard a scream from the adjoining room, where his wife was lying on a couch.

"I hurried into the other room," said Cohen, "and there was Mrs. Cohen doing the strangest sort of dance you ever saw. I watched her. When she dropped to the floor and rolled over and over again, I saw this snake wriggling around her shoulder. I grabbed a shovel and beat the snake black and blue. Then I cut him up with my razor. He's all there, but he won't wriggle again."

Other tenants testified that a snake crawled down the fire escape from Mrs. Ringle's flat only a few days before. This pet was also killed without much ceremony. Cohen said he understood that Mrs. Ringle's husband bought the snakes to train them and sell them as trick performers. On this information Magistrate Barlow asked Mrs. Ringle to bring her husband to court tomorrow.

PROTESTS PHONE CALLS.

Up-State Commission Hears Two Complaints—No Decision.

Mark H. Ellison, an attorney of 132 Nassau Street, appeared before the Public Service Commission of the Second District in the Metropolitan tower yesterday to press his complaint against the New York Telephone Company for alleged overcharge for local messages. Mr. Ellison contends that the company has no right to exact more than 5 cents for a local message, no matter what its duration, and points to the fact that the company makes no refund for messages which are less than five minutes in length.

The contention of the company is that some subscribers tie up the line for so long a time that it is necessary to make the charge for overtime.

Another complaint on which a hearing was given yesterday was that of the High Hill Beach Improvement Association of Nassau County against the New York Telephone Company. The association seeks to compel the company to establish telephone connection with the High Hill Beach colony in the Summer months. The company contends this would not be profitable. Decision was reserved in both cases.

NATION'S LIBRARIANS MEET.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 27.—Librarians from all parts of the country, numbering about 1,000, attended the opening of the thirty-eighth annual meeting of the American Library Association here today. The sessions of the conference will be held daily, ending late Saturday afternoon. Today there was a general morning session, at which the delegates heard an eulogy of New Jersey by State Librarian John P. Dullard, who also gave the address of welcome. Special section sessions were held this afternon and tonight. The conference, according to plans and precedent, is to be devoted in its entirety to further study of the science of the modern library.

Following Mr. Dullard, Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the St. Louis Library, gave an address upon "How the Community Educates Itself." William Warner Bishop, librarian of the University of Michigan, spoke on "Leadership, Through Learning." Other speakers were Miss Mary Ogden White of Summit, and John Jay Chapman of New York.

The Bibliographical Society of America, the League of Library Commissions, the Special Libraries Association, and the Theological Libraries Round Table are other organizations affiliated with the national body that will hold their meetings in connection with the other conferences.

TRIPLETT IS CONVICTED.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—In the Superior Court today Judge Gager sentenced Hempden Triplett, a lawyer with an office in the Longacre Building in New York, to between four and ten years in jail for conspiracy against his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Triplett of 556 West 180th Street, New York. She is the wife of the Rev. John Edwin Triplett, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Woodbury, N. J. Thomas J. Campbell, 1,246 Longfellow Avenue, the Bronx, and Daniel Donohue, 126 Sheffield Avenue, Jersey City, are also under arrest, charged with perjury at the trial.
